New-York Daily Times.

VOL. IV....NO. 1047. NEW-YORK, THURSDAY, JANUARY 25, 1855. PRICE TWO CENTS.

LATEST INTELLIGENCE

By Telegraph to the New-York Daily Times.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS.

Manœuvering of the Buchanan Clique.

Mr. Marcy is not Going to London for Some Time Yet.

Ex-Governor Seward Protests against being Sent as Minister to France.

THE PRESIDENT'S POWER OF REMOVAL.

A Legal Question.

Amendments to the Army Appropriation Bill.

FRENCH SPOLIATIONS.

Senator Seward's Speech on the Bounty Land Bill.

Secretary Marcy and the London Mission—The Buchanan and those who Operate for Ex-Governor Seward—The Pacific Railroad Bill.

Special Correspondence of the N. Y. Daily Times:

WASHINGTON, Tuesday, Jan. 23, 1855.

There is remarkable ground for the belief that the course so hopefully sketched of late, to the effect that Mr. MARCY is about to take the London Mission, originate with the BUCHANAN clique of politicians, or persons connected with them in this city. I am positively assured that such a clique really do so work here, and that much of the misrepresentation recently published concerning the President is the work of this clique. Some of the members of this clique are well known to the political world—others, whose developments in connection with the movements might be traced, (including expressions of personal hatred,) would be found to be those who are well known in the political world, and who have been connected with the BUCHANAN cabal, and a clique in reference to the positions they hold, and to their past and present history. In a few days I may have something more to say on this subject; and then others, may be able to show up some of the unwarranted operations of premature manhood of the Empire City.

I do not wish to be understood as speaking disrespectfully of Mr. BUCHANAN, but I apprehend that however honorable he may design to be in his political movements, some of the instruments through whom he is operating here are quite unscrupulous about the means they employ to accomplish his wishes. Mr. BUCHANAN is exceedingly desirous that Mr. MARCY should go out of the Cabinet, and his friends have blundered into the silly effort to get him out by coaxing or driving him into the final resort of accepting the mission to London. Mr. BUCHANAN never made a greater mistake as a politician than in taking a foreign mission after having himself been Secretary of State; and you may depend upon it, Mr. MARCY will not fall into the trap, however much the Pennsylvania bachelor may desire it.

The efforts of the BUCHANAN interest to dislodge Mr. MARCY from the Cabinet were never so desperate as now. They may possibly eventually effect their purpose. If so, a striking evidence of the want of firmness in the President will be manifest—for he has taken a great deal of pains to have it understood that he was determined the change should be brought about in his Cabinet except by sickness or death. If defeated in this well laboured and often announced purpose of maintaining the integrity of his Cabinet, a breach will have been made in his wall of defence against the opening of the Administration, through which will be poured a vindictive flood of arrows, that will secure to the opposition an absolute triumph. He sees this, surely, and I still believe will disappoint the opening machinations of those who seek by artifice to destroy him. But, more anon.

Ex-Governor SEWARD is still here. Notwithstanding his earnest protests against being considered a candidate for any place in the gift of the Administration, there are quite a number of disbelievers in his ability to persist in declining the Mission to France, if it is pressed upon him. It must be confessed, however, that the ex-Governor presents valid cogent arguments against the propriety of his accepting anything at the hands of the President, and these may restrain the President from urging his acceptance of the Paris Portfolio. He suggests, very forcibly, that when a man has been practically whipped to death at home, as he was in the Fall election, he ought not to come to Washington and accept place under the Federal Government, because, among other reasons, such a course makes him a political beggar, who, bankrupt in his own State, comes to Washington to be taken care of. He thinks there is propriety in a dead month laying quiet for a while after he is put under the sod, instead of stalking about among living men, and partaking of their substance, still, just as though he was alive and kicking.

All this is very shly and cogently urged by Mr. SEWARD; but there is some reason to fear his logic don't altogether satisfy his friends; and there are those here who insist upon it that he will yet accept the mission to France, unless indeed Mr. MARCY should resign in his favor,—but of that I know nothing. These disbelieving heretics unanimously refer to Gov. SEYMOUR'S New-York record, in connection with the late Gubernatorial contest,—and, from his acceptance of a nomination after his repeated and positive declarations that he would not accept, they draw the conclusion that in protesting his innocence of any possible designs on the mission to France, he simply means to say that he wants it forced upon him. Just at this juncture, Captain RUNYON is here—the veritable Captain who nominated Mr. SEYMOUR at Syracuse, "unless sooner," after he refused to be a candidate; and it is suggested that he has been detailed from the New-York Custom-House to come to Washington, and repeat the nolens volens operation in the case of His Excellency and the French Mission. New-York, by these agencies, may yet get the Minister to Paris, although I confess my own opinion on the subject is quite settled to the contrary by the arguments of the Ex-Governor himself.

The Pacific Railroad bill was recommitted at last, to-day, by a very close vote, at the termination of the keenest parliamentary fight I have ever witnessed, in which legitimate weapons only were used. The bill is now in a position where its ultimate success or defeat may be easily consummated. A few votes only are required to pass it; and they can only be had by a much more judicious management than has characterized the engineering of the measure thus far in the House. It is much easier to defeat the bill than to pass it; but it can be passed if the right men take hold of it in the right way. The leaders of the measure will do well to profit by the experience of the past few days, and if they really desire the passage of the bill be willing to sacrifice a little of self to compass that object.

The Secretary of War is having engraved at Washington, (giving the comparative profiles of the several Pacific Railroad routes surveyed under direction of the Department during last year. This map, and all the information on the subject of Pacific Railroad routes which has been obtained by the War Department, by order of Congress, at an expense of nearly $300,000, will soon be laid before the two Houses. It certainly is desirable and reasonable that Congress should delay final action on a Pacific Railroad measure until these maps and this information have been scanned, which may be done in a few days. It was this consideration that induced Mr. CARTTERL, of Ohio, to urge the recommital of the bill, and not any purpose to obstruct the passage of a measure in which he feels a lively interest.

The second Exhibition of the Metropolitan Mechanics' Institute of this City, to which I have heretofore alluded, commences on the 6th of February. Next week will close the opportunity to enter articles for competition. It is to be hoped many of our New-York artisans will avail themselves of this occasion to exhibit specimens of their handiwork. The Exhibition will be a most creditable one, and will be frequented daily by hundreds who are connected here from every quarter of the Union, and, indeed, the world. I learn with some surprise that none of your enterprising organ builders have managed to send an instrument to this exhibition. As there are four or five of our churches just at this time scrutinizing for the purchase of organs, one sent for exhibition would be quite certain of a purchaser, to say nothing of the publicity the business of the builder would obtain through the medium of the Exhibition. Have the hard times so blunted the business optics of New-Yorkers that they cannot see this "chance for a trade?"

G.

Interesting Legal Question—The President's Power of Removal.

WASHINGTON, Tuesday, Jan. 23, 1855.

Argument was concluded in the Supreme Court yesterday, in a case which is deserving of more extended notice than the brief reference to it which I have seen published. I refer to the case of "The United States, ex rel. [illegible], Secretary of the Treasury," which involves questions of very extended interest. The case comes up on a writ of error from the Circuit Court for the District of Columbia, which Court refused to issue a writ of mandamus commanding the defendant to pay to the relator the amount of his salary, as Chief Justice of the Territory of Minnesota, from the 22d day of October, 1851, (the day on which the President appointed a person in his place,) up to the 19th day of March, 1853, at which period the four years for which he was appointed expired.

The facts of the case are very few and simple. The relator was appointed and commissioned on the 19th March, 1849, as Chief Justice of Minnesota, "to have and to hold the said office, with all the powers, privileges and emoluments to the same appertaining, unto him, the said AARON GOODRICH, for the term of four years, from the day of the date hereof." On the 22d October, 1851, Mr. CRITTENDEN, acting Secretary of State, wrote to the relator that the President had thought proper to appoint JEROME FULLER in his place, and had commissioned him accordingly. Thereupon, the relator communicated to the President his intention faithfully to discharge the duties of said office up to the expiration of the time for which he was commissioned; and from that time to the end of his term he held himself always ready to discharge the same.

The relator presented an account to the proper officer of the Treasury for his salary, from the 1st of December, 1851, (the day on which he received the letter of dismissal,) up to the 19th of March, 1853. This application was rejected, on the sole ground that the President and Senate having exercised a power which, in their opinion, is constitutional, the accounting officers have no authority to say, officially, that the exercise of such power is unconstitutional.

From these facts two questions arise: First, whether the President had the power to remove the relator during the four years for which he was appointed; and second, if he had not, whether a mandamus in proper for the purpose and under the circumstances stated in the petition.

The relator affirms that the President had not the power to remove him during the four years of his appointment, urging that the act of Congress creating the Judges, is peremptory, and declares that they "shall hold their offices for the period of four years." The Commission of the relator pursues the same terms, and upon the same terms the office was accepted. The relator maintains that as the law has not been repealed, he had the absolute right to the office for the full four years' term provided by the law, of whom the Judges of Minnesota were the creatures.

Attorney-General CRITTENDEN gave an opinion supporting the power of the President to remove a Senatorial Judge; and his conclusion is supposed to be legitimately drawn from and entirely founded on the opinion of the Supreme Court, in the case of the American Insurance Company vs. Canter, 1 Pet., 510. The relator argues that all that the Court decide in that case is, that the Judges of the Territorial Courts of Florida were not "Constitution Judges," that is, that they were not Judges of those Courts to which the judicial power spoken of in the Constitution was committed, for if they had been they would have held their office "during good behavior," but that they were Legislative Judges, created by virtue of the power given to Congress to make all needful regulations for the Territory of the United States.

But what countenance does this decision give to the power of removal by the President? All that decision affirms is, that Territorial Judges do not derive their existence from the Constitution; if they did, they would necessarily hold their office during good behavior, and Congress could not limit or abridge their term of office. In other words, if they are Judges within the meaning of the Constitution, they hold their office during good behavior, in spite of Congress or the Executive, because the Constitution, the instrument of their existence, says so. But where, in this decision, is found any warrant for holding that a Legislative Judge shall not hold his office during the term of four years, when the act of Congress, the instrument of his existence, says he shall so hold? The Judges in either case, are just what the instrument to which they owe their origin makes them: in the one case, during good behavior; in the other, during four years. And it is no more within the power of any third party to remove the incumbent in the one case than in the other. In each case, the President, by and with the advice of the Senate, has the power of appointment. In each case the power of appointment having been executed, the President is "functus officio," the Constitution in one case, and the act of Congress in the other, clothing these officers with their respective powers, qualities, and immunities.

To this it is rejoined by the Attorney General that the Constitution having conferred upon the Executive the power of appointing and removing all officers not holding, by the Constitution, during good behavior, this power cannot and ought not to be impaired by the Legislative power; and that the act of Congress creating the Territorial Judges, while it limits their appointments to four years, cannot grant to the officer a right to hold the office for the full term of four years, regardless of the President's constitutional prerogative. The Constitution distinctly provides two classes, and two classes only, of Executive and Judicial officers. The first of these hold the life tenure; the second class are removable at the will of the Executive. If it were not so, inextricable confusion and intermissable difficulties would be the result.

The question of the power of the President to remove all officers whose tenure of office is not, by the Constitution itself, declared to be during good behavior, (or for life, which is synonymous,) was discussed in the first Congress under the Constitution, and was decided in the affirmative; since which time the unvarying practice of the Government, down to the present time, has been in conformity with that decision; and during sixty years this power has been exercised by the President, and hitherto unquestioned.

To this the relator rejoins, that in the debate in Congress, in 1789, to which the Attorney General appeals, there is not found any support for the doctrine, that a Judge, whether constitutional or legislative, may be removed by the President during the period for which the constitutive act of the Legislature declares that he shall hold his office. The whole of that debate was upon the power of the President to remove an executive officer. And the principal argument in favor of removal was, that the executive power was vested in the President, and for it he was responsible, whether performed by himself in person or by subordinates in office, who were simply his agents, and from the responsibility of the President for the acts of executive officers the power of removal was particularly derived. But it was nowhere intimated, that where no constitutional impediment existed, the Legislature could not create an office with any limitation or tenure they might choose to attach to it. The very contrary was assumed.

Upon the second question, regarding the right of the relator to a mandamus, the Attorney General maintains that the proceeding of the plaintiff is simply an indirect mode of suing the Government, which is forbidden to be done indirectly. To this the relator replies that the proceeding is neither to establish a claim by the judgment of a Court, nor to enforce against the Government the payment of a claim. The Government has, by its proper legislative department, (the only department which in this particular province represents the Government,) declared that the Judges of the Minnesota Territory shall receive a certain salary, to be paid quarterly at the Treasury. It is the Secretary of the Treasury, and not the Government of the United States, that refuses to pay; and the mandamus is to command him, not as the representative of the Government to make this payment, but as the mere officer on whom devolves the duty of executing this law, which the Government by its Legislature has passed, to do what the law specifically requires.

Of course I have given only a brief statement of the most important points raised in the discussion of this interesting case, which was argued very ingeniously and forcibly on both sides, by A. H. LAWRENCE, of this city, for the plaintiff, and by Attorney General CUSHING for the Secretary. The decision of the Court will be looked for with much interest.

S.

The French Spoliation Bill, &c.

"Ion," of the Baltimore Sun, writes thus from Washington:

The French Spoliation bill is likely to pass, all predictions to the contrary notwithstanding. It is brought forward, in the House, under very favorable auspices, and no parliamentary obstacles can now be thrown in the way of its passage. The amount of the claims is said to be about ten or twelve millions, without the interest. Under such strict rules of evidence as will be adopted by the Board, it is not probable that every claim presented will be allowed.

The five millions appropriated by this bill to pay the awards, pro rata, will no doubt, be sufficient to pay every claim that will be allowed. But those whose claims may be rejected can come to Congress again.

There is no good reason to believe that the President will veto the bill. Mr. POLK vetoed it, not on its merits, but because the treasury was empty, and the country engaged in a foreign war.

The new bounty land bill is likely to be broken by the weight of its provisions.

As it now stands, it will probably require about a hundred and sixty millions acres of land, and employ a hundred additional land office clerks. The bill will not carry until after another old soldiers' convention. It would not be surprising if the Pacific Railroad question and old soldier question should enter largely into the future political contests in this country, and, perhaps, have a decided influence upon the Presidential election.

The Bounty Land bill—Senator Seward's Speech.

SENATE, Tuesday, Jan. 22, 1855.

Mr. SEWARD—Mr. President, the question I understand to be on the substitute offered by the honorable Senator from Pennsylvania.

The PRESIDING OFFICER, (Mr. CLAY, in the Chair.) The question is on the amendment offered by the Senator from Pennsylvania, (Mr. BRODHEAD,) as a substitute for the original bill.

Mr. SEWARD—The object of that substitute is to reduce the amount of this appropriation. It is a very laudable and proper object, if it can be attained consistently and with justice. But it strikes me, Sir, that the substitute is objectionable on the ground that it acquires that object inconsistently and unjustly; that there is an antagonism between the principles on which the substitute rests, and the object of the bill which is under consideration. The principle of the bill is to provide an acknowledgment, by way of donation, on the part of the Government, to the officers and soldiers who have served in the several wars in which the United States have been engaged. If the bill proposes to appropriate too large an amount of the public lands, the reduction, to be made consistently with the objects of the bill, must be by reducing the amount of the public land which is to be appropriated to each individual. That, however, is not proposed. On the other hand, the honorable Senator from Pennsylvania proposes that you shall give the largest quantity of public lands which is asked by any person, to each of the individuals whom he favors by his amendment; not to reduce the aggregate amount by striking out some of the claimes who were to come into the division. What are the claimes that he strikes at? They are the volunteers in those wars.

I object to this upon the ground that it is inconsistent. There are two classes of soldiers in all our wars—those who are known by the name, not necessarily a technical one, of volunteers, or soldiers for hire, pecuniarily enlisted, those who enlist for the compensation which the Government renders. There is the other class of volunteers; those who are not soldiers by profession, but who are in the civil avocations of life. These volunteers are persons who are moved by a spirit of patriotism irrespective of compensation. They do not serve, generally, throughout the whole of a war; but they enlist on occasions, to resist an invasion of a particular portion of the territory of the United States, and to defend their homes, their families and their freedom. They are, of the two classes, the most meritorious. Moreover, they never engage in the public service, except in cases involving the sacrifice of the profits of the civil occupations in which they have been engaged; and often the engagement, for however brief a period, in the public service, results in disastrous losses to them, and embarrassments in their financial concerns. Such was the case of the volunteers who rushed to the defence of Plattsburg, in the war of 1812, from Vermont, and from the State of New-York. They drove their teams upon the harvest field, and they required and tendered their services, and supported the order of them with bravery, and with devotion to the interests and glory of the country. They never retired until they had driven the invader back into the foreign country from which he came.

Now, then, we make a discrimination between those who served as regular soldiers and those who served as volunteers under such circumstances, is unjust, as it seems to me, and tends to discourage that which is the most important military institution of this country, and of all free countries, that is, the militia. We must always have a small standing army. We have that only of the number of lower republican principle, and of some risk to republican institutions. But the true military foundation of a republican Government is the militia, and the true military spirit to be encouraged, is the militia spirit of this kind. We all know how valiant and how effective that auxiliary was in the war of 1812; and we all know how loyal and effective it was in the Revolution. You know, Sir, perhaps better than I do, (Mr. CLAY in the chair,) how effective it was in all the Northern and Western campaigns during the war of 1812.

It is on this ground, therefore, that I must make up my mind either to vote against this bill altogether, or to go in for it in the state in which it stands now, so far as this question is concerned. I believe this disposes of the principal arguments in favor of the substitute, except those contained in the views which have been presented in the speech which has been made to us by the honorable member from Michigan, (Mr. STUART.)

We are alarmed by him by the aggregate amount of the donation. It is indeed very large, but it is only the coming up of a debt, and frightening us from the payment of a debt by showing us how much we owe. If we can not pay it all, we should pay all. If we attempt to reduce the amount, to make a part of the loss fall on those who are entitled to payment, then the loss should fall equally, and not discriminating and establishing classes between the beneficiaries.

But, Sir, in point of fact there is no very great force in this objection. Five years ago the Secretary of the Treasury reported to the President that there could not be expected from the avails of the public lands any revenue for the use of the Government for a period of eighteen years. It was upon that hint that I went over to the support of the homestead principle, because I considered that a fund which was dried up for a period of eighteen years to come, was practically dried up altogether. The sum of $150,000,000, at which the appropriations made by this bill is estimated by the honorable Senator from Michigan, is $120,000,000 which the Treasury of the United States is never to have. It must go in some way; either in a homestead law, or under appropriations, the benefits of which will inure to the country largely, or be awarded to internal improvements or education. If the Treasury is never to be benefited any more by any direct receipts as revenue from lands, this bill commences itself, is the largest and most liberal one, as a substitute for what I would have in the homestead bill.

Nor do I think it is likely to prove so injurious to the new States as the honorable Senator from Michigan imagines, and I have no doubt he is very honest, as I know he is very learned, in his reasons on these subjects. I think the time has practically gone by, Sir, when large tracts of land will be taken by speculators. That a large portion will go into the possession of persons who served in the war; that another large portion will go into the hands of their widows and children, is also very probable; and for the rest, if the land shall come to be so low in value as the honorable Senator supposes, it will attract no occasion for speculation. Speculators will not purchase tracts so cheap to hold them, and pay taxes on them until they advance in market. More especially as there is no reason to apprehend that the Government of the United States will hereafter be less liberal in its policy in regard to lands for public purposes than in the past. It may, for a time, affect the prosperity of the funds of some one or more of the new States, but that will be but brief and temporary. They will find, I think, their lands settled upon in proportion as the prices of the lands are reduced; and with the occupation, settlement, and cultivation of their lands, their fiscal resources will be improved more than the loss of this five per cent. fund. Their educational institutions, also, will find support in new and ever multiplying settlements, which will compensate them abundantly for any temporary disappointment in the value of the reserved lands for the support of that great interest.

Under these circumstances, I have made up my mind to vote for the bill as it stands, in preference to the substitute of the honorable Senator from Pennsylvania.

THIRTY-THIRD CONGRESS....Second Session.

SENATE.... WASHINGTON, Wednesday, Jan. 24.

Mr. SEWARD presented a petition from the inhabitants of Ontario and Madison Counties, New-York praying that the soldiers of the War of 1812 be made beneficiaries of Bounty Lands. Referred to the Committee on Pensions.

After a few unimportant petitions and resolutions, Mr. RADDE requested a short Executive Session, into which the Senate went at 12½ o'clock.

Mr. SHIELDS moved the Army Appropriation bill be taken up.

Mr. COOPER objected. He wished to make remarks on his Convict and Pauper resolution submitted yesterday, but finally consented to defer them until to-morrow.

Mr. EVANS objected.

Mr. CASS—The Internal Improvement bill has been repeatedly postponed. I don't like to risk everything else for the Army bill, though that should be considered.

Mr. HUNTER—Something should be done in reference to the Indian disturbances.

Mr. BRODHEAD—I have not abandoned the Bounty Land bill, but Senators have so amended it that I don't knew it. I must turn it over to the tender mercies of the Senator from Delaware and the Senator from North Carolina—they have made it a pension bill and everything else.

Mr. BENDER—The first business in order is the important business of yesterday—that is the Bounty Land bill, but I yield to the Army Appropriation. If it don't take long to dispose of it, it will soon be out of the way, and if it does we should certainly take it up.

ARMY APPROPRIATIONS.

The Army Appropriation bill was then taken up.

An amendment was reported from the Committee on Finance to strike out the appropriation giving fifty thousand dollars for the preservation of the arsenals, and insert two hundred and sixty-eight thousand for the Arsenals, including sites in New-Mexico and Texas, the erection of magazines and arsenals in those places and Oregon and California.

The Chairman of the Committee on Military Affairs objected to the amendment as in many respects unnecessary.

Messrs. RUSK and WELLER advocated it.

Mr. HUNTER examined the amendment, item by item, and it was agreed to by Yeas 22, Nays 18.

On motion of Mr. HUNTER, three amendments were adopted—one increasing the item of subsistence in kind two hundred and seventy-six thousand dollars; another appropriating fifteen thousand dollars for the surveys of military defences; and another appropriating thirty thousand dollars for stereotype works on Light Infantry tactics, for use throughout the country.

On motion of Mr. SHIELDS, an amendment was adopted appropriating fifty-four thousand dollars, and twenty thousand dollars, for new machinery, and improvements and repairs at the Armories of Springfield, Mass., and Harper's Ferry, Va.

Mr. SHIELDS also offered an additional section authorizing the examination by an existing Board of Claims, into the damages done to property by Colonel FAUNTLEROY'S battalion.

Mr. HUNTER thought this was a subject for separate enactment, but it was finally adopted.

Amendments were also adopted appropriating $20,000 for the importation of Dromedaries for military purposes, and to extend the provisions of extra pay of the soldiers on the Pacific coast to those of Fort Laramie.

On motion of the Chairman of the Committee on Military Affairs, other amendments were adopted increasing pay and rations.

Another amendment was adopted making an appropriation for the manufacture of breech loading firearms.

On motion of Mr. RUSK, an item was adopted appropriating one hundred and thirty-eight thousand dollars for the payment of the volunteer companies of Texas, called out to suppress the Indian hostilities there.

Mr. JONES, of Tenn., offered an amendment to regulate the distribution of arms among the States, and providing for the sale of those already distributed. Agreed to.

Mr. JOHNSON moved to strike out the item of three hundred and twenty-two thousand dollars for the Capitol extension, as inappropriate on the military bill.

Messrs. BAYARD and HUNTER opposed the striking out.

Messrs. JOHNSON, CASS and BADGER, then entered into a colloquy about the Capitol extension.

A STEAM ENGINE IN THE SENATE.

Mr. ALLEN explained the failure in the building of the British Houses of Parliament as to ventilation and ventilation, and said the latter was procured by pumping air from below by a steam engine. All were agreed that it was now too late to correct the error of excluding outside windows, and thought the Legislative Halls must be lighted from the dome, and ventilated by the aid of a steam engine below.

TEXAN TROOPS.

The President pro tem. laid before the Senate a communication from the Secretary of War, in compliance with the resolution of the Senate on the 11th inst., containing information relative to Texan troops in the service of Texas which have not been paid by the United States.

THE RECIPROCITY TREATY.

Mr. SEWARD, from the Committee on Commerce, reported a bill to carry the Reciprocity Treaty into effect, and asked that that Committee be discharged from considering the petition of Messrs. HUNTER and KANDEL, concerning the Hell Gate obstructions, on the ground that the State of New-York had not proposed any such measure. Adjourned.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

WASHINGTON, Wednesday, Jan. 24.

A resolution was passed closing the debate on the French Spoliation bill to-morrow at 1 o'clock. The House went into Committee on that subject.

MR. BENTON'S CASE.

Mr. BENTON maintained, so far from our commerce being injured during the French Revolution, it was more prosperous. He well remembered a caricature representing a large white cow, John Bull holding the horn, France the tail, and Brother Jonathan milking with both hands into a pail. He took issue with gentlemen who insisted that the United States are bound to pay those claims, because they are released from the guarantee to protect France in the possession of her West India Islands. France never made an appeal to us to perform the guarantee. Those claims were settled by the faithful efforts of our Government to get them acknowledged and paid by France, they were settled by the battle of Marengo, which put an end to the guarantee, and restored the West India Possessions which England had taken to France. These claims had acquired strength by the efforts of Agents and solicitors, who examine the records to find out claims, and tell certain parties they will never be paid by Congress unless they consent to take two or five cents on the dollar. It is time, he said, to read a lesson to this order. It is due to National Legislators, individually and collectively, to let them know they are not to govern us by their impertinence and appliances. It is time to make a decision Sir, by which the foul birds that clap their wings over the Capitol, that infest these doors, and are to be found everywhere—it is time to read them a lesson to depart, in order that the Treasury may be saved from their attacks. If there is a complaint I value more than another, it is, that no man, who wished to plunder the country, ever brought a letter of introduction to me, Sir. (Laughter.) They should be taught that they must cease to throw suspicion on National legislators, which is not only injurious to us, but to the Republican Government. I do believe, while there is great plundering in the monarchies of Europe, there never has been more money taken unduly from the pockets of the people than by vote of Congress.

Mr. DISNEY was for a long time prejudiced against the French Spoliation claims. But much as was indicated to enter into a careful and deliberate examination was the prejudice dissipated, and he was compelled to believe the claims are well founded. Every principle of national honor, and consideration of justice, both public and private, demands their payment. This he proceeded to show, by quoting from and commenting on the various documents.

AMERICAN MEDIATION.

Mr. CHAMBERLAIN, after saying that Mr. DISNEY had forcibly presented the justness of these claims, spoke against this Government's meddling in the European war. If this conflict should cease, would the minors have one ray of hope? No! But they would be thrust back into that condition where the silence of despotism is the synonyme of peace.

Mr. CRINGMAN asked, would the calling out of a larger number of men to be killed, and the imposition of increased taxation, benefit the masses?

Mr. CHAMBERLAIN, in reply, referred to the oppressed condition of Poland, Hungary, Rome and Ireland, saying, we should mind itself and let the war work out its legitimate ends. It was another Jacobinism was urged in the name of religion. Let the continentals stand back—give them scope and margin enough to play out their diabolical game. Let Despotism exhaust itself, then there will be hope of freedom for the world. He contended that it is high time we have the American interpretation of the Law of Nations. We should shape our ends that the American power may be felt where destiny directs and duty demands.

Mr. GENDRICH obtained permission to print his views of the Tariff question. The Committee rose.

The Senate bill establishing a Board for the adjudication of claims, was referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

The House adjourned.

GENERAL NEWS BY TELEGRAPH.

United States Supreme Court.

WASHINGTON, Wednesday, Jan. 24.

No. 47. City of Boston, plaintiff in error, vs. DAVID R. LEDRAW. Argument concluded by Mr. ARNE for plaintiff. No. 48. THOMAS LAPS, et. al., appellants, vs. JOSEPH E. LAW. Argument commenced by Mr. MAY for appellants.

Lieut. MAURY will finish his steam lines across the Atlantic, to prevent collision of steamers, by the 1st of February next. They are being prepared at the request of Boston Underwriters.

The Jamestown—Selden, Withers' & Co.

BALTIMORE, Wednesday, Jan. 24.

New-Orleans papers of Thursday are received. They contain no news of interest. The sloop-of-war Jamestown, will sail from Philadelphia about the 1st of February, for Portsmouth, and from thence to the coast of Africa, where she will take the place of the Constitution, as the flag-ship of Commodore CRABB.

The Globe reiterates its charge of fraud against the firm of SELDEN, WITHERS & Co., and challenges a libel suit, and an examination into the affairs of the house by a legal tribunal.

Fire in Baltimore.

BALTIMORE, Wednesday, Jan. 24.

A fire occurred this morning about 4 o'clock, at SMITH'S wharf, foot of Gay-street, destroying the warehouse of Messrs. HALL & LOONEY, commission merchants, and partially destroying the adjoining store of Messrs. STEVENSON & HIGS. The loss is not yet ascertained.

We had a light fall of snow this morning.

Grisi and Mario in Boston.

BOSTON, Wednesday, Jan. 24.

The GRISI and MARIO troupe will remain in Boston two weeks longer. The average receipts amount to $4,500 a night, and the application for seats and the enthusiasm of the audiences remains unabated.

Southern Mail.

BALTIMORE, Wednesday, Jan. 24.

We have received no mail south of Washington this morning. The storm on Sunday morning extended to Petersburg and Richmond. Much damage was done by the wind.

Schooner Abby Whitmore Ashore.

PHILADELPHIA, Wednesday, Jan. 24.

The schooner Abby Whitmore, from Savannah, for Philadelphia, went ashore during the storm of Sunday night, in Little Egg Harbor Inlet, and with a cargo of one hundred bales of cotton, which probably will be got off.

Weather Report.

BURLINGTON, Vt., Wednesday, Jan. 24—7 P. M.

The thermometer is now 10 degrees above zero, and the weather is fine and clear.

WARREN ROYAL JENNINGS, Ph.

Wednesday, Jan. 24—7 P. M.

The weather here is clear and fine this evening, but very cold.

CONCORD, N. H., Wednesday, Jan. 24—7 P. M.

The weather is cold and cloudy here, indicating a snow-storm.

CONCORD, N. Y., Wednesday, Jan. 24—7 P. M.

This evening the sky is perfectly clear, and there is a strong wind blowing.

MONTREAL, Wednesday, Jan. 24—7 P. M.

The weather here is clear and very cold.

PORTLAND, Me., Wednesday, Jan. 24—7 P. M.

The weather this evening is moderate, with indications of a snow storm.

BANGOR, Wednesday, Jan. 24—7 P. M.

The weather here is clear, and the temperature moderate.

BOSTON, Wednesday, Jan. 24—6 P. M.

It is now snowing hard in this city. Wind north-east.

SPRINGFIELD, Wednesday, Jan. 24—7 P. M.

It commenced snowing here at 5 o'clock, and continues up to the present time, with indications of a heavy fall.

BRATTLEBORO, Wednesday, Jan. 24—7 P. M.

It commenced snowing here at about 5 o'clock with prospects of a heavy fall.

POUGHKEEPSIE, Wednesday, Jan. 24.

Weather moderate. Snowing slowly all day—now about two inches of snow on a level.

UTICA, Wednesday, Jan. 24—6 P. M.

Weather clear. Thermometer 10° above zero before noon—now at 20°.

BUFFALO, Wednesday, Jan. 24—6 P. M.

The weather has been comparatively calm and pleasant here to-day. At present we have a depth of snow from eighteen to twenty-five inches. The thermometer is now 12° above zero.

PHILADELPHIA, Wednesday, Jan. 24—7 P. M.

We had a slight fall of snow this morning, but it cleared off this afternoon. This evening the weather is cloudy.

BALTIMORE, Wednesday, Jan. 24—7 P. M.

There was a light fall of snow here early this morning, but the weather has been clear ever since. It is now fine moonlight, with a moderate temperature.

PROVIDENCE, Wednesday, Jan. 24—7 P. M.

A snow storm commenced here at 4½ o'clock this afternoon, and snow is now falling heavily.

NEW-HAVEN, Wednesday, Jan. 24—7 P. M.

It commenced snowing here at 4:30 o'clock P. M. and the storm still continues.

HARTFORD, Wednesday, Jan. 24—7 P. M.

At 4½ o'clock this afternoon, snow commenced falling very heavily here, and there are no signs of abatement up to this time.

ALBANY, Wednesday, Jan. 24—7 P. M.

The wind has been easterly all day. We have had but a light fall of snow, and the weather is quite moderate.

BOSTON, Wednesday, Jan. 24—7 P. M.

The thermometer in this city at 7 o'clock this morning stood at 6° above zero. It now stands at 20° above. The weather is clear. The temperature is going up.

PORT JERVIS, Wednesday, Jan. 24—6:30 P. M.

There has been no fall of snow of any consequence on the Erie Railroad west of Port Jervis to-day. It is about six inches deep here. The weather is now cold and clear. The trains are running regularly.

SYRACUSE, Wednesday, Jan. 24—9 P. M.

The moon is shining brightly here. The thermometer is 14° above zero.

[illegible]

The following note, (says the Richmond Enquirer,) conveys the only reliable information of the condition of Judge MASON which has been received in this country:

RICHMOND, Monday, Jan. 22, 1855.

MESSRS. EDITORS: Will you do me the favor to think the enclosed extract of a letter, received by our friend, Judge MASON? While it must be a matter of sorrow to see a gentleman so distinguished, so loved, so trusted by his fellow-citizens, yet it is a pleasure to believe their fondest hopes are realized, and that the wrong and cruel treatment heaped on him by his enemies, has restored him to health. I am sure, his many friends in this and other parts of the Union will be greatly relieved on reading the enclosed, the most recent, which has come to the publicity.

I am, with much respect, your obedient servant,

A. T. M. VERTIER.

DEAR SIR: Judge MASON has an attack of his old complaint. The paralysis of the left side, arm and leg has taken possession, to a more simple form, and we hope I consider to have been. Yesterday, he was quite cheerful, patient. He is now in a very comfortable state, and if extreme care, tender care, will avail, he will, I trust, yet be spared to his friends. Yours, truly, R. R. BERRIEN.

Jan. 2.—Continues to improve.

FATHER MATHEW.—By letters received in this city to the date of 24th December, from Manchester, we learn that the health of Father MATHEW has very much improved since his arrival at that place. It will be remembered that some time since Father MATHEW was attacked with paralysis, depriving him of the most entirely of the use of his voice, and for some months that he has been confined to his room. The labors in that genial clime has nearly restored him to health. Father MATHEW expected to leave Manchester for England in the month of May. The officers of the United States Steamer Constellation called to pay their respects to him at his residence, after which he was entertained by them on board ship. He seemed much gratified by their attention, and spoke feelingly of the kindness with which he was received by the Americans during his late visit to our country.—Baltimore Sun.

MEYEROBIC PHENOMENON.—Passing across the public square last night about 10 o'clock, the writer observed a phenomenon which, to his reading and record. It was a brilliant red ball of fire about two minutes in diameter. It was first visible about eight degrees below the guards in Ursa Minor, and near the small star Gamma in the tail of the Dragon. At first it seemed [illegible] Afterwards it appeared moving [illegible] the east in an almost horizontal line, [illegible] first (I think, but am not positive,) a slight and [illegible] deliatory motion. It passed [illegible] degree from the star Beta [illegible] in Ursa Major, and disappeared in the distance, not far from [illegible] in the constellation Leo. Whole time visible [illegible] minutes. There was no explosion, nor were any satellitions thrown off at any time while I saw it.—New-Haven Palladium, Jan. 22.

A FREAK OF NATURE IN VIRGINIA—WHERE'S BARNUM?—We saw yesterday an instance of a [illegible] freak of nature in a young cat, about [illegible] grown, having no appearance of hair on any part of its skin, an apparent tail, and the head [illegible] similar to those of a rabbit. The skin on the [illegible] part of the body and the head is of a mouse color, and that on the belly and legs of a pale red. The cat which have to have four other companions [illegible] the same time.—Norfolk Herald, Jan. 1.

BY MR. AARON KNAPP, an old and respectable citizen of Morrisville, Madison County, died the day night last, from the effects of a kick received from a horse, as is supposed, while [illegible] the animal. He was found lying some [illegible] place, his skull fractured, and [illegible] and medical assistance was unavailing to restore him to consciousness and life.

A COUNTY GRATIFICATION.—We have heard it stated that the sons of Hon. W. L. SEWARD, [illegible] Montgomery, interested in procuring the [illegible] THOMAS DUNN, for not taking off his hat [illegible] church-yard, have expended [illegible] land) Journal.

COL. MANYPENNY.—At a recent interview between Col. MANYPENNY, Commissioner of Indian Affairs, and the Six Nations, Col. M. was struck into one of the tribes, and formally invested with the title of Hee-wee-gee-a-ee, or President.

HEALTH OF GEN. HARRISON'S WIFE.—The Cincinnati Gazette of the 22d inst. says that the health of Mrs. HARRISON is not so good as it was a fortnight ago.

[illegible]

[illegible] the shadowy forms of bass-viols and wind instruments in the orchestra, and you begin to be aware that there are people in the pit. Everything [illegible] up to the roof of the house, and, if it [illegible] beyond the [illegible] you see a point of light. By and by the [illegible] rolling together like a scroll, and a chandelier appears in the space disclosed. It is lowered into the body of the house by means of a crank, and produces a very pleasing effect, I assure you. At the same time, a man leaps from behind the curtain, uproots the pole, removes the lantern and disencumbers the stage. Then the foot-lights screw up from underneath, and at last the house is illuminated. It is singular that this preparatory process is not accomplished before the audience is admitted.

The salle of every Florence Theatre is built upon the same plan, and a description of one will answer for all. There are four, five or six tiers of boxes, as the case may be, the outer frame-work being perfectly perpendicular, so that the boxes are entirely covered in, the opening in front being little more than a window. Dress is almost out of the question therefore: no portions of a lady's person being visible but her head and neck. She appears to be looking out of window, simply. The floor of the house—the best position—is free to those who have no key, and who have paid only the price of admission. The three front rows are reserved for such as pay a little more. Women are admitted to the floor, and at some theatres at half-price.

Gentlemen without families, isolated young men and bachelors generally, pay the admission only, and billet themselves during the performance upon those who have boxes. This custom of making and returning calls at the opera, fulfils, like the similar practice at the Cascine, all the duties and requirements of society. During an opera of three acts, with two intermissions, five very considerable visits may be made. In expectation of such a series, a lady generally but half fills her box, leaving two or three chairs for transient company. Thus a gentleman may frequent the opera here for an incredibly small sum. The price of admission is but 25 cents, but by becoming a subscriber and habitué, the cost may be reduced one-half, and the best music and most fashionable society in the city may be enjoyed for a shilling a night.

Twenty minutes after the time announced for the rising of the curtain, the orchestra begins to assemble. Some time afterwards the prompter takes his seat. This seat is beneath the stage, his head and body coming through a hole in the stage into the house, just in front of the leader of the orchestra. He wears spectacles, and a velvet smoking cap, the tassel of which keeps vibrating and tickling his nose. The man at the drum has a similar protection. The leader has a piece of shaky tin nailed upon his music desk, which he clips with his fiddle-bow to mark the time and to serve as a triangle. Sleigh bells jingle from behind the curtain, the signal that all is ready. The leader taps the quivering tin, and the overture to VERDI's "Violetta" begins.

"Violetta" is a musical version of "La Dame aux Camelias," and is the least successful work of the Maestro. It is understood that it is to be sacrificed to-night, as the ballet, afterwards, is the attraction of the evening. It is immediately evident that the wind instruments at the leader's right are in advance of the stringed instruments at his left. The prima donna sings out of tune and [illegible] wry faces. The clarionet, the hautboy and the flute, three merry fellows all in a row, laugh at her openly, and are occasionally so much amused that they lose the place and get awry themselves. The prima donna notices them, and launches violent glances across the prompter's smoking cap. The tenor, when he is not lending his aid to the charming of the scene, stands close to a private box, and converses gaily with its occupants. Nobody listens or looks, and in the due course of nature the melancholy exhibition comes to an end. The ballet is inserted between the first and third acts of this opera, the second being omitted altogether.

The first scene in "The Bandit's Daughter," being cleverly painted, the audience applaud vehemently. Immediately, a snuffy little man in black appears in the midst of medley groups of brigands, and bows. This is the scenic painter receiving a meed of approbation. The applause being prolonged, he appears a second time, with his hand at his heart. Of course, Miss Fuoco is received with all that furor of demonstration usual to country towns, when visited by the most insignificant celebrity. Shouts, numerous expansive bursts, tumultuous upheavings of the pit, are the tokens of delight lavished during the first act; during the second we are treated to a rather extensive application of the language of flowers. It was known during the day that three hundred dollars had been spent in flowers, and that no more were to be had upon any pretext. After the first pas seul, therefore, in the second act, an ecstatic gray-headed gentleman, who could stand it no longer, seized his bouquet and launched it at the prompter's head. Then followed the siege of Sebastopol in due form. The allies hurled missiles from every parallel. Occasionally the aim was very wide, and the fire scattering like that attributed to the Russians by the English; now and then the bombardment slackened, and for a moment the siege was suspended, as may be read any day in a dispatch from MENSCHIKOFF. Miss Fuoco was frequently struck, but undauntedly, in the language of MENSCHIKOFF again "the damage done to the breastworks was repaired during the night." This manifestation, which, as it appeared afterwards, was merely a feint, lasted twenty minutes. It broke out again, on a larger scale, after the variations in the "Carnival of Venice." The pit, which had seemed exhausted of ammunition towards the close of the previous action, resumed the attack, and absolutely darkened the foot-lights with its showers of artillery. The prompter withdrew beneath the stage. The chief brigand was hit by a random shot; this was probably the origin of the report of Admiral NACHIMOFF's death. Finally, a breach was made, and missiles too big to be thrown by any known power were passed into the beleaguered tower from a stage-box. Constructions, a yard high, elaborately built of the rarest flowers, and sustained by a back-piece concealed under ivy leaves, were handed by the dowdrs themselves to the fair object of their idolatry. The end of a green garland was passed out to the comic attitudinist, who walked to the other extremity of the stage before the opposite end appeared in sight. He then wound it round his own person, looking like a fragment of Birnam wood on its way to Dunsinane. The chief lady of the corps de ballet flow advanced towards Miss Fuoco, and in behalf of her comrades presented her with a sampler worked in tapestry. Whether this was a token of appreciation, or a certificate of good moral character, I had not time to inquire. Generally, the corps de ballet has often most profound consideration for the more [illegible] ladies, for whose sake they either serve as chairing work, or as [illegible]. Men with brooms now appeared upon the stage, and proceeded to remove the superfluous [illegible] and fly-posts. What a rose-crop it would have made had it been sugared down as it was! Just then, an individual entered my box without knocking, and offered us copies of rhapsodies addressed by two addled Counts to Miss Soprana Fuoco, of Milan. We bought one of each—Italian poetry is very cheap—and then took pains to inquire for whose benefit they were sold. Why, for the authors', to be sure—elder sons without a quattrino.

The ballet concluded with a hand to hand fight between the bandits and His Majesty's troops. There were something like thirty set couples, occupying very nearly all the vacant space upon the stage. Combats, by armies, are usually very ridiculous displays, consisting chiefly in efforts to produce the semblance of hostility by striking wide of the mark and firing guns into the air like magnanimous duelists. We must do Italy the justice to say that her mimic collisions with brigands are the very best things in their way to be found upon the European boards! They looked like modern Guelfs and Ghibellines settling a feud. Or perhaps they had been plied with strong waters, as the Russians invariably are before a battle, according to reliable London prints. At any rate, when the curtain fell upon twenty-nine decided victories, one couple remaining staggering to and fro in each other's arms,—there was a tremendous call for a repetition, and the entire struggle was forthwith done over again. The Italians are famous for unreasonable and inappropriate encores, and on the first production of the "Prophète" in Florence, they made the sun rise twice. That beats Joshua.

So much for the opera here in the November season. La Peyola is shut now, reopening the night after Christmas, for the Carnival. During the fortnight to come there will not be a single place of amusement open—not even a cafe concert or a Punch and Judy. The streets at night are as black as railroad tunnels, and not half as well lighted. The amusement of a promenade through them is of the most dreary description. Nine tenths of the shops close at dusk; the other tenth are not open even during the day. So that visiting from house to house, and the most constant attendance at dancing parties, "hops," "happenings in," and the other unceremonious reunions, which form the staple of the evening occupations of Americans in this metropolis, are the only possible methods of avoiding misanthropy and averting inevitable seediness. Life would present greater charms in Florence if there were some sort of show here—as perhaps a Cosmorama or a series of Moral Lectures to Young Men—anything, in fact, where you pay to get in. If it were not for GALIGNANI and MENSCHIKOFF—the two great epitomes of to-day, as they appear to me from this point of view—it would really be an arduous task to spend a Winter in this most desolate, deserted, misunderstood and overrated shire-town. DICK TOXIO.

DANIEL CADY.

Biographical Sketch of the late Judge Cady—Outline of his Professional Career.

The retirement of Judge CADY from the Bench of the Supreme Court, after so long and eminent a professional career, naturally awakens reminiscences in respect to those early times when he first appeared in the judicial forum. He was admitted to the Bar in 1795—sixty years ago! During this long period he has been constantly and laboriously engaged in the practice of the profession—excepting the seven and a half years he has sat on the Bench. Though he has mingled somewhat in politics, and on a few occasions occupied a seat in the State and National Legislatures, yet he has never permitted any political duties to interfere with his unremitting devotion to the law. I doubt whether, during the last sixty years, a single day has passed (Sundays excepted) in which he has not been employed, to some extent at least, in the examination of a pending law suit. What a long period of unwearied attention to one pursuit. It is almost without a precedent in the history of the legal profession.

Judge CADY was born in Columbia County, in April, 1773—a County which has produced four of the most prominent lawyers in the State: Elisha Williams, William W. Van Ness, Martin Van Buren, and DANIEL CADY. He read law in 1794, with John Woodworth, then doing an extensive business at Albany, and subsequently Attorney General and Judge of the Supreme Court, and now residing at Albany, in the possession of uncommon vigor, at the age of 88 years. Admitted to the Bar, Mr. CADY commenced practice in 1795, at Florida, in the County of Montgomery, from which he soon removed to Johnstown, the county seat. Johnstown was then regarded as quite a Western frontier town. A flourishing little village existed at Whitestown, in Oneida County; a few bold pioneers had located at Bath, where there was an English settlement; and a good many squatters, with a few bona fide respectable citizens, were scattered here and there through the western portions of the State. About a dozen slovenly houses composed the sum total of Utica, while the sites of Syracuse and Rochester were without a local habitation or a name, and Buffalo was only distinguished for the Indians that made their wigwams on the banks of its creek. But even then the tide of emigration from the eastern counties of New-York and from New-England had begun to flow westward through the Mohawk Valley. In a few short years it spread itself in one broad sea of civilization and enterprise over all the fertile valleys and rich hill-sides of western New-York. At the time of Mr. CADY's admission to the Bar, or immediately after, a few lawyers, some of whom rose to eminence in the profession, had penetrated the country west of Johnstown. Thomas R. Gold, a man of marked ability, practiced at Whitestown. Either at that time, or soon after, Jonas Platt, who subsequently sat on the bench of the Supreme Court, practiced at the same place. It was about this period that Nathaniel W. Howell opened an office at Canandaigua, and Vincent Matthews picked up a precarious living at Newtown, now Elmira. Gen. Matthews afterwards removed to Bath, and thence to Rochester, where he became distinguished in the profession.

When Mr. CADY took his place with the Bar, George Clinton was Governor of the State; though in the same year he gave way to John Jay, who was elected over Chief Justice Yates, the Republican candidate, after a sharp contest. Gov. Clinton voluntarily retired, having held the office from the organization of the Government. Robert Yates was Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, Robert R. Livingston, Chancellor, and Nathaniel Lawrence, Attorney-General—the latter being superseded the same year by Josiah Ogden Hoffman, one of the most profound lawyers in the State. He was the father of our present Attorney-General. The bare mention of these facts exhibits in a strong light the long period during which Mr. CADY has occupied a place in the legal arena. Two generations of men have passed away since George Clinton first laid aside the gubernatorial robes he had so long and honorably worn, and DANIEL CADY is still at the Bar with faculties unimpaired.

Mr. CADY has come into professional contact with five or six distinct classes (I had almost said generations) of lawyers. At the time of his admission, the leading members of the bar in New-York were Hamilton, Burr, Edward Livingston, Jones, Hoffman, Brockholst Livingston, Hoffman, Daniel Lawrence, Richard Harison, Richard Varick, and others, numbering on almost every page of our early reports, and who, by their profound learning and varied learning, aided in the eminent and dignified Bench in erecting the judicial structure of this State on broad and solid foundations. At the same period Abraham Van Vechten, John V. Henry, Ambrose Spencer and John Woodworth, were devoting their great powers and rare attainments to the practice in Albany; while Elisha Williams, whose ability to sway juries by an eloquence singularly rich and fascinating, has never been surpassed in this State, kept his office at Hudson. All these gentlemen were in advance of Mr. CADY at the Bar—some by many years—others by only a few. It was his good fortune to contend with each of them in the forum; though with some but rarely on account of their advanced age, or early death, as in the case of Hamilton. With Burr, Hoffman, Jones, Spencer, Woodworth, Van Vechten, Henry and Williams, he measured weapons repeatedly during a series of years. What a school for disciplining the powers and stimulating the energies of the mind, with James Kent to preside over the combat and award the wreath of victory! "There were giants in those days." Among the more immediate cotemporaries of Mr. CADY—i. e., those who were admitted about the same time, were W. W. Van Ness, afterwards Judge of the Supreme Court, M. B. Hildreth, twice appointed Attorney-General, Thomas Addis Emmett, widely known to fame, Cadwallader D. Colden, T. R. Gold, of Whitestown, and George Griffin, of New-York. The latter gentleman, it is believed, came into the profession the same year with Mr. CADY, and he, of all those then at the Bar, or who were admitted at that time, is the only one who now pretends to practice, excepting Mr. CADY. It is possible that John Duer, now a Judge of the Superior Court in the City of New-York, was then at the Bar, though I suppose he was admitted a little later. A short time subsequent to this, another class of lawyers appeared among their elder brethren, and in due season rose to distinction. Of these I may mention John Wells, of New-York, a model advocate before the Court sitting in bank, D. B. Ogden, Harmanus Bleecker, Martin Van Buren, Thomas J. Oakley, an intellectual giant, now presiding in the Superior Court of the City of New-York, Talcott, peerless in the forum, but a lamented victim of the temptations of the social circle, Daniel Kellogg, a Western pioneer, who amassed wealth while doing a large business at Skaneateles, and John C. Spencer, still in the vigor of his intellect, and whose singular capacity to labor without fatigue, equaled by the extent and variety of the professional services he has performed during the last thirty-five years. Next after this class, and more nearly approaching our own days, come Daniel Lord, B. Davis Noxon, J. A. Spencer, Henry R. Storrs, the splendid orator, Samuel Beardsley and Greene C. Bronson, both of whom have presided over our highest Court, Addison Gardiner, M. T. Reynolds, Samuel Stevens, Benjamin F. Butler, William H. Seward, D. D. Barnard, J. A. Collier, Ogden Hoffman, the present Attorney General, Judge Paige of Schenectady, O'Conor, Denio, and their associates. Another class, our immediate cotemporaries, must be mentioned. They stand in the same relation to the young attorney of 1855, that Hoffman, Jones, Van Vechten T. Williams stood to the young attorney of 1795. I must content myself with some half dozen names, as N. Hill, Jr., W. F. Allen, John Van Buren, W. C. Noyes, Talcott of Buffalo, David Dudley Field, and C. F. Comstock. Other names will readily occur to the reader. After these come the countless throng who have got places within the Bar since the adoption of the new Constitution and the Code of Procedure. In the language of the auctioneers, they are "too numerous to mention." They must be knocked off under the general head of "legion." Here, then, are six distinct classes or successions—if I may so speak—of lawyers: beginning with Alexander Hamilton, and ending with the last attorney who is admitted to practice on his clients in the Supreme Court—covering a period of sixty years. With all these classes Mr. CADY has been in professional contact, either before a Jury or before the Court in banco, or while presiding himself as a judge. When looking around him since he has been on the bench, searching in vain for the once familiar countenances and forms of his early associates, all of whom have left the forum, and most of them long years ago to lie down in honored graves, and finding himself sitting by the side of judicial compeers, a majority of whom were born after he had won honors at the bar, he must often feel in his heart of hearts the sentiment, though he may forbear to quote the language:

"When I remember all
The friends so linked together
I've seen around me fall
Like leaves in wintry weather,
I feel like one who treads alone
Some banquet hall deserted,
Whose lights are fled,
Whose garlands dead,
And all but me departed."

Though constitutionally modest and bashful in the extreme, Mr. CADY early worked his way towards the front rank of the profession. In those days a lawyer could not argue a cause in the Supreme Court, till he had practiced three years as an attorney. Mr. CADY argued his first cause before the Court in bank, in 1796—as soon as the rules would permit. It was an ejectment suit—a branch of the law in which he subsequently became highly distinguished. The case is not reported, for then there were no reports published. Johnson's Cases, in three volumes, are the earliest published reports of the decisions of the Supreme or any other Court in this State. The first reported case in which he was counsel, is Jackson ex dem. Lord Southampton vs. Sample, 1 Johnson's Cases, 321. It involved the title to a large tract of land in the County of Montgomery. Abraham Van Vechten was counsel for the plaintiff, and DANIEL CADY and Aaron Burr for the defendant. Thus, his name appears in the earliest volume of our reports. It appears also in the latest. In the first volume of Johnson, and in the last of Barbour, and through all the intermediate series of volumes, at law and in equity, you will find the name of DANIEL CADY. Of whom else can this, or anything approaching to it be said?

He has seen great changes in the constitutional, judicial and statutory systems of the State, since he actively participated in its affairs. He has practiced law under four different State Constitutions—that of 1777, adopted by a Convention embodying great talents, over which Leonard Gansevoort presided; the revision of 1801, by a Convention of which Aaron Burr was President; the Constitution of 1821–22, framed by a Convention whose seats were filled by the most eminent men in the State, Daniel D. Tompkins presiding; and the Constitution under which we now live, organized in 1846 by a body of highly respectable delegates, with Chief Justice John Tracy to preside over them. He has practiced under five different codes of laws, or, perhaps, more properly speaking, five different revisions of our Statutes, including the code of Procedure, all authorized by Legislative enactment, viz.: That of Samuel Jones and Richard Varick, in two volumes, in 1789; that of James Kent and E. W. Rudolph, in two volumes, in 1801; that of W. P. Vanness and John Woodworth, in two volumes, in 1813, known as the "Revised Laws," a more elaborate and systematic production than the former; that of John Duer, Benj. F. Butler and John C. Spencer, in three volumes, 1827, known as the "Revised Statutes," a work of great labor and profound research, and upon the adoption of which the distinguished compilers received the thanks of the sovereign people, in the shape of a pecuniary compensation, which, if I mistake not, was quite liberal for those hard times; and the Revised Statutes, as amended from time to time, and now constituting the code of Procedure in Chancery, and the code of Procedure at law, which, in the language of Judge CADY, in his opinion in the Matter of the Constitutional Convention, they are chiefly. Many years after the revision of 1801, the Revised Laws, which in our opinion contained more of Italian marble than Grecian Pentelic, were published in Boston, upon the order of Chancellor KENT, who, in his opinion, considered the work of his associates, Jones and Varick, as a mere compilation, and the Statutes which they contained, as mere statutes, and the Statutes which they contained, they are chiefly. Many years after the revision of 1801, the Revised Laws, which in our opinion contained more of Italian marble than Grecian Pentelic, were published in Boston, upon the order of Chancellor KENT, who, in his opinion, considered the work of his associates, Jones and Varick, as a mere compilation, and the Statutes which they contained, as mere statutes, and the Statutes which they contained, they are chiefly. Many years after the revision of 1801, the Revised Laws, which in our opinion contained more of Italian marble than Grecian Pentelic, were published in Boston, upon the order of Chancellor KENT, who, in his opinion, considered the work of his associates, Jones and Varick, as a mere compilation [illegible] Dr. McElheran, delivered a highly interesting lecture on Tuesday evening, to a crowded audience, at the Stuyvesant Institute.

[illegible]

The lecturer began by pointing out the fact that the great inventions and means of progress have been the contemporaneous more miserable and degraded class Pagan slaves, who were never brought in contact with the English operatives and women and children. The inventions and blessings that might have, are turned into a curse by being monopolized.

England has become a monopolist among the nations by an unscrupulous policy to bind war into subjection that exhibit manufacturing or maritime preparation. As long as she has a superior Navy, she can make war when and where she pleases, and monopolize and monopoly of manufactures, and wealth and consequent power.

The English Constitution is a sham—the working classes have no vote nor trial by jury. The Queen is a mere thing for exhibition. The Government of England is the landlords, money lords, State Church, and the army.

The lecturer sketched out the origin and nature of the great English monopolies in land-money and money; in the political engine called a State Church; in the monopoly of the sword or rod of war, and the stamped press to mislead the people. All these monopolies are so very powerful, and so intimately combined with each other against the people, that the latter have no hope of amelioration so long as the monopolies exist. The monopolies of land and of money are not so injurious in regard to the amount of wealth heaped, as of land laid waste, as to the barriers which they place in the way of development of resources. Political economy is a true science, like chess, and the people are scientifically swindled because they do not understand the game. The object is to make money scarce and hands plenty in the market—making flesh and blood mere chattels to be regulated by supply and demand.

In order to secure an alliance and raise an aristocratic garrison, England is extending her system of monopolies here, through the agency of the money kings and political economy. The Pilgrims, who wish to establish distinct castes,—the Bigot party, who want a core of State Church and compulsory bible education,—and, lastly, the Orange party, Nativing party, who delight to curse the Pope and bless "the mother country," and who are endeavoring to set up a standing exclusive army to support the united monopolies of the English and American aristocracy.

The doctor next entered into a very able and ingenious train of argumentation in support of home manufactures. He said: "In short the American Democracy are acting like children or rude Indians by giving away their treasure of gold, cotton and corn, in order to get back a perishable moiety in a manufactured state. England takes a ton of cotton, sends you back in payment a pound of cloth, and makes wealth by manufacturing and exporting all the rest. Then for cutlery, crockery, blankets and linen you must give corn or gold, as it suits her convenience. In a word, you give England all the unwrought treasure to work upon; you enable her to make things cheap; you beggar yourself of gold and make bread dear by exportation; you prevent yourselves from working cheaply at home in order to buy cheap goods from England.

"If you push these ideas of a false system of political economy to their conclusion, you ought to get your cotton raised in Australia, and ships built in Canada, if California could only produce gold enough to keep you pattively alive. Remember the fate of Spain. It is not gold, but industry and the development of internal resources that make a nation happy and independent.

America must cease to be a Colony. She must have home manufactures, and learn the great truth that population is wealth, if she aspire to become an independent Empire.

Before the conclusion, the doctor administered the pledge which he had proposed in his first lecture, as follows: "I solemnly promise on my honor that I will encourage American manufactures, and I further promise that I will administer this pledge to others."

The doctor then announced that in compliance with the wishes of many friends, he would deliver a lecture on Patrick's Night on the Celt and Saxon Races.

The lecturer was highly applauded throughout.

Anti-Slavery Lectures.

The ninth lecture of the Course given under the auspices of the New-York Anti-Slavery Society was delivered on Tuesday evening, by HORACE GREELEY, Esq., before a rather sparse audience, assembled in the Tabernacle. The subject was the "Influence of Slavery on Labor."

The lecturer commenced his discourse by adverting to the fact that in those climates where the least labor was required for sustaining man, there would be found the greatest moral ruggedness, and he cited in proof the historical facts of the fixed, of the fall of Revolutionism, Pompeii, &c. By work man perfects himself. By conquering the rude elements of nature he becomes a man. So long as the earth produces all irregularities become gradually regular. Around us Sebastopol is the struggle of life being enacted, but in Iowa and the new countries of our land. It is not with the sword, but with the plow, that man is cutting his way to success.

The institution of Slavery the lecturer regarded as the legitimate result of the wrong idea of the world upon labor. Teach the world that labor should be shunned, and that wars and conquest are legitimate, and Slavery follows as a matter of course. But though an eternal law may be a long time defied, yet we cannot avoid the penalty. A household of slaveholders and slaves contains too many crushed hopes to remain ever quiet. The man which knocks when labor is free die out in slavery. The people of the South are dependent upon the North for all of the improvements they enjoy, and the people live in less luxury than in the North. So long as field hands are worth $1,000, and carpenters $1,500, so long must free labor be degraded below the point at which it should stand. The lecturer believed that if a guarantee could be given of sufficient labor for support in the North for all who reside here, then there could not exist one of the prominent arguments, and indeed one of the most plausible arguments, in favor of Slavery as against Freedom, and he desired to see Anti-Slavery men engage in the work of accomplishing the guarantee of comfort of life to all, so that once secured, and many hundreds, and perhaps thousands of slaves would be at once freed. Alms is a small patch for so wide and deep an ulcer as social and physical suffering; but once dignify labor, give it what it earns, and Slavery will die. That individual in the Fifth-avenue, who, because he is preeminently rich, denies another person who labors his inferior because he is relatively poor, is one of the best allies of a Southern slaveholder, and when the Union needs to be again saved, his name will be found on a Wall-street Cotton Committee. The speaker believed that a grand revolution in the South could be effected by a few colonies of industrious men from the North, and showing the results of free principles. For indeed if the capital of the free colored population in a Northern State would concentrate its energy and produce a township and establish thereon agriculture, mechanics, manufactures and education, it would do more to remove the curse of Chattel Slavery than all the speeches ever delivered. The lecturer then paid an eloquent tribute to the self-sacrificing efforts of those Freemen who had gone to Kansas to establish there the institutions of freedom.

New-York City Temperance Union.

The annual Quarterly Session of the New York City Temperance Union was held on Tuesday evening, at the Bowery room, Clinton Hall, Astor-place. There was a large attendance, and the appearance of the Temperance efforts of the young men taking part in the exercises of the evening was shown to encouraging advantage.

Mr. SOUTHGATE LEVITTE WRIGHT, President elect of the Congress of Literary Societies, during the Temperance Union, made an opening Presidential address on the subject of "Taking an unfashionable course." Labor, he said, had its enjoyments, but the very necessity there was a which made it called. Labor was not merely to supply physical wants, but to supply the demands of the intellectual nature, which is the distinctive feature of man. Intellectual culture is enhancing taxes, rolling below, as the tenant, the tenant on the swell. It was only a great school established by the Almighty for individual education. Here were to be learned the problems of every day life—the true sources of mental and moral power. The fact that one has to labor does not annul the fact that he has an intellectual nature, nor did it course neglect in this respect. Life, the speaker said, had its relations where this inner nature should be forgotten, as one in connection of life's common relations as he becomes conscious of their deeper meaning. The difficulty is, he does not read as he ought from the open page spread before him. The great conflict of life was not in the schools, but in the active scenes of business, where men are tempted and where the strong, hard and steady men are wanted; where life is real; where the hand of toil and of genius overcome resistance, where thought ripens into speedy action, and where action gives energy to thought. The address concluded with enforcing upon the young men present the truth that minds immortal and capable of infinite expansion were theirs; that their highest happiness lay in its proper cultivation, and that uncultivated they were but like the brutes that perish.

JOHN B. GARDNER, of the Franklin Literary Association, followed with a brief and well-written essay on "Emotion and Passion." The essay beautifully illustrated the dominance of emotion in youth, and its effect as shown in the first indescribable thrill of the just developing intellect, as it becomes cognizant of a sublime thought, a grand landscape, or a master painting.

W. E. FALES, of Harlem Lyceum, read a Poem on "Life," which was well conceived, very well written, and well received. There was not preserved throughout, however, that ease and smoothness of versification which characterize maturer poets.

WM. CAMPBELL, of the Clinton Union, followed with an essay on the "March of Republics." It was a spirited production, reviewing, in quite a masterly manner, the rise and growth of ancient and modern Republics, and their bearing upon general progress and destiny. In closing, he was loudly applauded.

Next came a "Recitation," by BENJAMIN W. HITCHCOCK, of the Hamilton Literary Union. Hamlet's soliloquy—"To be, or not to be"—the piece chosen, was done with exceeding falsetness. The prefatory apology was in bad taste.

A "Closing Address," by G. W. SOUTHWICK, concluded the evening exercises. The Address was almost too lengthy, but evinced careful thought and correct observation. It was on the subject of Education, and contained suggestions that would have done credit to a much older head.

The President announced for this evening a debate on the question—"Has the Drama, as at present presented, a moral and educational tendency?"

Commissioners of Emigration.

A regular weekly meeting of the Commissioners of Emigration was held yesterday afternoon. Commissioners VERPLANCK, CRAPTREE, KENNEDY, KELLY, DUNLAP and WITTHAUS were present.

The Committee appointed to cooperate with the Committee of the Common Council for the passage, by Congress, of a law of protection against emigrant passengers, reported progress, and signified their intention to send a Committee to Washington to aid in the passage of such a law.

A resolution was adopted authorizing the Vice President of the Board to furnish the Senate of the State, in accordance with a resolution adopted by that body, the names of all ships, and the masters thereof, bringing pauper or convict emigrants to this port, from the 1st of January, 1852, by whom sent, and to whom such vessels were consigned, &c.

On motion of Commissioner KELLY, the following preamble and resolution were adopted:

Whereas, In many of the Wards aid and assistance are tendered to Emigrants by the various Ward Relief Associations, therefore

Resolved, That a Committee of two, together with the Vice-President, be authorized to expend a sum not exceeding fifty dollars, to each of such of the Ward Relief Associations as they may designate, to extend aid to recently-arrived immigrants, where the same may appear necessary.

Commissioners KELLY, KENNEDY, (and the Vice-President,) were appointed a Committee to carry the resolution into effect.

The summary statements of the week show that the aggregate receipts of the Commission from the 1st to the 24th inst., amount to $16,375 22, and the disbursements for the same time $21,215 97. Balance in Bank, $46,251 71; due counties, $15,042 72. Whole number of immigrants arrived up to the 24th, 11,133; number of inmates in Institutions, 3,000.

The annual report of the Commission is now under consideration for corrections. It is a long and interesting document, and will be submitted to the State Senate in a few days.

A Queer Complaint.

A young scion of "Faderland" entered the Mayor's office yesterday afternoon in a terrible state of excitement, and insisted on making a complaint against a Jew clothier in Chatham-street, of whom he alleged he had just bought a coat, "rich vosh vort not ven cent." The coat it seems was rather a tight fit for him, for in endeavoring to button it, he tore all the buttons off, and inflicted a bad tear in the back. He was informed by the Clerk that the Mayor had no jurisdiction over such complaints, and that he must be careful in future in making a bargain with a Jew not to get "sold" himself. The victim of misplaced confidence departed, sorrowing over the loss of his buttons, and the rather old appearance of his new coat.

The Jewelry Robbery in John-street.

The robbery of gold watches, bracelets, and other valuable jewelry from the Importing House of MESSRS. MONTAGE & VAN EPS, No. 15 John-street, —an account of which was published yesterday,— does not reach the amount that was first supposed. The firm deal largely with extensive manufacturers in Europe, and during the past nine months their confidential clerk, WM. C. VOLKMAN, was in the habit of purloining costly articles from the various invoices, until he had stolen upwards of $1,000 worth and then made his escape. The plunder thus far recovered by Officer MARTIN, and another lot which he will eventually secure, will entirely cover the loss of the firm.

Careless Driving.

The license of a hack driver named MICHAEL MCCARDEN, was revoked yesterday afternoon by the Mayor, because, on the evening of Dec. 23d last, while driving at a furious rate through Rivington-street, he knocked down, run over, and seriously injured Mr. BUCKLE, of No. 123 Clinton-street.

The Recent Assault—The Cooper House.

We have received a note from the Cooper House proprietor, stating that the assault recently committed upon one of his guests, by some rowdies, did not occur at his hotel, but in an oyster saloon opposite.

The Mayor's Black Book.

The following complaints were entered on the Complaint Book at the Mayor's office yesterday:

Mr. A. Trumbull, No. 272 Hudson-street, complains that he has been made to take in his sign-boards, while his neighbors and. William Burnton, No. 241 Hudson-street, continue to hang out their signs in violation of the law.

Mr. Wm. Dodge, coal merchant, complains that the police do not prevent the numerous vagrant children from frequenting the wharves and piers, and stealing coal, sugar, coffee, &c., which he declares endangers their morals and their lives.

E. D. Burke complains that J. H. Hall & Co., No. 62 Wall-street, publishers a paper called the Ledger, almost exclusively devoted to publishing and encouraging the sale of Lottery Tickets, against the provisions of the law.

The Mayor revoked their licenses and ordered their places of business to be closed.

That the vacant houses in the upper part of the City are nightly broken into and pilfered by boys.

That the windows of the drug store, No. 46 Madison-street, are nightly broken by boys from 14 to 20 years of age.

That a number of boys congregate daily in Liberty-street, and throw stones in the vicinity of the Post-Office, endangering windows, &c.

Abraham Hunt, of Orchard, No. 89 Willett-street, complains that the cats have scratched for a number of boys to drive away the latter, and there is no way to rid them.

That Repeat continues to be sold in the Sixteenth Ward, in some places, on Sunday. Some days ago, [illegible] the sale, and yesterday, [illegible] That [illegible] Sabbath day, [illegible], to the great annoyance of several [illegible].

On complaint of citizens of Astoria, who had been robbed by several [illegible] men.

In the mind of the Mayor, Marshal the following complaints were entered:

Against the owner of sail No. 2,[illegible], for driving a [illegible] and pedling wood through the streets; and giving short measure.

The Mayor requests us to give notice that hereafter no complaints will be received at his office unless accompanied by the names and residences of the complainants.

LAW INTELLIGENCE.

COURT CALENDAR....THURSDAY.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT.—Nos. 47, 48, 49, 51 to 57.

SUPREME COURT—CIRCUIT—Nos. 1356, 1507, 1109, 1409, 1261, 1156, 1269, 1263, 770, 631, 1463, 1060, 1409, 665, 661, 574, 1024, 1066, 936, 1012 to 1031.

SUPERIOR COURT—Nos. 187, 193, 340, 521, 547, 559, 551, 555, 57, 417, 13, 494, 341, 394, 160, 213, 263, 273, 399, 429, 400, 97, 398, 350 to 352, 404 to 406, 368 to 374, 377 to 379.

UNITED STATES CIRCUIT COURT.—Jan. 24.

Before Judge Betts.

It was expected that the case of Ross Winans vs. The Harlem Railroad Company, another of those lengthy patent cases which come up now and then in this Court, would be commenced this morning. But Mr. Sanford, for the defendants, applied to put it over on account of the illness of Mr. Whiting, his associate, who was sick at Boston. After some discussion the trial was postponed until March.

The Jury were then discharged until next Wednesday, when some revenue cases are to be disposed of.

Judge Betts announced that he should sit to-morrow to hear some equity matters.

Decisions in Admiralty.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT

Before Judge Ingersoll.

COLLISION—TOWBOAT.

John Lyon et al. vs. The Ship Island City, &c.—The libel in this case was filed to recover the damages which were occasioned by a collision between the lighter Enterprise and the ship, which occurred in the East River on the 24 of November, 1856, at about 4 P. M. The tide was flood, and the wind was N. E., or N. E. by E. The ship had come through Hell Gate with a fair wind, bound to this port. When about opposite the sectional dock, she was taken in tow by the steamboat Tempest, to be towed to her berth, and was in tow of her, the boat being directed by the pilot of the ship, and being on her larboard side.

The lighter, having on board a cargo of almost 170 barrels of rosin, had left the foot of Montague-street, in Brooklyn, bound to a pier in New-York, near Jefferson-street, to reach which, she was compelled to tack. She made a long stretch, which brought her to about the foot of Beekman-street; then tacked and stood across the river again; and this course she did not change until just before the collision took place, when she bore away a little to avoid it; but her port bulwarks were caught by the bowsprit of the ship, and she was capsized, and her cargo was lost.

The witnesses say that the ship was not going ahead at the time of collision, but was backing; but upon this point the evidence was contradictory.

Held by the Court, That upon the evidence the lighter was careened to starboard by the collision, and that the ship was therefore moving ahead.

That the ship had the wind free, and had also the power of the steamboat to direct and control her movements, while the lighter was on the wind, and accordingly the ship, according to the nautical rules applicable to such cases, was bound to have kept out of the way of the lighter, and is therefore responsible for the collision and the damages which have been occasioned thereby.

Decree for libelants with a reference.

For libelants, Messrs. Beebe and Donohue.

For claimants, Mr. De Forest.

Wednesday, Jan. 24, 1855.

Three seamen of the ship Kathay, named Cox, Dana, and Nichols, were put on trial this morning, charged with larceny committed on board the ship.

Mr. Spencer appeared for the accused, who were acquitted by the jury.

The Court then took up the case of Clement A. Griscom Ordt, et al, vs. The Ocean Steam Navigation Company, which was commenced yesterday, but not finished. This libel is filed as owner for damages to cargo, shipped for the libelants at Havre, and received there by the defendants, and brought to this port on board the steamer Washington, in May, 1853. The cargo in question was ribbons, &c., and the libelants allege that they were damaged to the extent of $760.

The defendants claim that the goods were delivered in as good order as they were received; that the statement in the bill of lading that the goods were "in good order and condition," referred only to the outward condition of the package, and that if the goods were damaged on board the Washington, it arose from some of the causes excepted in the bill of lading.

For libelants, Mr. Butler. For claimants, Mr. A. F. Smith.

SUPREME COURT—CIRCUIT—Jan. 23.

Before Hon. Judge Mason.

PURCHASE OF STOCK—NEW-YORK AND ERIE RAILROAD.

John H. Dykers, John Alsiyne and Charles A. Jarvis vs. Thomas J. Tenbrerck.—The plaintiffs' proof of the purchase of stock by the defendant consists of three several contracts of purchase of stock, of one of which the following is a copy:

NEW-YORK, May 2, 1854.

500 Shares 71, B. C.—I have purchased of Dykers, Alsiyne & Co., five hundred shares of the stock of the New-York and Erie Railroad Company, seventy-one (71) per cent. payable and deliverable in sixty (60) days, buyer's option, with interest at the rate of six per cent. per annum. Due. W. S. HOYT.

The other two memoranda are in the same form and signed in the same manner. Mr. Hoyt testified that in all these transactions he was acting as agent for the defendant, and that he so informed the plaintiffs before and at the time of purchase. All this evidence was in due time objected to by the defendant. Defendant moves for a nonsuit—that plaintiffs' complaint be dismissed. By 2 R. S., page 136, sec. 3, "Every contract for the sale of any goods, chattels, or things in action for the price of fifty dollars or more, shall be void unless—Sec. 1. A note or memorandum of such contract be made in writing, and be signed by the parties to be charged thereby. Sec. 8. Every instrument required by any of the provisions of this title to be subscribed by any party, may be subscribed by the lawful agent of such party." The question for me to decide is, whether these contracts of purchase presented in this case are "such a memorandum in writing of a contract" as required by the statute of frauds to make the defendant liable. The contracts are in their form and individual contracts of Mr. W. S. Hoyt, and are so expressly specified. They are the very written contracts which the statute of frauds requires to make Mr. Hoyt responsible, had the purchases been made by him for his individual account. The written contracts which the statute of frauds require to make the defendant liable are written contracts of the defendant, not the written individual contracts of the person who may be an agent of his. An agent, under the eighth section, can only bind his principal by signing the instrument—the contract required to be subscribed by his principal, and such contract must be the contract of the principal. The fourth section of this statute shows what memorandum in writing the Legislature deemed necessary for an agent to make for the purpose of binding his principal. Sec. 4. Whenever goods shall be sold at public auction, and the auctioneer shall, at the time of sale, enter in a salesbook a memorandum specifying the nature and price of the property sold, the terms of the sale, the name of purchaser, and the name of the person upon whose account the sale is made, such memorandum shall be deemed a note of the contract of sale within the meaning of the last section." This specifies not only the terms, but the names of the contracting parties. It is the contract of the parties, signed by their agent, not the individual contract of the person who happens to be a mutual agent of the parties. There can be no question that these "memoranda in writing," upon their face, are not sufficient to make the defendant liable. The plaintiff's counsel seeks by parol testimony to supply their defect—to show by parol that, although upon their face they are individual contracts of Mr. Hoyt, yet they are the contracts of the defendant. The sole objection to this parol testimony is the statute itself, which asserts the contract must be in writing—not part in writing and part in parol. By permitting parol testimony to make or substitute a party to a written contract, all the evils would be restored that the statute was intended to eradicate—and I think in their worst features. Plaintiff's complaint dismissed, with costs.

SUPREME COURT—CIRCUIT.

Before Hon. Justice Morris.

THE NEW WORLD—BREACH OF CONTRACT.

Furniss vs. Brown.—This action, reported in yesterday's TIMES, was continued yesterday.

Mr. O'Conor, for the defendant, moved to dismiss the complaint, on the ground that it contained two inconsistent causes of action.

Mr. Noyes contra.

The Court, after a lengthy discussion, granted leave to the plaintiff to amend; the defendant to frame his answer accordingly. The parties to have the amended pleadings ready this morning.

SUPERIOR COURT—SPECIAL TERM—Jan. 24.

Before Hon. Justice Hoffman.

THE GAMBIER TREATY—THE MEXICAN CONSUL-GENERAL IN LITIGATION.

The Republic of Mexico vs. Francisco de Arangoiz.—Motion to discharge the defendant from arrest.

The defendant in this case was the Consul General for the Republic of Mexico, in the United States, and was acknowledged as a resident of New-Orleans in December 1855, by the exequatur of President Pierce.

During his sojourn there, the celebrated Gadsden Treaty was consummated, and under it $7,000,000 were paid by the United States Government to General Almonte. The Government learning this, feared that Almonte might abscond with the money and unite him-

[illegible]

NATIONAL PALACE OF MEXICO, July 9, 1854.

MOST EXCELLENT SIR: By the enclosed copy of a [illegible] from a confidential note addressed by General Almonte to this Department, your Excellency will perceive that he claims of the Government of the United States, contrary to expectation, that he was authorized by this Government to receive the seven millions of dollars of the purchase money, which engagement he obtained from the United States Treasury Department for the payment of said sum to him, the proper order of the Sub-Treasurer at New-York, whithher he proceeded in order to withdraw and deposit the funds.

Mr. Almonte states, as he himself asserts, without any authority on the part of this Government, and I must add that this step gave decided dissatisfaction, it being thought both novel and irregular.

E. S. E. flatters himself that Mr. Almonte will have been restored by an expressive but milestone and for the service of the country, but as there may arise from such an act very great inconvenience to this Government, H. S. E. has directed that at the very moment you shall receive the present note, you immediately obtain everything, and leaving the Consulate in charge of Mr. Pruyne, and without losing a single moment, proceed immediately to New-York, in order to recover the entire seven millions, this being the amount of the first instalment of the indemnity stipulated in the treaty recently negotiated with the Government of the United States, for which purpose I enclose to your Excellency the necessary order for Mr. Almonte to deliver them forthwith to you.

On receipt of the funds your Excellency will try, if it be possible, to place such sum snow or deposit it in the United States Treasury, from whence it was drawn, and there remain till further order, endeavoring also to save the expense of commissions, deposit and other charges, inasmuch as General Almonte ought not to have drawn out the money, and much less if effected at any sacrifice whatever. Should the United States Government be unwilling to consent to the return of said sum as a gratuitous deposit, it is left to your prudence to place it in different houses of standing and undoubted solvency; put him as a deposit, and if possible, without incurring any expense for commissions or otherwise, and without disposing of any sum, however small it may be, without previous orders from the Treasury Department.

If, from any motive, he should refuse to deliver, intimating to your Excellency the said sum of seven millions of dollars, you always with prudence, but always with energy, activity and zeal, to which your Excellency is obliged by the high honor and confidence that the Government bestows upon you for the service of your country—you will take all suitable measures, and forthwith present, personally, the letter of recall of Mr. Almonte, that is enclosed, and the credentials of your Excellency. Time, with the advantages of the public character conferred on you, and of which, with the hypothesis attached to, Mr. Almonte would be deprived, you may proceed, without losing a moment, to assume the property of the nation.

In another letter of the same date he was urged to proceed with the utmost caution, and if the suspicions of the Government should prove to be ill founded, to take special pains not to hurt General Almonte's feelings; and he was instructed to take the most speedy way to New-York, and to travel day and night. He was also instructed to deposit the funds, and act throughout in his own name for the purpose of preventing their being attached by creditors of the Government.

Mr. Arangoiz in accordance with these instructions proceeded immediately to New-York. He there found that Almonte had refused to deliver the money, which he accordingly received. Mr. Arangoiz, in order to allay fears, to save his Government expense, did not place the funds in any house, the usual commission in such houses being ¾ per cent., but attended to the duties and kept charge of the money himself. For this he made a charge of 1 per cent. He has since paid over to the Government all the money received except about $70,000—one per cent. on the amount which he had in charge. This he retained as a compensation for his services. The Government, upon his retaining this amount, commenced a suit against him alleging that he received the money in a fiduciary capacity and he was arrested.

He now moves to be discharged from arrest.

The motion was argued by John and W. H. Anthon, Esqs., for defendant, and Daniel Lord, Esq., for plaintiffs.

The decision of the Court is reserved.

The Empire City Bank.

SUPREME COURT—CHAMBERS.

Before Judge Roosevelt.

In the matter of the application for the appointment of a Receiver to take charge of the affairs of the Empire City Bank, additional evidence was elicited yesterday.

L. H. Church, one of the Board of Directors, was called as a witness but did not appear.

Robert Creamer, late Cashier of the Bank, was called to the stand as a witness. Mr. Creamer testified that the Bank borrowed money at the market rates, giving for the amounts certificates of deposit, and paying sometimes as high as five per cent. per month; for these amounts certificates of deposit were given; the loans were made for sixty days; he knew of four Banks paying one-quarter of one per cent. a day for specie at the time they paid five per cent. per month; the loans were made by authority of the Board of Directors; he was of the opinion that 50 per cent. might be realized on the assets; Sloan & Leggett's indebtedness was near $153,000.

The evidence of Mr. Creamer shows the following to have been the condition of the Bank on the 9th day of December—the date of its failure:

Dr.
To Depositors	$150,500 00
To Outstanding Certificates	18,000 00
Circulation	108,000 00
To Clearing-House Banks	18,000 00
Two other Items	17,000 00
Total	$296,500 00
Cr.
By Assets, $443,181 54, worth 50 per cent.	$221,590 77
United States and State Stocks in Bank Department	118,476 76
Specie and Cash items, about	5,000 00
Total	$345,067 53
Surplus	$48,567 53

COURT OF COMMON PLEAS.

THE LIABILITY OF A SPECIAL PARTNER.

Before Ingraham, First Judge.

Armand Lachaise and Victor Fauché agt. George P. Lord, Samuel N. Brown and Abiel B. Marks.—This was a motion for injunction and receiver. The plaintiffs compose the firm of Lachaise and Fauche. It appears that the defendants on the 31st December, 1850, entered into and formed a limited partnership under the statute, to commence on the 1st January, 1851, and to continue until the 31st December, 1855. The defendant, Marks, contributed $20,000 as capital to the common stock. The name of the firm was Lord & Brown. On the 14th August, 1854, the defendants gave notice of dissolution; and Mr. Marks withdrew from the concern, and the assets were transferred to Lord & Brown who continued the business under the same name. It appears that during the partnership, the defendant, Marks received at various times of the firm $18,329 60 in cash, and on the day of the notice of dissolution, notes of Lord & Brown amounting to $17,000 having a long time to run.

The notice of dissolution was filed in the County Clerk's office on the 15th of August, 1854. In November last Lord and Brown stopped payment, and are not able to pay more than fifty per cent. on the old and new liabilities. The plaintiffs allege that at the time of the sale the partnership was insolvent and the transfer is void; that the partnership, by the acts of the parties, could not terminate before the time specified in the original certificate, until the expiration of four weeks from the filing of the notice of dissolution, and advertising the same as prescribed by the statute; and that in such an event, the original capital must remain for the payment of the existing liabilities of the firm; and consequently, there was an alteration in the share or capital contributed by the special partners, "during the continuance of the partnership," in violation of the statute which renders the defendant, Marks, liable as a general partner. The plaintiffs also ask for an injunction and receiver, on the ground that the plaintiffs' claim arose under the limited partnership, and that the assets of that firm are a trust fund which must be applied pro rata to the debts created by the limited partnership.

Decision reserved.

For plaintiffs, C. Bainbridge Smith. For defendants, Daniel Lord.

MARINE COURT.

Before Judge McCarthy and a Jury.

A CHRISTMAS FESTIVITY.

Caroline Carlin vs. J. Harman Shutter.—This was an action for assault, battery, trespass and false imprisonment, in which the damages were laid at $500. It appeared that the plaintiff had a party at her rooms on the festival of Christmas, and the guests at the party indulged in sundry libations, and as the night grew fast and furious, the defendant sent for the stars and took the plaintiff to the Station-house, where she was detained until daylight, and that her relatives and friends had to quiet their jollity in most admired disorder. The defendant proved that he was the landlord of the premises, and that he was fully justified. Verdict for defendant, with $10 costs.

RIGHTS OF HACK DRIVERS.

John Carter vs. Frederick Bamfield and two others.—This was an action against two same for assault and battery, damages laid at $500. The parties are all hack drivers, and had a dispute in the month of September last as to their respective rights to the stand at the Park, near Chambers-street. One of the defendants threatened to knock the plaintiff's eye out, which induced the latter to call in a friend, and in assuming a very pugilistic attitude towards the old man Bamfield, the two sons went to the assistance of their father and indicted some blows on the head of the plaintiff, so that he and his ally came off second best. The Jury awarded the plaintiff $75.

SENTENCED TO THE STATE PRISON.—At Hudson, on Wednesday, a young man about 24 years of age, who gave his name as S. WELLS, was tried, found guilty, and sentenced to five years and six months' imprisonment in the State Prison at Clinton, for having, on the Wednesday night previous, by means of false keys, &c., entered the rooms of some of the boarders at the Badgely Hotel, in that city, where he had taken lodging for the night, and rifled their pockets.

THE LICENSE LAW IN OHIO.

Supreme Court of Ohio.—Judgments Affirmed.

Present—THURMAN, Chief Justice, and RANNEY, SCRIVENER, WARDEN and KENNON, Judges.

No. 140. Fretwell Miller et al. vs. The State.—In error to the Probate Court of Clermont County.

No. 179. Leon Geiger vs. The State.—In error to the Probate Court of Union County.

The plaintiffs in error were prosecuted for violation of the 4th section of the act of May 1, 1854, entitled, "An act to provide against the evils resulting from the sale of intoxicating liquors in the State of Ohio," which section provides: "That all places where intoxicating liquors are sold in violation of this act, shall be taken, held, and declared to be common nuisances; and all rooms, taverns, eating-houses, bazaars, restaurants, groceries, coffee-houses, cellars or other places of public resort, where intoxicating liquors are sold in violation of this act, shall be shut up and abated as public nuisances, upon the conviction of the keeper thereof, who shall be punished as hereafter provided."

Being convicted, they were respectively sentenced to pay fines and be imprisoned; and orders made that the rooms by them kept should be shut up until bond and security should be given pursuant to the 5th section of said act. To reverse which sentences and orders, these writs were brought.

THURMAN, C. J., delivered the opinion of the Court.—Held:

1. That, for aught that appears in the journals of the Senate and House of Representatives of the General Assembly, the act of May 1, 1854, entitled "An Act to provide against the evils resulting from the sale of intoxicating liquors in the State of Ohio," was constitutionally enacted.

2. That the provisions of the Constitution (art. 2, sec. 16,) that "Every bill shall be fully and distinctly read on three different days, unless, in case of urgency, three-fourths of the House, in which it shall be pending, shall dispense with this rule," does not require that every amendment to a bill shall be read three times.

3. Every reasonable intendment is to be made in favor of the proceedings of the Legislature. It is not to be presumed that the Assembly, or either House of it, has violated the Constitution. When, therefore, it appears by the journals, that a bill was amended by striking out all after the enacting clause, and inserting a "new bill," so called, it cannot be presumed that the matter inserted was upon a different subject from that stricken out; especially when the matter inserted is consistent with the title borne by the bill before such amendment. This is the more obvious, since the Constitution provides that "No bill shall contain more than one subject, which shall be clearly expressed in its title." (Art. 2, sec. 16.) Nor does the fact that the inserted matter is called a "new bill" prove that it was not an amendment.

4. No bill can become a law without receiving the number of votes required by the Constitution, and if it was found by an inspection of the legislative journals, that what purports to be a law upon the statute book, was not passed by the requisite number of votes, it might, possibly, be the duty of the courts to treat it as a nullity. But it does not follow that an act that was passed by a constitutional majority is invalid, because, in its consideration, the Assembly did not strictly observe the mode of procedure prescribed by the Constitution. There are provisions in that instrument that are directory in their character, the observance of which by the Assembly is secured by their sense of duty and official oaths, and not by any power of the Courts.

5. Neither the 1st, 2d, 3d, 4th or 6th sections of the act under consideration, properly construed, is repugnant to the Constitution. In saying this, we do not mean to affirm that the Legislature has the power to wholly prohibit traffic in intoxicating liquors in this State. Without deciding whether the Assembly has any power over this subject, in virtue of the general grant of Legislative power in sec. 1 of art. 2 of the Constitution, we hold that the enactment of said sections of the law is authorized by the express grant of power in sec. 18 of art. 15, in these words: "No license to traffic in intoxicating liquors shall hereafter be granted in this State, but the General Assembly may, by law, provide against evils resulting therefrom."

6. A violation of either of the 1st, 2d, or 3d sections of this act, subjects the offender to the penalties mentioned in the 1st clause of sec. 8. It is not necessary, in order to incur the penalties, that all three sections be violated.

7. If a sale violates all three sections, the offender may be prosecuted under either of them; and his conviction or acquittal will bar a prosecution, for the same sale, under either of the other two sections.

8. But a conviction or acquittal under the 1st, 2d, or 3d sections, is no bar to a prosecution under the 4th.

9. To convict for a violation of the second section, it is necessary to aver in the information, and prove on the trial, that the seller knew the buyer to be a minor; and to convict for a violation of the 3d section, it is necessary to aver and prove, in like manner, that the seller knew the buyer to be intoxicated, or, in the habit of getting intoxicated. (Birney's case, 8 O. R. 237, followed and approved.)

10. To convict for a violation of the 4th section, it is necessary to aver in the information, and prove on the trial, that the place where the liquor was sold was a place of public resort. And the proof must also show that it was a place where liquors were habitually sold in violation of the act. A single sale does not make the place a nuisance, or the seller "keeper," within the meaning of the act. A series of sales is necessary.

11. No order to shut up, or abate the place, can rightfully be made, unless the nuisance continues to exist at the time such order is made. Unless, therefore, the Court is satisfied that, at the time of making the order, the place is kept for the sale of liquors in violation of the act, no order should be made. For it is the unlawful business, (and not the place per se,) that creates the nuisance; and, hence, where the business has ceased, there is no nuisance to abate. No man's property can be forfeited as a punishment for crime, the Constitution providing, that no conviction shall work a "forfeiture of estate." (Art. 1, sec. 12.) Hence, there is no power to deprive a man of the use of his property, unless it be necessary, in order to abate an existing nuisance.

12. The order is not to be directed to any officer. It is not an order to be executed by an officer. It is an order to the person convicted, obedience to which may be enforced, if the nuisance be continued, by attachment for contempt of Court. The order being made, if the convict cease to keep a house of public resort, of the character named or referred to in the 4th section, he need give no bond, and having so ceased, no attachment can properly be issued against him. But if he desire to continue keeping such house of public resort, he must, in order to avoid an attachment, give bond. He has his election, to quit keeping a house of public resort, or to give bond, and keep it without violating the law.

THE LIQUOR LAW.

An act to provide against the evils resulting from the sale of Intoxicating Liquors in the State of Ohio.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Ohio, that it shall be unlawful for any person or persons, by agent or otherwise, to sell, in any quantity, intoxicating liquors to be drank in, upon or about the building or premises where sold, or to sell such intoxicating liquors to be drank in any adjoining room, building or premises, or other place of public resort connected with said building.

SEC. 2. That it shall be unlawful for any person or persons, by agent or otherwise, to sell intoxicating liquors to minors, unless upon the written order of their parents, guardians or family physicians.

SEC. 3. That it shall be unlawful for any person or persons, by agent or otherwise, to sell intoxicating liquors to persons intoxicated, or who are in the habit of getting intoxicated.

SEC. 4. That all places where intoxicating liquors are sold in violation of this act, shall be taken, held and declared to be common nuisances, and all rooms, taverns, eating-rooms, bazaars, restaurants, groceries, coffee-houses, cellars, or other places of public resort, where intoxicating liquors are sold in violation of this act, shall be shut up and abated as public nuisances, upon the conviction of the keeper thereof, who shall be punished as hereafter provided.

SEC. 5. That it shall be unlawful for any person to get intoxicated, and every person found in a state of intoxication, shall, upon conviction thereof, be fined in the sum of five dollars, and imprisoned in the county jail not more than three, nor less than one day, and pay the cost of prosecution.

SEC. 6. That every person who shall by the sale of intoxicating liquors, contrary to the act, cause the intoxication of any other person, such person or persons shall be liable for, and compelled to pay a reasonable compensation to, any person who may take charge of and provide for such intoxicated person, and one dollar per day in addition thereto, for every day that such intoxicated person shall be kept in consequence of such intoxication, which sum may be recovered in a civil action, before any court having jurisdiction thereof.

SEC. 7. That every wife, child, parent, guardian, employer, or other person who shall be injured in person or property, or means of support by any intoxicated person, or in consequence of the intoxication, habitual or otherwise, of any person, shall, with, child, parent, guardian, employer, or other person, have a right of action in his or her own name, against any person who shall, by or contrary to the provisions of this act, have caused the intoxication of such person, and any number of persons may be joined in such action, and recover such damages, as to a jury, shall seem proper; and a married woman shall have the same, and the

[illegible]

State of Ohio, ——County, ss.—Before me, A. B., a justice of the peace of said County

[illegible]

THE DAILY TIMES (Morning and Evening) [illegible] to any part of the country at SIX DOLLARS [illegible]

THE SEMI-WEEKLY TIMES is published on Tuesday and Friday of each week, containing all the reading matter of the Daily, and is sent to subscribers at THREE DOLLARS per annum.

THE WEEKLY TIMES contains a selection from the reading matter of the Daily, and is sent to mail subscribers TWO DOLLARS per annum. The copies will be sent the Saturday Delivery.

Payments in all cases must be made in advance.

Congressional.

In the Senate, yesterday, the Army Appropriation bill was the chief subject under consideration. A number of important amendments were made, and the aggregate amount very much increased. A bill from the Committee on Commerce was reported by Mr. [illegible], to carry the Reciprocity Treaty into effect. The same Senator asked that the Committee be discharged from considering the petition presented on the previous day, in relation to the Hell Gate obstructions, on the ground that the State of New-York had not taken any such measure.

In the House, the French Spoliation bill was discussed at considerable length, but no final action was had. It is thought the bill will pass.

The Senate Bill to Protect Life and Health on Passenger Ships.

"Mortality at Sea,"—"Cholera on Shipboard,"—"The Wrongs of Emigrants on board Passenger Ships,"—these are collocations of words with which the papers are filled every Fall, and which philanthropic men are often found repeating. How to be rid of the plague that they suggest has been the solemn study of some of our best men for many years. Standing in the way of any radical reform are the avarice of shipowners, the pride and tyranny of domineering masters, the apathy of enforcing good laws and a culpable ignorance on the part of the people of the extent to which the abuses are carried.

Attention was very generally aroused to the subject a year ago last Fall by the unprecedented mortality at sea reported by ships arriving from Bremen and Liverpool. During the month of November, on board of 28 ships that sailed this port from across the water, cholera raged. In them, 13,788 passengers had embarked, but 1,141 of the number died on the voyage, and some 4,000 or 5,000 more were attacked with cholera and recovered. The press was loud in its demands for some system of prevention. In response to these demands, our worthy Senator from New-York, Mr. [illegible] Fish, interested himself to probe the evil to its depth. He brought the matter to the ear of Congress, and when a Select Committee was appointed, of which he was chairman, turned searchers of inquiry to those most likely to be familiar with the subject, held personal interviews with those who "had an opinion," and on the basis of an extensive acquaintance with facts, devised a plan of reform. On the 2d of August last he submitted a report, accompanied by a bill, which passed at once to its second reading. Deferring till it was a second time read, considered as in Committee of the Whole, and reported to a Select Committee. On Friday last it was reported again, considerably modified. It was the bill as it now stands amended before the Senate, which we published at length in Wednesday's DAILY TIMES.

It would be strange if such terrible abuses could be cured by the enforcement of any one law. But if this act shall be passed by Congress, it would seem as if we only needed honest and efficient executors of the law, utterly to extinguish the immorality and crime, if not to displace all the suffering attendant upon this outrageous system.

Let us look more closely at the provisions of the bill. It provides that every consignment ship shall have a certain space of upper deck clear for the exercise of passengers, and limits the amount of cargo or stores that shall be carried on that deck. No emigrant vessel may take more than two passengers to every five tons of the vessel's tonnage; nor between October first and April first, more than one for every three tons of tonnage. The decency and cleanliness is cared for under it, far more effectually than has been the case. It gives a greater number of cubic feet to each passenger than heretofore,—forbids carrying passengers on any deck where the distance is less than six feet between decks, or on more than the two upper decks of three-deckers. In vessels carrying passengers on one deck only, each passenger is entitled to fourteen clear superficial feet of deck and seven feet between decks, or if less than seven feet between decks, to sixteen superficial feet of decks. Where two decks are used for passengers, on the upper one, each passenger is entitled to seven feet of perpendicular, and eighteen of clear superficial feet of deck; if the perpendicular is less than seven feet to eighteen feet of deck. On the lower deck, if the perpendicular distance is seven feet, he is entitled to eighteen feet of deck, or if it is less than seven feet perpendicular, to twenty-two feet of deck. And this superficies allowed is exclusive of berth-room. For violation of this regulation there is a fine upon the captain of $100 for each passenger on board, and imprisonment of not more than one year. Enough if it is only enforced. But if more than twenty passengers beyond the limit of the law are brought, the ship is the forfeit. Similarly stringent penalties put the seal upon each other of the sections.

There may be but two rows of berths (of two tiers each) on each deck, no berths to be occupied by two persons except those made 6 feet in width. The hatchways are to have houses over them, and to be so built that on one side or other a door may always be left [illegible]

[illegible] with so high wind that it will require a hearty sea to dash over them. Two ventilators must be fitted in each vessel, and each of a given size. These are important improvements. Are things here, if the she lying nearest the ventilating port-hole feels that the draught of air is unpleasantly strong upon him, he may shut up the ventilator and all the other passengers must suffocate for his fancy.

The "camboose" is to be 4 feet long, and 18 inches wide for every 200 passengers, and in this ratio for any greater number. The provisions to be taken in differ with the length of the voyage. From New-York to Liverpool the voyage is reckoned at 70 days' sail, between Jun. 16 and Oct. 14, and 80 in the Fall and early winter. Every passenger is entitled, at this season of the year, during the voyage, to 60 gallons of water, 25 pounds of bread, 10 pounds of wheat flour, 20 of oatmeal, 20 of rice, 20 of beans, 20 of potatoes, 5 of sugar, 1½ of tea or 2½ of coffee, 20 ounces of salt, 5 gills of vinegar, 10 pounds of salt pork, and 15 of beef. During the Fall these items are to be increased one and a half-sevenths, and between any of the German ports of Europe and the United States, add three-sevenths to the quantities named. This food is to be cooked daily and given out between fixed hours,—breakfast between 6 and 8 o'clock A. M., and dinner between noon and 2 o'clock P. M. These "fixed hours" are important. Favoritism rules now at the camboose door. The stout man, or the distributing officer's pet woman may get an early share, while the weak or unpopular applicant is pushed off till it is too late to get a supply, or till a storm rising, shuts off all opportunity to deal out more. If there is any failure in the above, it is in not providing a larger supply of food that needs no cooking, to meet the emergency of those rough times when the camboose fire cannot be kept up, and consequently, cooking is out of the question.

The Captain must have printed copies of the rules of the ship posted up, and must furnish each passenger with one. If any one refuses to conform to them, the Captain must make a note of it in his log-book, be sure of a witness to his proceeding, read his entry to the insurgent, and then he may remove him to close quarters,—elsewhere, if he deem it necessary; i. e., he may imprison him. It is his business to enforce cleanliness, and the Courts will see him safely through if he takes the precautions named above. But now if a passenger is mutinous, and the Captain enforces obedience, the Captain is liable to be overhauled by the Courts, and fined or imprisoned for assault and battery. Yet a ship Captain who has not power to enforce regulations for securing cleanliness and order, should no more be held responsible for the lack of those qualities than if he were rusticating in back-woods, instead of walking the quarter-deck, clothed in the unsubstantial name of a man of authority.

The berths for females are to be separated from those of males by substantial bulkheads, and the intrusion on the part of crews is to be carefully provided against. If this simple section will prove a bulkhead sufficiently strong to separate the sexes from each other and keep the crews away from between decks, the middle passage will lose its chief horrors at once. For by this shameful abuse Ruin secures its hundreds and and thousands of the young, who come on board pure and free from vice, and hopeful, and who leave it polluted, miserably debased and utterly outcast.

Ample provisions are made for the inspection of vessels on their departure—less ample for their examination on arrival. But it is on the arrival that an inspection most clearly reveals what may have been the neglect of officers or the deficiency of outfit. It is wise, however, to take care that if any deaths have occurred on board, the Captain shall pay over all money received from the deceased for passage or expenses. There is no remedy like the "money-remedy" for even such fearful mortality as we seek to prevent; this simple provision will do wonders to protect life.

A true list of passengers, with the name, age, sex, occupation, nativity, &c., is to be made out by every master, and returned to the proper authorities. Also, if any deaths occur, descriptions of the dying, and reports of all moneys received from passengers on all accounts whatever, to be made and published. In other words, under this act, if it becomes a law, emigrant passengers are to be treated at least as well as bales of goods, or boxes, and to be accounted for as sacredly. An approach towards humanity will be attempted, and whether or not all the present abuses on emigrant ships are removed, their existence shall be, hereafter, rather the fault of inefficient executors than of incompetent laws to abate them.

"Outrages"—A Short Supply.

We greatly mistake if, under the new dispensation—under the stay-at-home-and-be-satisfied policy which the Administration is supposed to have adopted, there will not be a great dying out of "outrages" upon our flag. Now, the "outrage" is an article which is found implicitly to obey the law of trade that "the supply will equal the demand so soon as the demand is made known." When Fillibustering is the order, and the history of Texas is to be reenacted in every pleasantly-located and weakly-governed country adjacent or near our possessions, it is an affair of everyday occurrence. Let it be honestly inferred that we want and are willing to absorb Chihuahua, and we will warrant an "outrage" for every mail from the South. Let Sonora be announced as a fit State to be anlexed, and instantly Guaymas shall be too hot with "outrages" for our people to think of with patience. Let Lower California be coveted, and out of every dozen half-starved Indians on the peninsula our vigorous filibusters on the Pacific coast will find "outrages" spun for them, wherever the flag should be planted in defiance of their dozen for days successively, and plentiful potations of grog be furnished to enable them up to the task. Havana "outrages" outnumber their exported boxes of oranges when our appetites are sharp set for the Gem of the Antilles. And the Dominican supply is more abundant than we can possibly look after, so long as the Caznean Treaty is looked upon as worth the ratification.

But the moment that it is given out that we have had enough—that Mr. Pierce does not want any more land—that the Cabinet is satisfied to let Long Island remain the largest island in the country's possession, our flag comes to be a very respectable piece of bunting, which nobody dreams of insulting; our Consuls are treated like gentlemen, and their authority is undoubted. A great breeder of "outrages" is your covetousness.

Cabinet Breaking.

The Herald makes poor work with its attempted "sensations" this season. They cannot be made to go. The Mechanics' Bank and its million of Corporation money; the Academy of Music and its Relief Ball, and the South-street flour stores, with their accumulation of Breadstuffs, were all left in quiet, after the Herald had exhausted its sympathies with the leveling spirit in the Park. The worst of the alien demagogues who prated of equal rights, common property and common money, could not be tempted to rest a single overt act of violence on the countenance and promised support of this notorious journal. And so that sensation was a failure. Even the Park meetings themselves dissolved as if in very contempt of the praise of the Herald.

The next essay was in exploding the Cabinet at Washington. Shut out as the Herald and its stupid reporters at Washington have long been from every respectable avenue to official information at the Capital, the trick, now become stale, of bogus dispatches, was resorted to, in the hope that by repeating the fabrication of Cabinet trouble every morning, something of a "sensation" might be created, or the popular attention diverted, if only for a day, to the exclusive news of the Herald. The game has been played out; the Cabinet remains intact; the "sensation" is postponed; and the Herald must try on some new scheme of charlatanry.

Our readers will have noticed in our special correspondence from Washington of yesterday—and the same assurances are repeated this morning—that such a thing as a break up in the Cabinet has neither been discussed nor thought of by the President. It is fortunate for the country, just now, that such is the case. Neither Mr. MARCY nor Mr. GUTHRIE could be spared with profit to the foreign and financial interests committed to the charge of their respective Departments. It is not at all plausible to suppose that the President would consent to the withdrawal of either from his Cabinet; nor is there the slightest reason to suppose that any other member is in disfavor, or that there is a want of harmony in the Executive counsels. In short, the fabrication of the Herald is wholesale.

Shipwrecks near Home.

The approaches to the Harbor of New-York are not perilous. Ships need not go to pieces if there is a fog upon the water. Sea captains, skillful men in their profession, have navigated their vessels for years past in safety, and fleets will sail into port and out of it to-day, without fear, sustaining no damage. Yet every gale that blows brings a budget of reports of terrible disasters close at our doors. But a few weeks have passed since the catastrophe of the packet-ship New Era hurried two hundred unhappy emigrants into sudden graves. The recklessness of Captains and their incompetency as navigators are the inciting causes of many similar disasters.

The past year has been remarkably prolific of marine disasters, and numerous wrecks have occurred near this port and on the coast of New-Jersey,—a greater proportion, perhaps, than has fallen to the lot of any like extent of territory. The alarming frequency of these events has aroused the attention of the Government. Early in the present month, the Secretary of the Navy addressed a note to Commodore MORRIS, Chief of the Bureau of Ordnance and Hydrography, inquiring whether "something may not be done to arrest these dreadful disasters, and whether proper Sailing Directions exist." By order of the Secretary, Commodore MORRIS transmitted a copy of this communication to Lieutenant MAURY, Superintendent of the National Observatory. Mr. MAURY is good authority on such matters, and his observations give little encouragement to ship-masters who neglect their duty. He states that he has examined the subject with care; that the results of investigation encourage the belief "that the way from sea to Sandy Hook can be made so plain to navigators that any one who will heed caution" may find his way in the thickest fog. The approaches of this port are well marked, and with these marks well described, there is no excuse for stranding a vessel. It has been announced that Mr. MAURY is at work upon a new chart, which will presently be published at a nominal cost, so that no ship-master need run risk of damage through ignorance. Thus much for the action of Government officers. It remains to be considered whether a ship-master is not guilty of an act worse than mere neglect, when his ship not only goes to pieces within hail of port, but when her loss entails the destruction of human life.

The Grand Jury of the United States Court, sitting in this City, have presented the case of the Captain of the New Era in a strong light. The circumstances which attended the loss of that vessel were such that they seem to require a more searching investigation than has yet been accorded to them.

The occurrence of ship disasters at sea is lamentable enough. At our doors they are [illegible]

[illegible] Week, [illegible] they seek to be [illegible]

The Successful Claimants.

We do not see that there is any serious irregularity in the election of Mr. HARLAN to the Senate of the United States by the Joint Convention of the two Houses of the Iowa Legislature. The record of that Convention, whether made on the journal of the Lower or Upper House, or both, will be the warrant of the Governor in granting the certificate of election. There is no question that the joint meeting was properly and regularly constituted. What the factious majority in the Senate did or refused to do, after retiring to their own Chamber, is no part of the proceeding. The Convention met and balloted. Then adjourned. And subsequently reassembled on their own adjournment, and elected the Senator; a quorum of both Houses being present.

The case would have stood differently if such quorum had failed to attend on the second meeting. But the attempt of the majority of the Senate to defeat their own order, was a failure, made so by the attendance of a sufficient number of the Democratic members to constitute a quorum. A somewhat similar attempt was made in Tennessee in 1841, and it was successful in defeating an election, because the whole of the Democratic members of the Senate declined to meet in Convention a second time, and part of the House also withdrew, on the plea that it was no Convention while the President of the Senate was not in the Chair. The act was revolutionary and in contempt of the Constitution, and the party to it were visited by signal defeat at the succeeding popular election.

Mr. John Mitchel.

This gentleman is certainly the most unfortunate of Irish "patriots." His career in this country, from his first landing at San Francisco, where he denounced the lady sovereign of Great Britain as a "she tyrant," to his last demonstration in Ohio, has been a failure throughout, whether directed to speech-making, journalism or dueling. The last, he experimented upon with Col. SCHOULER, the able, and we must add from a long personal acquaintance with him, amiable editor of the Cincinnati Gazette. The honors with which he may have fattered himself that he come off at Zanesville, are sadly tarnished by the transfer of the correspondence to the columns of the Cincinnati press. The article from Mr. SCHOULER which we copy this morning, makes havoc with the pretext upon which Mr. MITCHEL dispatched his hostile message to Mr. S. The point made in regard to the violation of parole in Australia may be a question for civil argument, as Mr. M. himself voluntarily made it in his own paper, but nothing to fight about after it has been before the public for nearly two years. Mr. M. will find it harder work, if possible, to make his way to popular favor in the West by the help of the duello, than he did in the East, as an ill judging orator and worse trained journalist.

We are reminded, by this occurrence, of the following promise made by Mr. M., on his recent retirement from the Citizen, that, for the "next four years," he would "efface" himself, and sink out of sight. Scarcely as many weeks have elapsed before we find him figuring before the public in a character even less commendable than that of the "egotistical" editor of the Citizen:

"I have to apologize to my readers for all this egotism. However distasteful to myself, the present occasion made it necessary; but it shall not occur again. For the next four years at least, I sink out of sight, and efface myself; content to have rigged this bark, the Citizen—fairly launched her on the wide waters of public opinion, and steered her amidst all the rocks and shoals of her first year's voyage—dashing her stem on, you may say, against every one of them—but this, after all, only proves the staunch seaworthiness of the vessel."

Snakes in Your Pantries.

In these days of degeneracy, it does one good to see the giant blows that DR. WILLIAM A. ALCOTT, of Auburndale, Mass., inflicts upon the great enemy of the human race, and especially of children—saleratus. This terrible foe to our health he has fought nobly now for many years. He fights it with facts and arguments, spreading abroad stories of its fatal effects enough to frighten our housekeepers into as much dread of it as of arsenic, or "calomy" itself. The doctrine is simple and easy of popular apprehension. It is this: An excess of saleratus is poison; then, of course, a less of excessive use cannot be entirely innocuous. This is the same precious argument which led our friend Bobby Rednose to abandon the use of water as a beverage, because his friend Tim lost his life from an excess of water, and when it was only applied externally, off the end of Pier No. 1. It is a knock-down argument, and ought not to be answered.

The learned doctor thinks that of the 300,000 children that die annually in the United States, 100,000 die from the effects of saleratus! Perhaps they do; but then the snuffing of tobacco smoke into children's delicate noses must kill out 200,000, and tight-lacing on the part of mothers must kill another hundred thousand; and about as many more die of croup, and convulsions and diseases which obtuser doctors recognize; and several thousand die of the bad smells of the city. So it is pretty evident that the mortality bills are not half large enough to accommodate all our "fatal" fancies. Death is always lurking in some people's dinner-pots. With them to eat meat is a sin, and to eat vegetables a dubious policy. Pity them!

GAZZI and MARIE—divine artists—are at the ever-"last"-ing game again,—this time in Boston. How many "last nights" they have favored the Bostonians with, we don't know, but the telegraph tells us that they will remain in Boston two weeks longer. The "last nights" here were most profitable, so they lasted though several weeks. "First appearances" and "last nights" are so acceptable to our drama and opera loving publics, that we greatly marvel that singers or players should ever have any other.

[illegible]

There have [illegible] There are two great [illegible] which we seldom see acted upon, the people; yet they would prove eminently successful. First, burst all the Insurance Companies,—that would stop about one in five. Our opinion, only, reader. We don't know that we could prove it. Second, encourage the crime of arson. Curiously enough in our wicked and inventive City, arson is of rare occurrence. There have been only two cases of it tried here that we remember for years. Now let arson be magnified as a heroic crime. Let house-burners be waited on by reporters, their opinions chronicled, their experiences worked up for the press, and their ends made tragic, and we don't doubt that while some who now get to Sing Sing for very indifferent offences would be developed in a new character, about three in five of our fires would be quenched before bursting out. In other words, punish incendiarism and pay no insurance to those who set their own premises on fire, and "accidents" will greatly shorten the supply.

The Mayor is at work again, in his brisk way. Twelve licenses for the sale of liquor were revoked yesterday, in consequence of the repeated violations of the law in regard to sales on Sunday. This is a decided measure; but the offending parties cannot object that due notice was not given them. Mr. WOOD is simply doing what he said he would do; and we must honor him for holding to his word like a man. Unhappily, however, three of the Aldermen have shown themselves in decided opposition to the course which the Mayor pursues. These gentlemen, having everything to lose and nothing to gain by the abolition of the Sunday traffic, do but act naturally in upholding their favorites. Still, a decent regard for the efforts of the Mayor will dictate the propriety of a different course of conduct on the part of their colleagues.

The Mayor, we are assured, is prepared to use every measure in his power to secure the enforcement of the ordinance.

NEW-YORK CITY.

A Terrible Snow-Storm.

We are all snowed under! Snow on the roofs snow on the walks, snow on the carriage-ways—snow blocking up the railroads, snow flying in hard pellets about the heads of street-passengers—snow everywhere, and nothing but snow. Early yesterday morning it began. Before the sun put the tip of his nose above east, came the snow. Down it came, all day, in a thick cloud. The ferry-boats had a harder time than they had during the most London-like fogs that have enwrapped us. Railroad cars knocked off from three rails, entirely disheartened, by noon. The stages crawled gingerly up the streets, loaded down with passengers, who were glad to pile in, even fifteen deep, to escape the snowy mantle that fell over the City. Pedestrians trudged wearily, and looked in vain for aid. In short, it was a snow storm "as snow" a storm. It kept drizzling down till nearly midnight. A flake is melting from the lobe of our ear as we pour out this our doleful lament.

About eight inches of snow fell during the day. It drifted but little, and, except that it began to thaw in the evening, promised good sleighing. To-day will tell the story, when the bells begin to jingle, and Young America, as usual, becomes hilarious. Reporters will please keep a sharp look-out for accidents, overturns, and shocking catastrophes.

All the Railroad trains, both inward and outward bound, were somewhat detained; but not seriously. The Erie and New-Jersey cars were nearly on time.

The Unemployed Employed.

The method adopted by the Commissioner of Repairs and Supplies in giving employment to the destitute, by causing the removal of the ruins of the New City Hall, has been made the subject of serious remonstrance by the disaffected fellows who congregate daily in the Park. Mr. PURDY desires us to explain the mode, in order to show that he has endeavored to act with fairness. We do so with pleasure. It has been already stated that under the requirements of the City Charter only $250 can be expended at one time by any of the Departments without a contract.

The amount named will only provide for the employment of 125 laborers, at $1 per day, and there are said to be 2,500 applicants for work. There have been 125 men at work for two days, then paid and discharged, and a new gang formed of fresh hands—so to continue until the job is completed. This mode does not give satisfaction to the workers, and we understand that yesterday not more than 25 would answer to the call, and yet the clamor against the City authorities and the Commissioner is kept up.

Wreck of the San Francisco—The Testimonials.

When the U. S. transport ship San Francisco was wrecked, sundry sea-captains hove in sight and rescued the servants, for which they were handsomely rewarded by subscriptions on 'Change. The testimonials colored are just completed and ready for presentation, as follows:

To Capt. CARTWRIGHT, of the Three Belles, a piece of plate and a gold medal.
To Capt. LOW, of the bark Kilby, the same.
To Capt. STEVENS, of the Antarctic, the same.
To the First and Second Officers of the three ships above named, each a gold medal.
To each sailor, a silver medal.
To Capt. PENNINGTON, of the Lucy Thompson, a service of plate.
To Lieut. F. K. MURRAY, of the U. S. Navy, a service of plate.
To Capt. WATKINS, of the steamer San Francisco, a service of plate.
To J. W. MARSHALL, Chief Engineer of the San Francisco, a gold medal.
To Chief Officer MELLUS, of the San Francisco, a gold medal.
To the Second Officer, the same.

Liquor Dealers Waking Up.

A report has got abroad that the liquor dealers of the City are moving for the establishment of a Newspaper organ, with a cash capital of $100,000. The Grand Jury who "presented" the rum shops in company with gambling dens and houses of ill-fame are to be taken into account individually—says rumor. Quien sabe?

Ship Sullivan.

We learn from Fire Island that on the 23d the ship Sullivan was badly hogged. Her mainmast and mizzen-topmast were carried away when she struck. Every exertion is being made to save the cargo dry, and should the weather prove good, but little of it will be damaged. The ship has four feet of water in her hold, and her chances of getting off are very slim.

Meeting of Ship-Riggers.

A meeting of the Ship-riggers of New-York was held last evening at the Seventh Ward Hotel, Madison-street. About 150 were present. Mr. JEREMIAH DONOVAN was chosen to preside. He explained the object of the meeting, which, he said, he understood to be to consider what action they should take in view of a proposed reduction of their wages from $2 to fourteen shillings per day. Individually, he did not know that any reduction in their wages was contemplated. If such was the case, he [illegible]

[illegible]

Mr. JAMES COLLINS said he was getting $2 a day himself, and did not think any man was worth more than $2 per day.

Mr. WILLIAM WILSON asked if there was any one in the room who was getting $2 a day? [illegible] per day or had been hired to do so? There was no response to the question. Mr. WILSON then said he would ask the question, for the purpose of meeting. They were all willing for an increase, and when asked to work for less, it was time to have a meeting about the matter, and not before.

Mr. PETER ROSEVELT, formerly Court House Janitor and since employed in Post Office, [illegible] united in the opinion that they were not little ground to suppose an attempt would be made to put down their wages. It was evident they were working for little enough. They hardly thought of exercising their own choice or their own leisure would have to be forced to ask them to work for less than the prevailing rates. One thing they might rely upon—their services were indispensable. If they were forced, they could be obtained to work for less price, but it would not minister much to their comfort if those who employed them would soon find it out. The speakers recommended against strike, and in favor of a union of eighteen months since did these men good service. They advised, however, immediate adjournment to $2 per day.

It was moved and carried, without a dissenting voice, that in the event of being asked to work for less than $2 per day, they refuse to comply.

Bill Poole before Mayor Wood.

This noted individual made his appearance before Mayor WOOD this morning, in answer to a summons from His Honor to appear and answer several complaints against him for selling liquor on the Sabbath contrary to the statute and his express orders. On being closely questioned by His Honor, Mr. POOLE acknowledged that the house was not his, and that he was only lending the place and allowing his name to be used for a Mr. Cunningham, who held the license for the same, and was consequently the responsible party. Mayor WOOD accordingly dispatched a message for Mr. Cunningham, with instructions to bring that individual forthwith before him, to be dealt with as the law directs. Mr. Poole was dismissed with a severe reprimand from the Mayor.—Evening Express.

Bridge Passengers.

The Captain of the Twelfth Police District has made the following report to his Chief:

"The old King's Bridge, connecting Westchester County and Westchester County, has been repeatedly reported as unsafe for travelers, and is now said to be impassable for foot passengers."

The Widows' Relief Fund.

Mr. MCELRATH, Treasurer of the Widows' Relief Fund, acknowledges the receipt of $721, in aid of the fund; including $400 from the Charity Ball.

☞ The new steam towboat Henry Morrison was sold at Auction yesterday for $10,500.

LONG ISLAND.

The Eighth Ward Election Riots.

DENNIS MCGUIRE, THOMAS BYRNE, STEPHEN RYAN, JAMES RYAN, EDWARD FRIDAY and JAMES DILLON, were arraigned yesterday in the Court of Sessions, Brooklyn, for trial on an indictment charging them with having been engaged in the Eighth Ward Riot at the polls on 7th of November last. The trial, at the close of the Court, had not been concluded. The same parties were tried and acquitted on indictment for a similar offence in this Court on Tuesday last.

Teachers' Association.

The teachers employed in the Public Schools of Brooklyn, assembled on Tuesday evening in the room occupied by the Board of Education, the use of which had been courteously extended to them by that body—to take the necessary preliminary steps toward organizing a Brooklyn Teachers' Association, the object of which is sufficiently indicated by the name. A large number of teachers were present and much interest was manifested. The evening was occupied in discussing ways to the best mode of proceeding, which resulted finally in the appointment of a Committee to present a plan at a future meeting.

Launch.

The clipper schooner North Pole, 300 tons burden, for Messrs. JOHNSON & LOWRIE, was launched from the yard of Messrs. LOWRIE & TROWBRIDGE, foot of North Fifth-street, on Tuesday afternoon. She will be run in the New-York and Baltimore line, and will be commanded by Captain A. E. SWAIN.

Cargo of the Bark Stranger.

The brig Tornado, Captain MCCLERY, arrived at this port yesterday from Bermuda, with part of the cargo of logwood and mahogany of the bark A. B. Stranger, which put into Bermuda in distress. She was bound from Tampico to New-York, at the time of the disaster. Her repairs, however, had been made, and she was expecting to sail daily. The brig Isabella Reed, for New-York, was also awaiting orders at Bermuda.

Later from Mayaguez—Wreck on the [illegible]

The schooner Grand Island, seventy-two days from Mayaguez and Aguadilla, Porto Rico, arrived here yesterday with a cargo of sugar and coffee to S. W. LEWIS. Captain RAND says there were no American vessels at either place. On the 19th inst., in latitude 34° 56', longitude 70°, he informs us that he passed the wreck of a large vessel under jury masts. She appeared to be waterlogged and abandoned. On one of her masts a square sail was set.

BUSINESS NOTICES.

TO LET—THE FIRST FLOOR AND BASEMENT OF the store No. 31 Vesey-st.; also, the second story, 50 feet in depth, fronting and having an entrance from Barclay-st., will be rented single, or they may be converted, making one of the most light and commanding stores in the City, admirably adapted for jobbing or importing business. The store is shelved and in perfect order. Inquire of FERREGO & BUCKLEW, No. 6 Barclay-st., directly in the rear of the Astor House, or E. G. MOULTON, No. 381 Broadway.

SPECIAL NOTICE—SUMPTON'S COD LIVER OIL.—The late firm of RUSHTON, CLARK & CO., being dissolved by its sole limitation, I make the only person of the name of RUSHTON who now [illegible] GENUINE COD LIVER OIL, which is so generally prescribed by physicians in all the seasons of the year for Consumption, Chronic Colds, &c. CAUTION.—In purchasing, be careful to call for RUSHTON'S, and see that my name is on the label and my signature over the cork of each bottle, without which it is not genuine. FREDERICK V. RUSHTON, No. 10 Astor House, corner Broadway, and No. 417 Broadway, corner Grand-st.

COWEN'S CIVIL TREATISE.
A Treatise on Civil Jurisdiction, Practice of the Peace, and ministerially of the power and duty of Sheriffs, Constables, &c. Fourth edition. By Wm. TRAIN.
BARBOUR'S CRIMINAL TREATISE.
A Treatise on Criminal Law Jurisdiction of the Justices of the Peace, and ministerially of the power and duty of Sheriffs, Constables, &c. Second edition. By O. L. BARBOUR.
The above published by BANKS, GOULD & CO., No. 144 Nassau-st., New-York, and No. 68 Broadway, Albany, N. Y.

PIANOS—PIANOS—GREAT REDUCTION IN PRICES.—Rosewood pianos in use and sale in New-York as good, and the entire instrument as durable and as fine, which cost $500. Pianos of every variety of style and price, ranging from those of less elaborate finish up to the most costly and elegant. We have on hand a few second-hand pianos, some of them almost equal to new, from $75 to $150. Pianos of every variety of style, from $50 to $500. Pianos to let, and rent allowed if purchased. HORACE WATERS, No. 333 Broadway.

HIGH & CO.'S SALAMANDER SAFES, WILCOX'S PATENT.—Twelve years in use and sale in every county of the United States, and in the case of fire, they have been tested in accidental fires and hundreds of them. For sale by WILKINS & HARVEY, Sole agents for Western [illegible]. The only makers of the celebrated Wilcox and Silver Co.'s Patent.

DRY GOODS AT REDUCED PRICES.—THE FOLLOWING goods will be sold at great bargains to make room for the Spring Goods: Merinos, Plaid Cashmeres, Delaines, Poplins, Alpacas, Cashmeres, Quilts, Linen Sheetings, Shirtings, and Bombazines. No. 347 Broadway, cor. Walker-st.

JANUARY.—THIS APPEARS TO BE A TIME FOR BUSINESS; and the Ready-Made Clothing Establishment of ALFRED HUNTER & CO., No. 181 Broadway, and Nassau, is a main portion of their Winter stock (in anticipation for a Spring campaign) at prices to suit the times.

PATENT FIRE-PROOF SAFES.—THE SUBSCRIBERS manufacture the celebrated Patent Fire-proof Safes, with Bailey's Patent Locks, which have been in use for the last twelve years, and have never been opened by thieves, or burned while in use. Warehouse, No. 110 Water-st. ALBERT H. HOOGLAND, WILLIAM [illegible]

[illegible] through the Parole?

We [illegible] in yesterday's Tribune, communications from Mr. Mitchell and the editor of the Cincinnati Gazette, relative to the editor's having charged Mr. Mitchell with breaking his parole. Mr. Schouler, the editor, having returned to his station, writes as follows on the subject:

From the Cincinnati Gazette, Jan. 25.

In an article in the Gazette, on Tuesday last, we charged upon Mr. Mitchell, that in his escape from the British marshal he violated his parole of honor. This charge was made, not for the purpose of doing that gentleman any personal injustice, but did we suppose that in making it we were doing anything new. We did not state it as a fact well known, and, as we supposed, generally acknowledged. To that charge Mr. Mitchell took exception, and while we were in a distant part of the State, we were first made acquainted with the fact, and the following correspondence ensued:

Mr. Mitchell to the Cincinnati Gazette, Jan. 17, 1854.

To Col. William Schouler, Editor of the Cincinnati Gazette:

Sir: In the Cincinnati Gazette of yesterday morning, and in the Daily Times, under date of the 14, I find these words: "Mr. Mitchell, the Fenian, broke his parole of honor, escaped from Australia, and fled to this country." Being in this country, I passed inquiry in the city of the Gazette office whether you were at home, or where to be found, and I learned that you had, on the morning of that publication, left the city for Zanesville.

The purport of the present publication is, of course, to request you to retract the falsehood and calumny contained above, in writing, and in such form as shall satisfy my friend, Capt. Wm. F. Lynch, of Cincinnati, who is to hand you this note.

Your obedient servant, JOHN MITCHEL.

No. 2.

Zanesville, Jan. 17, 1854.

Sir: In reply to your note of this date, I have to say that the statements which you have quoted thereto, from an article in the Cincinnati Gazette, were written by me. They were founded upon information derived from the public prints.

I for one, in the first intimation I have ever had that they were not true, I regard your denial of their truth as satisfactory, as I do your word, and, as soon as I can, I shall take pleasure in giving my friends in the leading columns of the Gazette as soon as I return to Cincinnati.

"It never has been my practice, for the less my desire, to state that which is not true, and, when convicted of having committed an error, or done any injury to any person, I have always been desirous and ready to correct it." Your obedient servant,

"WM. SCHOULER.

"Capt. Mitchel, Esq."

In regard to the above, we have to say that we hold editors should be accountable for whatever appears in their paper. And we have laid down a rule of action, which we always have and always intend to follow, which is to never publish a line which we do not believe to be true, and never to believe reports of facts without an investigation; never to wrong any man by the publication of an article, however humble he may be; or to screen public officers, rascality or poltroonery, however high and influential the party may be which is guilty of either; but if convinced of our error, we have ever been desirous of correcting it, and of doing the injured party all the justice in our power.

With Mr. Mitchel we had no personal acquaintance. We knew him not as "the representative of republicanism in Ireland," but as a member of the "Young Ireland" party in Dublin, as the opponent of Mr. O'Connell, (who was the representative of the moral force men,) and as an ardent advocate of the repeal of the Irish Union, and the justifier of civil war and rebellion to accomplish that end. We have never been able to perceive either the propriety or the patriotism of such movements. We regarded Mr. Mitchel and his compatriots in their attitude against the British Government and the Irish Union as men who were actuated more by their intense hatred of England than by their love of liberty or love of Irishmen.

In course of time, a civil and most ingloious war broke out in Ireland, which ended with the "Slievegammon" folly, which was crushed with a few policies and a handful of constables. We could see no particular merit in the cause, and certainly not any at all in the leaders. After a trial, the leaders were banished. In the Highland rebellion of 1745, the leaders were hanged, drawn and quartered. In the rebellion in Ireland in 1850, the leaders were merely transported. The Highlanders, however wrong they may have been,—and we acknowledge that even now our sympathies are with them,—left a name behind them which adorns the brightest pages of romance, and gives song and pathos to the literature and music of their country.

We have no desire, however, to institute odious comparisons, or to raise up among the ignoble strife of the comparatively recent rebellion in Ireland. What we have to deal with at present is a fact. We made a distinct charge that Mr. Mitchel had violated his parole in his escape from Australia. By the above correspondence it will be seen that Mr. Mitchel, in strong language, denies the truth of the statement. In our letter we say that we wrote the words, that they were founded upon information derived from the press of this country; that, in the ever stands, with his emphatic denial, we would consider it as in abeyance; and that we would publish his denial of the charge in as prominent a place in the Gazette as that in which the original charge appeared. That we did. How the correspondence got into the papers, we know not. This we know, that it was published without our knowledge and without our consent. We do not object, however, to the publication; on the contrary, we are glad that it has appeared, as it affords us an opportunity of showing from Mr. Mitchel's own journal, published in the office of the Citizen, in New-York, in 1854, and which bears the somewhat melo-dramatic title of the Jail Journal, the facts of his escape.

We will merely state, in passing, that we did not consider ourselves at liberty to publish the correspondence without first obtaining Mr. Mitchel's consent to do so. His letter was a private letter, addressed to ourself. Our letter was a private letter, addressed to John Mitchel. It is not considered honorable, nor is it, to publish private letters without leave. However, as we said before, we waive all objection, and concur with the publication, though we protest against the practice.

A parole of honor has never been regarded as one of the most sacred pledges which man can give to man. Upon its faithful fulfillment depends the honor of the individual to whom it is given. It is a thing not to be trifled away; nor to be taken advantage of in any way, to effect an escape. It is a sacred pledge of man's honor to man. Such being the character of a parole warrant, we now call John Mitchel upon the stand and allow him to make his own vindication. Mr. Mitchel, in Jail Journal, page 272, says that "there are three or four thousand ticket-of-leave-holders on the island, who may live how and where they please; and are only required to report themselves twice a year, not personally. We, on the contrary, are restricted in all our movements, and required to report ourselves personally once a month to our respective police officers, and in addition to all this irritating surveillance, they exact our parole under the false pretence, I presume, that in return for this guarantee they forbear to set us to work and to hire us out to settlers like assigned servants." * * "The alternative is not parole or work, but parole or death in a dungeon," &c.

We gather from the above what the parole was. He then goes on for a number of pages, giving the details of the manner in which his escape was planned; How a vessel—the Water Lily—was engaged to take him off; how horses were brought and placed at convenient points; how money was used to corrupt the police; and when everything was arranged, and not till then, did he return to the village to give up his parole. We quote his own words—pages 319 and 320. He says:

"We discussed. I walked in first, through the little gate leading into the court, through the door, which opened into a hall or passage, and thence into the Commandant's office, where I found his worship sitting as usual. Near him sat Kinnane, the Police Clerk. "Mr. Davis," I said, "here is a copy of a note which I have just dispatched to the Governor. I have thought it necessary to give you a copy." The note was as follows:

"Bothwell, 5th June, 1853.

"To the Lieut.-Governor, &c.—Sir: I hereby resign the ticket-of-leave, and withdraw my parole.

"I shall to-morrow present myself before the Police Magistrate of Bothwell, at his office, show him a copy of this note, and offer myself to be taken into custody.

"Your obedient servant,

"JOHN MITCHEL."

Mr. Davis read the note; it was open. "Do you wish me" he said, "to send it?" "Certainly. It was for that I brought it." He glanced over the note, and then handed it to me. Two Indian Norwegian canoes in and around Hobart Town, at this date. His worship said his clerk would accompany me to Bothwell. Mr. Davis, for that hour of the day, "Commodore" of the New-York Tribune very well, as other his friend from New-York. I have no doubt that Mr. Davis thought I had a crowd outside; there is no other way of accounting for his introduction.

"Then, said, "You are the partner of the man. Sir, it is about your place: it matters for nothing either. Notice of leaving your province is required from persons which bound me on leaving that town."

[illegible] "Well, Mr. Davis, I am sorry, but I am [illegible] I wished in first, through the little gate leading into the court, through the door, which opened into a hall or passage, and thence into the Commandant's office, where I found his worship sitting as usual. Near him sat Kinnane, the Police Clerk. "Mr. Davis," I said, "here is a copy of a note which I have just dispatched to the Governor. I have thought it necessary to give you a copy." The note was as follows:

"Bothwell, 5th June, 1853.

"To the Lieut.-Governor, &c.—Sir: I hereby resign the ticket-of-leave, and withdraw my parole.

"I shall to-morrow present myself before the Police Magistrate of Bothwell, at his office, show him a copy of this note, and offer myself to be taken into custody.

"Your obedient servant,

"JOHN MITCHEL."

Mr. Davis read the note; it was open. "Do you wish me" he said, "to send it?" "Certainly. It was for that I brought it." He glanced over the note, and then handed it to me. Two Indian Norwegian canoes in and around Hobart Town, at this date. His worship said his clerk would accompany me to Bothwell. Mr. Davis, for that hour of the day, "Commodore" of the New-York Tribune very well, as other his friend from New-York. I have no doubt that Mr. Davis thought I had a crowd outside; there is no other way of accounting for his introduction.

"Then said, "You are the partner of the man. Sir, it is about your place: it matters for nothing either. Notice of leaving your province is required from persons which bound me on leaving that town."

"Well, Mr. Davis, I am sorry, but I am [illegible]

[illegible] wished to take leave of him forever, to proceed upon the scaffold; one man went up and shook hands with him, saying, "Farewell, Jim!"

The Sheriff then proposed the rope, adjusted the rope around his neck and drew down the cap, forever closing his eyes to all earthly objects. While this was being done, Taylor spoke nearly as follows:

Had it not been for liquor the prostitutions would be empty, and he would not be where he was; again warning all present to beware of the fatal poison; said that he had written to his friends, giving them full particulars of the affair, and warning them to abstain from liquor. Said that Jesus died for him; he felt that he was forgiven and expected to die. Did not know what moment he was to drop off. After a few sentiments which we did not understand, he being apparently engaged in prayer, the Sheriff affixed the rope to the beam, walked back and forward on the scaffold, and precisely at twenty-five minutes of 3 o'clock touched a spring, the drop fell and John Ira Taylor was no more. After hanging 30 minutes, Drs. Crawford and Hosse pronounced life extinct, and he was cut down, put in his coffin and buried in the poor house burying ground.

During the whole day, Taylor had appeared more penitent than at any time since he committed the fatal deed for which he suffered the extreme penalty of the law.

The assemblage was large—estimated variously from 6,000 to 10,000 people—and was very orderly. To Sheriff Rowley, who performed the painful task devolving on him by law, great credit is due for his coolness on the occasion. He arranged everything in the most perfect order, and has discharged every duty devolving on him to the prisoner and the State.

Capt. McNulty is also deserving of high praise for his vigilance in drafting the Guard, and the good order which was kept by this Company from the commencement of the procession of the jail, until their return back to town. From the density of the crowd it would have been impossible to have conducted the prisoner to the place of execution without this assistance.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

PUBLIC NOTICE!!

RUSHTON, CLARK & CO.'S COD LIVER OIL.

☞ The Late Firm of Rushton, Clark & Co. being dissolved by the death of Wm. L. Rushton (the only person of the name of Rushton ever connected with the firm,) the business in future will be continued by

HEGEMAN, CLARK & CO.,

surviving partners and sole successors of R., C. & Co.,

Nos. 165, 173, and 211 BROADWAY,

all connection with the store, No. 10 Astor House being discontinued.

Our Mr. Hegeman has been connected with the establishment twenty-six years, and for twelve years has been a partner and had the principal charge of the business, and with the benefit of his experience and the combined efforts of each member of our firm, we trust to merit and receive a continuance of the patronage so liberally extended to us.

THE GENUINE COD LIVER OIL,

hitherto made by R., C. & Co. will in future be made only by us—it was our Mr. Clark who went to Newfoundland to superintend its manufacture, and we warrant it pure. Our Oil is sold by all the most respectable druggists in the United States.

Caution.—Be careful to see that the name "HEGEMAN, CLARK & CO." is on each label, and the signature upon the cork of each bottle, without which it is not genuine.

☞ Fruit and Ornamental Trees and Plants.—including everything necessary to the Garden, Greenhouse, Nursery and Orchard, with all the recent introductions, at very low rates. Descriptive price Catalogues gratis. Catalogues gratis to New-York. Ornamental and other planting done in any part of the country. Address B. M. WATSON Old Colony Nurseries, Plymouth, Mass.

☞ Redding's Russia Salve—25 Cents a Box.—A Boston remedy of 20 years' standing—a sure and speedy cure for Burns, Scalds, Boils and all external injuries; recommended by physicians. Sold by all druggists in the United States. A. B. & D. SANDS, C. V. CLICKENER & CO., C. H. RING, New-York; and WM. R. HERBIN, Philadelphia.

☞ Balm of Thousand Flowers—For beautifying the Complexion and eradicating all Tan, Pimples and Freckles from the face.

FETRIDGE & CO., Boston.

C. H. RING, Broadway, Agents.

☞ A. P. A.—Bible Presentation to Phenix Lodge, No. 15.—On THURSDAY, Jan. 26, 1854, at the Hall of the Demilt Dispensary, corner of 3d st. and 2d-av. Doors open at 7½ o'clock P. M. The following Gentlemen have kindly consented to address the Lodge: Rev. A. H. Wright will present the Bible to the Lodge; J. Haward, Esq., will sing "The Family Bible;" Rev. G. Digges, Rev. B. G. Spees, Rev. H. J. Cox, Rev. G. M. Woodward, and Dr. Crawford, Hosse, and a physician from Philadelphia. After surveying the multitude before him for a few minutes, he arose, and with a trembling voice, which grew stronger as he proceeded, addressed the large crowd for about twenty-five minutes.

He said he had but a few moments to live, and what he was about to say he wished to have them remember. He said what had happened and what was about to happen, all came through the use of intoxicating liquor. He had heard of man who had lost their lives or frozen their limbs through the influence of this demon. For forty years he had drank, (and he was forty-six years old now.) He had drank from childhood. He had read an account, of a man, who, when drunk, had laid down on a railroad track, and the train had passed over him killing him instantly. There were men in our Jail now who had come there through the influence of dram-shops. He said there were a set of gamblers who keep these infernal places, who would get a man into them, get him drunk, win his money, pick his pockets, and then turn him out of doors. He repeated, that he had but a few moments to live, and wished them all to remember his advice, which was to let liquor alone. It was the means of his wife's death, and if he had let it alone and minded his own business at first, (and it was hard to suffer for it,) he would have been living with his wife now. Let liquor alone; let liquor alone.

He saw many ladies present—and here was a large assemblage, the largest he had ever seen, but one—he warned them, if they did not wish to get killed, to persuade their husbands, brothers and friends from the use of liquor in any shape. He had known men who played cards for money, who had been killed and their money taken from them, all through liquor. Said he had no father, mother, brother, sister, or any relations in this country—what were living of them were in the State of Maine. He was all alone in this country—he was a stray sheep of his father's flock, and had come to his end through the means of liquor. Said that he had faith to believe that he was forgiven for the deed—that Jesus died for him. Remarked, that he was not much of an orator, but wished them all to remember, to touch not, taste not, handle not liquor.

On the 19th of October last, before he went to work in the morning, his wife asked him when he would be home, he said at noon, but it so happened that he did not get home at that time. He went to a neighbor's, who had good will for him, who had hot strong stuff—they wanted him to drink and he refused, but after much persuasion, thinking it would do him no harm, he drank some of the hot stuff—he stayed there awhile, drinking; had something with him that he had bought at auction for his wife, which he showed to them, and drank some more; and then sold them a dress and ate some supper. Then he thought he would go home; drank again of hot stuff, and left; stopped at a grocery, and found a lot of boys there, and tried to sell them some penknives; wanted to sell them by the card; sold them all to a man, who asked him to drink, which he did.

Afterwards he went to another grocery, where high words arose—and this was all through liquor—some man hit him with a peek-yoke on the right thigh, which he felt yet. Then they had a fight; some man parted them and he went home. After he got home, the man that lived in the house, (he did not know whether he paid rent or not)—after he laid down on the bed, the man bothered him, and he jumped up and got his gun to kill his—scratch his wife—don't know who did it, whether it was him or the man, but he wished God to forgive him. His wife was killed, he put in prison and sentenced to be hung, and was now to suffer for it.

Taylor then closed his remarks, and Rev. B. G. Spees knelt with the prisoner and offered a fervent and impressive prayer for his temporal and eternal welfare. After prayer, he rose and exclaimed, "Farewell to the world!" He then kissed the Bible, and shook hands with some of the officers, and many of the friends wished to take leave of him forever, to proceed upon the scaffold; one man went up and shook hands with him, saying, "Farewell, Jim!"

The Sheriff then proposed the rope, adjusted the rope around his neck and drew down the cap, forever closing his eyes to all earthly objects. While this was being done, Taylor spoke nearly as follows:

Had it not been for liquor the prostitutions would be empty, and he would not be where he was; again warning all present to beware of the fatal poison; said that he had written to his friends, giving them full particulars of the affair, and warning them to abstain from liquor. Said that Jesus died for him; he felt that he was forgiven and expected to die. Did not know what moment he was to drop off. After a few sentiments which we did not understand, he being apparently engaged in prayer, the Sheriff affixed the rope to the beam, walked back and forward on the scaffold, and precisely at twenty-five minutes of 3 o'clock touched a spring, the drop fell and John Ira Taylor was no more. After hanging 30 minutes, Drs. Crawford and Hosse pronounced life extinct, and he was cut down, put in his coffin and buried in the poor house burying ground.

During the whole day, Taylor had appeared more penitent than at any time since he committed the fatal deed for which he suffered the extreme penalty of the law.

The assemblage was large—estimated variously from 6,000 to 10,000 people—and was very orderly. To Sheriff Rowley, who performed the painful task devolving on him by law, great credit is due for his coolness on the occasion. He arranged everything in the most perfect order, and has discharged every duty devolving on him to the prisoner and the State.

Capt. McNulty is also deserving of high praise for his vigilance in drafting the Guard, and the good order which was kept by this Company from the commencement of the procession of the jail, until their return back to town. From the density of the crowd it would have been impossible to have conducted the prisoner to the place of execution without this assistance.

☞ $20 Reward.—Whereas some evil-disposed person or persons have, without my consent or knowledge, been using my name on the "Celebrated" "Bank Gold Pens," manufactured lately by Joseph Gillott, and has offered them for sale in the vicinity of the Banking Institutions and other houses in this City and elsewhere, as genuine "Pens" of my manufacture, I assure my numerous patrons and the public that the above "Pen" is a worthless imitation, or old pens repointed. I will give the above reward for any information that will lead to his apprehension and punishment in this business.

JOHN FOLEY,

Manufacturer of the (original) Popular "Bank Gold Pens," No. 187 Broadway, New-York.

☞ Mercantile Library Association.—By invitation, Mr. F. H. Wainwright, of his Office, 4 Delmonico's, before the Association, on MONDAY EVENING, Jan. 30, at 8 o'clock, at Clinton Hall. Subject—Politics and Patriotism.

Tickets 25 cents each, to be obtained at the desk of the Library, and at Messrs. Hall & Sons' Music Store, No. 239 Broadway.

DOUGLAS LEFFINGWELL,
FRANK W. BALLARD,
JOHN CREMAR,
Lecture Committee.

☞ Not Failed Yet.—It has been reported up town for the past few days that our friend GEORGE KEYES has "failed." No wonder, when he sells Dry Goods at such ridiculously low prices. His store was so crowded on Monday and Tuesday that it was found necessary to "lock" the store door and let the ladies out through the hall. By selling goods so cheap for the past five years, KEYES has built up the best trade in the City, and we would advise all ladies who wish to buy Dry Goods to go there at once. His store is No. 563 5th-av., between 46th and 47th-sts.

☞ Mechanics' Society Lectures, 1854-5.—SECOND COURSE.—Commencing at 7½ P.M.

Jan. 26.—George W. Bethune, D. D.—Eloquence.
Feb. 1.—E. S. Stokes, Jr., D. D.—Little Things.
Feb. 12.—E. S. Stokes, Jr., D. D.—Work and its Instruments.
Feb. 19.—W. Adams, D. D.—The Social Mechanic.

J. A. BUNTING, Chairman.

☞ Dr. Sharp's Compound Syrup of Yellow Dock Root.—Having been thoroughly tested for the last five years, and now universally recommended by the Medical Faculty throughout the country, for the complete cure of dyspepsia, costiveness, headache, liver complaint, scrofula, eruptions, tetter, salt rheum, and all diseases arising from a vitiated state of the blood. Prepared by Dr. C. M. Sharp, Albany, and sold by C. H. RING, No. 186 Broadway, New-York, sole general agent. Quart bottles, price $1.

☞ Let us Live to be Useful to Mankind.—Mechanics Institute Lectures for 1854.—Lecture THIS EVENING, by the Corresponding Secretary, Charles H. Delavan, Esq., on "Ancient and Modern Street-life." Members and their families admitted free to all the lectures. By order of the Institute

WILLIAM MILES, President.

☞ Stilton and Cheddar Cheese, in cases of one dozen each; Cream & Blackwell's pickles, sauces, preserves, relishes, pastes, &c., landing ex Liverpool, from London, Lea & Perrins' Worcestershire sauce, in cases of 4 & 2 doz. and in quarts, landing ex Cornelius Grinnell, from Liverpool. For sale by JOHN DUNCAN & SONS, No. 400 Broadway, sole agents in the United States for Lea & Perrins'.

☞ New-England Young Men's Association—LECTURES.—The Second of the Annual Course of Lectures under the auspices of this Association, will be delivered at the Tabernacle on THURSDAY EVENING, Jan. 26, at 7½ o'clock, by Hon. John P. Hale. Subject—"Free to Fear." Tickets 25 cents. F. WILLIS FISHER, M. D., President.

E. W. B. Osgood, Secretary.

☞ Williamsburg.—The Installation of Rev. W. W. Kinn, to the Pastorship of the Universalist Church, corner of 4th and South Third-sts., will take place on THURSDAY EVENING next, 26th inst., at 7½ o'clock. Sermon by Rev. T. J. Sawyer, D. D. Address to the Society by Rev. E. H. Chapin.

☞ How the Atmosphere Supports Life.—The fourth lecture of this course, by Dr. Wainwright, (on Oxygen and Carbonic Acid,) will be given at the Presbyterian Church, Seventh-st., between 7th and 8th-avs., THIS EVENING. Seats free.

☞ Tenth Anti-Slavery Lecture.—At the Tabernacle, on TUESDAY EVENING, Jan. 31, at 7½ o'clock, by Hon. Charles Francis Adams, (son of the late venerable John Quincy Adams.) Subject—What makes Slavery a subject of National concern. Admission 25 cents.

☞ The Eighteenth Annual Exhibition of the Orphans of Universalist Sunday School will be repeated on FRIDAY EVENING, Jan. 27, at the Church, Orchard-st., near Broome-st. Come early, if you wish a seat. Tickets at the door.

☞ American Ornithological and Geological Society.—Lecture THIS EVENING, (Thursday,) on Geology, their Analogy and Influence on Civilization, by Mr. Schoonover, at 7½ o'clock.

THE FOURTH LECTURE of the course in Clinton Hall, on "The World's Redemption by the Church," will be given by Samuel Maranan, D. D., on THURSDAY (this) EVENING, at 8 o'clock. Admission 25 cents; to be had at the door.

☞ SHIRTS, SHIRTS, SHIRTS.—To the Gentlemen.—Shirts made, warranted, and sent to any part of the Union, within twenty-four hours, on receipt of measure. You will find this place a favorable one to call in the City.

PERSONAL.

MISSING.—Supposed to be drowned, ARNOLD THOMAS, in passing off ice, about 1 foot 4 inches in depth, about north, and A. T. marked on his arm in India ink; had on a brown overcoat, drab colored pants and blue jacket; hat not; was last seen at the foot of Peck-sl., about 10 o'clock on Monday evening, 23d inst. Any clue of him will be thankfully received by his afflicted family, at No. 44 Sixth-st., Williamsburg, or D. P. Hart, at Hoyt's printing office, No. 200 Hester-st.

IF THIS SHOULD MEET THE NOTICE of JOHN or HENRY PHEBUS they would hear something to their advantage by calling at No. 62 Ric-st.

WANTED.

SITUATION WANTED—By a neat young girl of 16, as chamber maid and children's nurse, or as second-table waiter girl in a small family. Can work and iron for the nursery, and take charge of a baby. Has eight months' City references. Will take $2 50 to $4 a week, and board with a lady who boards. Call or send to No. 222 1st-av., 2d-st. door, last room. Also, a neat Protestant girl, as assistant cook, chamber maid, or as nurse.

SITUATION WANTED—By a very competent Protestant woman, as cook, washer and ironer, or would do general housework for a small family; understands good cooking and baking, &c.; is a first-rate laundress, and will be found willing and obliging. Has the best of City and country references. No objection to go in the country. Apply at No. 16 2d-av.....(old No. 64.)

SITUATION WANTED—By an experienced female teacher in Young Ladies' Seminary, or private family, where her board would be considered an equivalent for her services in teaching. The best City references given. Address H. S. Union-square Post-Office.

SITUATION WANTED—By an experienced German Protestant, a Protestant, with the best of City references. Can do all kind of the needle work; would take care of grown up children, or go in the country. Call at No. 11 Rivington-st.

SITUATION WANTED—By a respectable Protestant young woman, as chambermaid, or to sew and plain chamber work and wait on ladies. Has no objection to go in the country. Apply at No. 199 West 17th-st., second house east of 8th-av.

AMERICAN HELP.—American girls wishing situations in domestic service, are cordially invited to apply at the Servants' Institute, No. 146 Grand-st. They are given every last attention; and while out of place, if required, are provided at a cheap rate with a quiet, respectable home; where, also, they can obtain much useful instruction, associated work, and have every reasonable accommodation. Inquire for the Matron.

WANTED—School teachers, clerks, agents, bookkeepers, manufacturers, servants, male and female, and laborers of all kinds. For $1 and two postage stamps sent, postpaid, to F. ALDY, Newport, N. H., I will furnish any person immediately with a permanent situation with a salary from $75 to $100 and board, according to business desired, and qualifications of applicant.

MALE TEACHERS WANTED.—Two assistant teachers in a public institution of this City; to preside on the premises. Salaries, $400 and $275 per annum, besides board. Address Box No. 240 Post-Office, stating qualifications, &c.

GOVERNESS WANTED.—A member of the Protestant Episcopal Church, competent to teach French, Music, and the usual English branches. Address GOVERNESS, post-paid, No. 23 North William-st., New-York.

TUTOR.—A college graduate desires board in a private family, in compensation for which he would employ a portion of his leisure hours in the above capacity. Address WM. WINTON, Box 3,828.

AGENTS WANTED—To solicit orders and sell rights of Oil's Improved Lamp. Adolphus Oil Lamp Co., 1 Gold-st. Capital required. Proprietors Lyon Manufacting Co., 1 Gold-st.

GOOD CHAMBER AND LAUNDRY MAID WANTED. Apply at No. 58 East 11th-st., between 5 and 11 A. M.

JOHN YOUNG—Agent of the Protestant Employment Society, Tribune Building, Nassau-st. A London clerk, capital required. Proprietors Lyon Manufacting Co., 1 Gold-st.

GOOD CHAMBER AND LAUNDRY MAID WANTED. Apply at No. 58 East 11th-st., between 5 and 11 A. M.

JOHN YOUNG—Agent of the Protestant Employment Society, Tribune Building, Nassau-st. A London clerk, capital required. Proprietors Lyon Manufacting Co., 1 Gold-st.

HOUSES, &c. WANTED.

HOUSE WANTED TO PURCHASE IN BROOKLYN.—A small house or cottage, in the vicinity of Hicks, Cranberry, Henry, Ist, Pearl or Adams-sts. Address, with terms, &c., A. RADIE, No. 111 Fulton-st., New-York.

ST. THOMAS' CHURCH.—Any person having more tickets than they desire, and wishing to dispose of two seats in this Church, can do so by sending the number of the pew and price wanted for two seats, to O. B., Jr., Box No. 846 Post-Office.

BOARDING.

BOARDING.—A second story front suite of rooms, handsomely furnished, can be obtained at No. 91 Prince-st. Rent of one hour Broadway. The house is first class, with the modern conveniences.

BOARDING.—A gentleman and his wife can be accommodated with a good room and board; also, a single gentleman. Terms moderate. At No. 1 Cherry-st., Franklin-square.

BOARDING.—One or two single gentlemen can be accommodated with a handsomely furnished room in 16th-st. near 7th-av., by addressing L. H. J., Box No. 3,088, Post-Office.

BOARDING DOWN TOWN—At No. 5 College-place—beautiful location. One large front room, suitable for a gentleman and his wife, or two or three gentlemen. Other rooms for single gentlemen.

ROOMS WANTED—By a gentleman and his wife, a suite of apartments in nicely furnished rooms, consisting of a parlor and bedroom, with bath room attached, gas, &c. Location must not be above 23d-st., or below Washington-place and between the Bowery and 6th-av. Reference given and required. Address, post-paid, Box No. 3,836 Post-Office.

LARGE PARLOR TO LET—With bed-room attached, without board, for single gentleman. Apply at No. 4 Bond-st.

DRY GOODS.

A. T. STEWART & CO.

WILL OPEN ON MONDAY, JAN. 23,

A NEW STOCK of heavy

HOUSEKEEPING LINENS,

Made expressly for family use, at prices from 25 to 37 cents per yard, much below the cost of importation.

RELIEF FOR THE POOR.

SIXTH WARD RELIEF ASSOCIATION.—The Treasurer of the Association acknowledges the receipt of the following subscriptions and donations since his last report:

J. J. Janeway	$100	Robinson & Chatfieldworth	5
Rev. Michael Curran, per St. Andrew's Church	50	Mrs. Chaffee	1
Gilbert Palmer	20	Mrs. C. Zimmer	5
Surgeon O'Reilley	20	George Bruce	10
Patrick Brendon	20	Ferris & Leggett	15
C. W. Schaefer	20	Patrick Grown	5
Henry Wood	20	U. D. Lynch	10
John Fitzpatrick	20	R. B. Connolly	10
James Gemmel & Co.	20	Ex-Ald. James Kelley	10
Jacob Sommers	20	John Martin	10
George H. Purdy	10	John Penny	10
C. M. Church	10	S. H. Crook	10
M. T. Christenson	10	Wm. Gilmartin	10
R. Boyd, Jr.	10	R. M. Smelzer	5
R. G.	10	C. A. Sinclair	5
Richard King	10	M. O. Sinclair	5
Thomas Clark	10	Philip O. Reilley	5
James F. Garrick	10	Francis O. Rourke	5
T. Boyle	10	Patrick Collins	5
C. G. Patterson	10	Robert Ivin, Co.	5
E. Pate	10	James Fulton	5
D. Shaw	10	Mr. Heather	5
H. Sherwood	5	Dennis Burns	5
David Rogers	5	Thomas Burns	5
School Teachers in West School, City Hall-place	20	William H. Burns	25
Charles E. Gerrels	20	James H. Willett	5
Mahony Rooney	10	John Glass	5
Patrick Yellon	10	Von Globe	5
William Robinson	10	Hawkins & Vandine	5
Jeremiah Miller	10	T. Dutchman	5
Amount received from individuals in sums less than $5	$94 50	H. Workman	5
Amount previously acknowledged	640 50
Total	$735 00

The following donations have also been received:

R. P. Fox, Arbour Street, Broadway, 100 loaves bread.
C. Adolphe, No. 122 Leonard-st., one sheep.
G. Gunther, corner Pearl-st., one sheep.
Mr. Harrison, 40 loaves bread.
C. M. Carpenter & Co., No. 403 Pearl-st., one bbl. beans.
J. F. Hatcher, Esq., No. 30 Chatham-st., one dozen undershirts, and one-half dozen pairs mitts.

The total number of families relieved number nearly 700, while the total number of souls reaches the large amount of 1,250 per day.

The public are respectfully invited to visit the Store-house of the Association, on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday of each week, at Nos. 44 and 46 Duane-st., where all clothing, provisions, clothing, &c., will be duly acknowledged, or by the Treasurer, No. 56 Rim-st.

OWEN W. BRENNAN, Treasurer.

BROOKLYN ASSOCIATION FOR IMPROVING THE CONDITION OF THE POOR—Jan. 24, 1854.—This Association has distributed since the 20th of last month in coal and groceries.....$2,652
Number of families assisted.....1,340
Number of persons fed and warmed.....7,000

The utmost economy has been practiced, but the calls for aid have been so numerous and urgent that the funds of the Associat on are exhausted.

The friends of the poor are earnestly requested to come forward, and by their timely aid, enable this Society to continue throughout the Winter their benevolent work of furnishing food to the starving and coals to the freezing.

Donations in money, provision or clothing may be made to the President, STEPHEN CROWELL, No. 36 Fulton-st., or to the General Agent, LUTHER RAMER, No. 89 Hickory-st.

AH! NOW MY WHISKERS ARE SOMETHING LIKE.—Why will you not use my ONGUENT, my friend, and then you will have a fine bushy growth of whiskers and a luxuriant moustache. Now, if your beard won't grow naturally, just get and use a bottle of my magical ONGUENT, which will force your beard or hair to grow strong and thick in six weeks, and it will not stain or injure the skin; so you cause to use if your face is bare or your head is bald, and I will cover both for you for a dollar. $1 a bottle, sent to any part of the country. R. G. GRAHAM, No. 197 Nassau-st. HAYES, No. 152 Fulton-st., Brooklyn; REINER, No. 64 South St.-st., Philadelphia; BRIGGS, No. 39 State-st., Albany; BARRINGER, Hudson, N. Y.; SPALDING, No. 27 Tremont-row, Boston.

A MEETING OF THE LIQUOR DEALERS ACCIDENTAL CONVENTION will be held at the Washington House, on THURSDAY EVENING, 26th inst., for the purpose of hoisting new banners, and the election of the officers of the society for the ensuing year. Every friend to the temperance cause with the trade is expected to come forward and join.

E. R. BUNCE, President.

D. S. Pease, Secretary.

REMOVAL.—I. BURRE, Fashionable Boot Maker, Removed to J. S. ROGERS, (formerly Kimball & Rogers,) has removed from No. 97 Nassau-st. to No. 139 Fulton-st., the building where he will be pleased to see his customers of Nassau-st. Gentlemen's fine boots, Ladies' Misses', and Children's Gaiters, Slippers, Dancing, &c.

FAMILY GROCERIES AND FINE TEAS.—JAMES FOX, No. 1 Cortlandt-st., near Broadway, offers for sale a fine assortment of Teas, Coffees, Sugars, Spices, &c. All which are offered in quantities to suit at the lowest possible prices.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

A BOLD STROKE FOR A WIFE.

MR. WHEICKER'S COURTSHIP,

AND ITS CONSEQUENCES.

Orders for this instructive and highly interesting book are pouring in from all quarters to the country. The newspaper press are devoting an unusual degree of attention to the work. Some of the most influential and widely circulated journals contain columns, and even whole pages of review and extracts.

The opinions of the press we shall give hereafter, but all agree in pronouncing it the most original, pregnant, charming and extraordinary ever published.

ROMANCE OF REAL LIFE,

Fifth Edition now ready. Price $1, paper; $1 25 cloth; and for sale by Booksellers and News Agents everywhere.

J. C. DERBY, Publisher, No. 119 Nassau-st.

ART AND LITERATURE.—CLOSING UP.—Subscriptions taken a few days longer for the KNICKERBOCKER, and all the other 20 Magazines, and a certificate of membership in the COSMOPOLITAN AND ART LITERARY ASSOCIATION given in each subscriber. Call without delay at the Institute, No. 9 Astor place, and at the Knickerbocker Office, No. 502 Broadway, up stairs. Catalogues gratis.

ANOTHER EDITION NOW READY.

IK MARVEL'S FUDGE DOINGS.

FUDGE DOINGS—Being TOM FUDGE'S Record of the same, at 40 chapters. By IK MARVEL. 2 vols., with two illustrations, by DARLEY.

From the New-York Commercial.

They are characterized by the same keen perception of social follies, the same genial nature, and the same idiomatic and natural style that have been admired in other publications by Ik Marvel, but even manifest a broader mental culture and more ample knowledge of the world.

From the Albany Atlas.

The work is thoroughly saturated with the humorist vein.

From the New-Bedford Mercury.

The happy hits at characteristic folly, at most cost we quote, the quiet ridicule of worldly ways, and the essentials of the best mends, with the ring of the true metal through all, give a charm to the work which can place it in the first rank. It leaves his benediction of a lighter heart and more grateful mind. Ik Marvel will reap new laurels from these volumes.

From the Philadelphia Ledger.

A racy and graphic page, with profusion of humor and sentiment, which go straight to the reader's sensibilities.

From the Hartford Courant.

It is full of a certain kind of quaint, descriptive humor, that is unlike that of any living writer.

From the Richmond Examiner.

A continuous story, modeled after Thackeray's, and a second story of Indianapolis life, wonderfully purest in the tone and extravagance of the humor, and clear, easy and piquant, from beginning to end.

From the New-York Tribune.

Its quiet humor and spicy relish will attract his old admirers to its perusal.

From the Cities Branch.

A rich vein of humor pervades it, and it will find many readers.

From the New-York Post.

These volumes of practical pleasantry will be sure to find numerous readers.

C. SCRIBNER, No. 145 Nassau-st.

PUBLISHED THIS DAY.

PUTNAM'S MONTHLY.

FEBRUARY.

Among the contents are:

Portraits of Contributors.
Dictionary and Common Balls.
Wines in the Country.
National Defence.
Prometheus and Epimetheus.
Nature in Motion.
Two Little Sisters.
My Three Conversations with Miss Chester.
Glimpses of French Life—The Restoration.
The Mountain Winds.
Misses Vanities.
Israel Potter; or, Fifty Years of Exile. Chapter XXI.
The Old Woman who Dried Up and Blew Away.
Omnia.
A Journey in Georgia.
A Water Study.
The Progress of our

[illegible]

identifying him with the transaction, and it is doubtful whether even he [illegible] Grand Jury of Rensselaer County, at the present sitting of the County Court.—Albany Atlas, Jan. 22.

Auditor Dunn's Letter.

The following is a letter of Auditor Dunn, of Indiana, to the Republican. The State Sentinel "likes the manner the Auditor has adopted, and extends to the old servant, that Mr. Dunn" is one of the best Auditor's Indiana ever had."

OFFICE OF THE AUDITOR OF STATE,
INDIANAPOLIS, Jan. 19, 1855.

To the Honorable the Speaker of the House of Representatives:

SIR: The following resolution passed by the body over which you have the honor to preside, has been received at this office:

Resolved, That the Auditor of State report to this House, prior to the expiration of the term of his office, the full amount that he has received as fees as such Auditor, by and through the General Free Banking Law of this State, amounting all his fees, of whatever kind, received by him under said law.

Without stopping to inquire into the right the House of Representatives have to make a peremptory call on the public officer for a detailed statement of his business transactions, or to report the amount of fees received, when no fees are fixed by law, but when it is a mutual arrangement between parties interested, I must most respectfully decline complying with their request, as much more important business of the State requires all my time and labor for the few days I shall remain in office. After I shall have retired to the ranks of a private citizen, it will give me pleasure to give any honorable member all the information I may possess on the subject. In the meantime, to quiet the anxiety of any friend, I will remark that I am in as comfortable a situation as any "Old Liner" could well be, who was badly beaten at the late election.

Very respectfully yours,
JOHN P. DUNN, Auditor of State.

SINGULAR RECOVERY OF A WATCH—AN ARDENT EYED WIFE.—Nearly a month since a gentleman in Philadelphia had a valuable gold watch and chain stolen from him during the festivities attending a fancy ball—and though a large reward was offered, this failed to effect its return. On Saturday the wife of the owner recognized the chain on a man as she was passing the corner of Fourth and Market-streets. She immediately accosted him, inquiring what time it was. He brought out the watch, when her suspicions were confirmed, and she claimed it as her husband's property. The man seemed anxious to escape, and attempted to enter an omnibus, but the lady seized hold of him by the coat, and, a gentleman taking her part, he was detained. The lady minutely described the watch, giving the maker's name and the number, so that there could be no doubt of its being the property of her husband, and it was given up to her. The man accounted for its possession by having bought it from a person, the description of whom tallied with one who was suspected of having stolen it. The lady, perfectly satisfied with the result of her daring feat, agreed to his liberation, and went away rejoicing.

CANDIDATE FOR SENATOR IN PLACE OF GOVERNOR CLARK.—We understand that Hon. CHESTER LOOMIS, of Ontario, has been nominated by a "People's Convention" as their candidate for Senator to supply the vacancy occasioned by the resignation of Gov. CLARK. Mr. LOOMIS was formerly much in public life, and is a man of intelligence, experience and integrity.—Albany Journal, Jan. 23.

MARKET REPORTS.

Weekly Review of the Dry Goods Trade.

NEW-YORK, Wednesday, Jan. 24—6 P. M.

We have met with a larger number of buyers, both from the West and South, as well as from neighboring country districts, in the market this week; but we have not discovered that this increased attendance of purchasers has brought about any actual improvement in the business, excepting so far as it has imparted a steadier tone to the market and given some encouragement to owners. The current movements are extremely moderate for the season, but for this factors were generally prepared, and on this head there is nothing like disappointment felt. The supplies in market are relatively light, and no disposition is manifested to add to them by ordering more are what is now here shall have been nearly if not entirely disposed of. This caution is commendable and must work well. Prices are without any decided change, but present symptoms of increasing firmness.

Desirable styles of Brown Sheetings and Shirtings are in fair request and rule pretty firm. There is not much doing in Bleached Goods or Cotton Flannels, but these are unchanged in value. Denims and Drills are rather brisker yet not dearer. Duck is dull and heavy. Ginghams are selling slowly at drooping rates. Lawns are unaltered. The auction sales of 600 cases Lodi Lawns, and of 600 cases Portsmouth and Hadley do., announced, the former for next Tuesday, and the latter for next Wednesday, check operations in private. Osnaburgs are plenty and heavy. Printing Cloths are quiet but firm in this market. Prints are attracting more attention and are pretty regular in value. A limited inquiry exists for Stripes and Ticks at former quotations.

Woolens are without any essential alteration. There is not much doing in Blankets, but these are held with a fair degree of firmness. Cassimeres are in slack demand at old figures. Cloths are in moderate stock and request at previous prices. Flannels are unchanged. Jeans are rather sparingly dealt in at unvaried rates. Linseys are abundant and languid. Muslin de Laines are in good supply, and are becoming more active at full quotations. Satinets and Tweeds are rather dull and depressed.

Foreign fabrics are in better supply, as importers are opening their stocks; but the total amount in market is much less than usual, and this fact is apt to compensate for the diminished inquiry which has been calculated upon for this season. Prices manifest no important changes. The imports continue quite moderate, and no inclination is evinced to duplicate orders without a real necessity for doing so. On the whole, a good foundation has been laid for the Spring traffic; and should no external influences—such as we have heretofore noticed—be brought to bear upon the market, we are willing to believe that this season's business will prove fairly satisfactory and satisfactory—this being the result of present most generally anticipated.

Markets.

Carefully reported for the N. Y. Daily Times.

WEDNESDAY, Jan. 24—6 P. M.

ASHES—The market is rather quiet and unsettled. Pearls are selling at $7@7 12½, while Pots are in somewhat better request at $6 62½@6 75 ⅌ 100 lbs. The supply is not large.

BREADSTUFFS—Sales transpired to-day of 4,000 bbls. American Yellow at $7c.@80c. ⅌ bu.

BOOTS AND SHOES—The stock is a moderate but pretty well assorted one; while the demand is rather slack, and prices favor buyers. The scarcity of leather and other materials, and the diminished production, seem to have but little effect upon the trade. We quote:

Men's Thick and Kip Boots	$1 50 @ $ 2[illegible]
Men's Thick and Kip Brogans	60 @ 1 85
Boys' Thick and Kip Boots	1 25 @ 1 75
Boys' Thick and Kip Brogans	60 @ 1 00
Youths' Thick and Kip Boots	90 @ 1 37½
Youths' Thick and Kip Brogans	50 @ 75
Women's Kip, Calf and Split Boots	75 @ 1 00
Women's Jenny Lind's, Sontag's and Lolas
Morocco Boots	95 @ 1 12½
Misses' Jenny Lind's, Sontag's and Lolas
Morocco Boots	60 @ 75
Children's Jenny Lind's, Sontag's and Lolas Morocco Boots	50 @ 60
Ladies' Fine City-made Gaiters	1 25 @ 1 75
Misses' Fine City-made Gaiters	80 @ 95
Children's Fine City-made Gaiters	55 @ 60

The quantity of Boots and Shoes cleared at the Boston Custom-House from Jan. 1 to 19th, in the past and present year, was as annexed:

BOSTON BOOT AND SHOE TRADE.

	1854.	1855.
For the week, cases	3,422	3,631
Since Jan. 1	10,488	1,470
Total	13,910	5,099

Showing a falling-off of 13,877 cases since Jan. 1, compared with last year. There has been a more active demand for these goods than for the trade is still dull for the season. Many of the large buyers from the Western and Middle States are in the market, but so far they have purchased very sparingly, and at low prices, considering the cost of manufacturing. There is a good stock on hand, particularly of seasonable goods. The auction sales of the week have been about 2,000 cases Boots, Shoes and Brogans, which were sold about last week's prices.

BREAD—The demand is less active, 12 perc. for ship-bread, nearly in Cabinet and South American; but prices are unaltered.

BRICKS—There is not much activity in this line, but quotations are unaltered. The supply is reduced.

CANDLES—A fair inquiry for most kinds at quotations. Sperm is 38c.@40c. for plain do., Shades, 42c. for Adamantine; and 16c.@18c. for Mould Tallow ⅌ lb.

COAL—We have nothing new to notice in foreign, which is nearly and dull at our old quotations. Anthracite is plentiful and firm at $7@7 25 ⅌ ton, of 2,000 lbs. delivered.

COCOA—[illegible] Nights, and have sold in small lots at prices [illegible].

COFFEE—The [illegible] Jan. 1, in the past and present year, was as annexed:

	1854.	1855.
Ordinary	11	11 — 7[illegible]
Middling	12	12 — 9
Middling Fair	13	13 — 10
Fair	14	16 — 10½ — 11

FEATHERS—The market is quiet, but holders are firm, the supply being lighter.

FISH—The trade is devoid of animation, but with moderate stocks, former prices are supported.

FLOUR AND MEAL—Sales and [illegible] Wednesday, Thursday, the effect of [illegible] and [illegible] by [illegible] and [illegible] to-day. We quote:

Ordinary State	$ 12½@ $ 25
Straight State	6 87½@ 7 00
Favorite State	7 37½@ 7 50
Mixed Western	7 50 @ 7 62½
Common to Good Indiana and Michigan	6 62½@ 6 87½
Fancy Michigan	6 87½@ 7 00
Common to Good Ohio	6 62 @ 6 75
Fancy Ohio	6 75 @ 7 00
Extra Ohio	7 25 @10 00
Extra Indiana and Michigan	7 00 @ 7 12
Fancy Genesee	7 50 @ 7 62
Extra Genesee	10 50 @11 00

Canadian is quiet, but steady. There were 500 bbls. Superfine taken at $6, in bond, and $6 50@$7 75, free, ⅌ bbl. Southern is more active and in pretty firm, sales having been made of 2,000 bbls. at $6 62½@$7 12½ for mixed to good straight and favorite brands, and $7 25@$7 87½ for fancy and extra do. ⅌ bbl. Buckwheat Flour is in better request at $3 50@$4, ⅌ 100 lbs. Rye Flour is without change. 500 bbls. brought $6 25@$7 25 for fine and superfine, ⅌ bbl. Corn Meal is tending downwards. Sales were reported, to-day, of 250 bbls. at $4 62½ for Jersey, and $4 87½ for Brandywine, ⅌ bbl.

FRUIT—Sales have transpired since our last of 800 boxes Bunch Raisins at $3@$3 05 for new crop, and $3 40@$3 45 for dry; 30 cases Sardines at 16c.@17½c.; some Leghorn Citron at 17½c.; Currants at 12c.; dried Cherries at 21c.; Peaches at 15c.; Plums at 14c.; and Apples at 5½c.@6c. ⅌ ℔.

GRAIN—Wheat is still quite rare and needed, but not at the prices generally asked. This day's sales have been confined to 3,000 bushels Long Island Red at former rates, and small lots of very handsome Staten Island Red at $2 30 ⅌ bushel. Other kinds are entirely nominal. Rye is in demand at $1 20, but is held at $1 25 ⅌ bushel. None sold. Barley has not varied. Oats are plentier and easier at 38c.@40c. for State and Western ⅌ bushel. Corn is doing better, being less freely offered, while it is in lively request, partly for shipment. The day's transactions reach 54,000 bushels at 89c.@90c. for Southern White and Yellow; 86c. for Jersey Yellow; 86c. for Western Mixed; 91 for Round Yellow, and 92c.@96c. for Brandywine ⅌ bushel.

GUANO—The supply and demand are alike moderate. Prices remain the same as last quoted.

HAY—River is plentier and obtainable at at 90c.@95c. for shipment, and $1@$1 06½ for local use, ⅌ 100 lbs.

HEMP—Cordage is quiet and nominal in price.

HIDES—The arrivals are very limited and the supply is decreasing. Hence, though the demand is not a very brisk one, prices are well sustained.

HONEY—Is scarce and wanted, at very full quotations.

HOPS—Continue inactive and languid, at 25c.@31c. for common to prime of last year's growth, ⅌ ℔.

IRON—Scotch Pig rules quiet and depressed, at $29@$31, usual terms, ⅌ ton. There is rather more inquiry for Bar, but this is nothing decided.

LATHS—Eastern are very rare and held above the views of buyers.

LEAD—The demand is moderate at old rates, with a fair amount offering.

LEATHER—Domestic tanned sole is generally in moderate supply and fair demand at full quotations. Hemlock is scarcer than Oak. We note sales of 3,400 dozen French Calf Skins to country buyers, at previous prices; a parcel of 14,000 dozen middling and second quality, received here last Fall on consignment, have changed hands, at 75c.@80c., six months, for 30 to 36 ℔. skins. English Salted Sheep Skins may be quoted nominal at $5 50@$6 for extra, $4 50@$4 75 for No. 1, and $3 25@$3 for No. 2; the arrivals continue large, and prices in England having declined considerably, and the manufactured article being difficult of sale here, manufacturers do not come forward, except in a very small way.

LIME—Rockland is extremely scarce and quiet. Prices are quite unsettled.

LUMBER—There is generally more doing in this line, but, with pretty ample supplies of most kinds in market, prices are without improvement.

MOLASSES—New-Orleans is in moderate stock and fair request at 32c. ⅌ gallon. Other kinds are rare and needed at full prices.

NAILS—Cut are still salable and firm at 4½c.@4¾c. ⅌ ℔. Wrought have not varied.

NAVAL STORES—Crude Turpentine is dull and heavy at $3 50 ⅌ 280 lbs.—the price at which the 5,000 bbls. mentioned in our last were sold, instead of $3 75, as misprinted. There is no change of moment in Spirits Turpentine, the sales of which reach 300 bbls. at 46c., cash, ⅌ gallon. Tar is in some request for shipment at $3 50@$3 75. ⅌ bbl. White Rosin is unaltered. We heard of sales of 1,500 bbls. Common Rosin, to-day at $1 75 ⅌ bbl. delivered.

OIL CAKE—The market is quiet, but prices are unchanged. There is not a great deal offering.

OILS—Crude is less sought after at 63c.@65c. for Whale, and $1 75 for Sperm, ⅌ gallon. Manufactured kinds are selling slowly at 73c.@77c. for bleached Winter Whale, and $1 90 for bleached Winter Sperm, ⅌ gallon. City Red Oil is retailing at 60c. cash, ⅌ gallon. Palm Oil is dull and heavy at 8½c.@9½c. ⅌ ℔. Linseed continues rather scarce and quiet at 51c.@52c. ⅌ gallon. Winter Lard Oil is in moderate demand at 82½c.@85c. ⅌ gallon. No change has occurred in Olive.

NEW-BEDFORD MARKET, Jan. 22.—SPERM—There has been but little doing since our last, and we have to report only a sale of 100 bbls. at $1 70, and 250 do. at a price not made public. In Edgartown we learn of a sale of 100 bbls. upon private terms. WHALE—The market for whale is dull and unsettled. There is, however, some inquiry, but we think the prices quoted for the past few weeks are not fully sustained at the present time. The transactions for the week amount to sales of 700 bbls. in parcels upon private terms. The feeling seems to be lower, at 62c. The Vineyard Gazette states the ship Splendid's cargo of 1,900 bbls. whale was sold in that market on Monday 15th inst. to a New-Bedford house at 62c. WHALEBONE—There have been no transactions in this market since our last.

PLASTER—There is nothing of importance doing in this line. The supply is fair enough, and prices are nominally the same.

POTATOES—The quantity offering, especially of the poorer sorts, is tolerably large; and as the demand is not very brisk, buyers still have any existing advantage. We quote common to choice as being worth from $2 50@$3 50 ⅌ bbl.—those selling at $3 75@$3 12½ ⅌ bbl. being the most freely dealt in.

PROVISIONS—Pork is gradually improving, both in demand and value—sales having been made to-day of 900 bbls. at $14 25 for new Mess; $13 25 for new Prime; and $13 50 for old Mess. ⅌ bbl. Old Prime is out of market, and is quite nominal in value. Dressed Hogs are salable and steady at 6½c.@6¾c. ⅌ ℔.; Cut Meats, being plentier and cheaper, are more inquired for. This day's sales include 300 pkgs. at 7½c.@8½c. for pickled Hams; 6c. for dry salted do.; 8½c.@6c. for pickled Shoulders and 5c. for dry salted do. ⅌ ℔. There exists a fair inquiry for Bacon, worth from 6½c.@8½c. ⅌ ℔. Lard is moderately active at yesterday's prices. The day's sales reach 300 bbls. fair to prime at 8½c.@10½c. and 200 kegs at 10½c.@10½c. ⅌ ℔. Beef is more in request, but is without change in price. There were 400 bbls. reported sold, to-day, at $5 50@$7 for Country Prime; $8 50@$11 for do. Mess; $12 50 for Vermont do. $14 50@$15 for packed Chicago do., and $15 for Extra do., ⅌ bbl. Prime Mess Beef is moderately inquired for, chiefly at from $21 75@$23 50 ⅌ tierce. Beef Hams are rather quiet, but firm at $12@$13 ⅌ bbl. Butter is in good demand and is steady at 11c.@17c. for Ohio, 17c.@22c. for Western New-York, and 24c.@27c. for Orange County, ⅌ ℔. Fair to Prime Cheese is selling pretty freely at 10c.@10½c., ⅌ ℔.

RICE—Is inactive, but quoted firm at $4@$4 75 for fair to choice ⅌ 100 lbs.

SALT—There is not much animation in the business, but holders are less anxious to realize and prices are without change.

SEEDS—The market is quiet, but prices are nominally unaltered.

SOAP—A sale of 100 boxes Castile was reported to-day at 11c. ⅌ ℔.

SPELTER—Is dull and heavy at 8½c.@8½c. for plates ⅌ ℔.

SPICES—The demand is rather brisker at former quotations, with a good stock of most kinds here.

SUGAR—The storm has checked operations. The supply is light for the season, and prices are very firm. Sales transpired of 150 hhds. New-Orleans at 4½c.@5c., and 60 hhds. Cuba at 4½c.@4½c. ⅌ ℔. The editors of the Shipping and Commercial List have published their annual statement of the Sugar trade of the United States, from which we learn that the total receipts of foreign unrefined Sugar into the United States for the year ending Dec. 31, 1854, were 185,986 tons, against receipts of 212,749 tons in 1853; and the quantity taken for consumption in 1854 was 150,094 tons, against 200,610 tons consumption in 1853, 196,558 tons in 1852, 161,047 tons in 1851, and 143,015 tons in 1850, being a decrease in the consumption of 1854, as compared with 1853, of 49,756 tons, or over 24 ⅌ cent; while the total consumption in 1854, (assuming the stock of domestic 1st January, 1854, to be equal), was 235,986 tons, against 272,069 tons in 1853, or an increase of nearly 3 ⅌ cent.

TALLOW—About 19,000 lbs. prime were sold at 11½c. @12c. ⅌ ℔.

TEAS—There is a moderate business being done in private at steady rates. At Auction sale occurred to-day and now—notwithstanding the storm, it was pretty well attended—at that figures were found for nearly all that was offered, and at full previous figures. A few lines of Green Teas were all that we heard of as having been withdrawn.

TIN—The demand is fair, and with a reduced supply, prices appear firm and buoyant.

TOBACCO—The market is, as before reported, pretty brisk and steady. The limited receipts continue the only important feature of the trade. Ohio and Pennsylvania [illegible] 300 bbls.

WHISKEY—[illegible] selling in the market.

WOOL—The inquiry is still very much depressed, and prices are lower. The [illegible] who have an [illegible] to be the [illegible] of [illegible] was generally quiet and [illegible].

[illegible] which were illustrative restricted to the [illegible] sales reported from [illegible] yesterday. For Liverpool, the engagements include 2,000 bushels Corn, in bulk, at 5d.; 500 bbls. Flour at 1s. 9d.; 200 bales Cotton at 3-16d. & 1-16d.; and one Beef at 2s. 6d.; 100 PKS Beef to 17s. 6d.; 1s. 6d. Port to 2s. 6d.; some Tobacco, Rosin and Spirits Turpentine at 5s. For London, the engagements continued quite light, at Providence & the Sound Cotton at 3d. For other ports, the engagements were light and rates were unchanged. The latest charters were: A vessel to Cork and a market, with grain, at 7½d.; a brig to Malaga, 1,375 tons, to the French Government, for government, port to Charges paid; a brig to Rotterdam, 1,000 tons, Rosin, 3s.; a brig to Cadiz, 1,000 tons, Rosin, 3s.; a brig to Buenos Ayres, 224 tons, at 22½ per ton; a brig to Rio Janeiro, 300 tons, same voyage, $1,600; a schooner to Porto Rico and back, Molasses, $2 50; one of 198 tons, to Savannah and back, $600; one from Washington, N. C., to St. John's, P. R., Lumber, 60; and back to New-York, Molasses, 45, and Sugar, 50c.; Nassau, one to New-Orleans, 45, and Sugar, 50c.; Nassau, one to New-Orleans for Trinidad, a brig, 300 tons, and a brig, 199 tons, to Charleston, and back, a year, to a Leeward West India Island, and a brig to Trinidad, Cuba, and back, with Molasses, the terms not transpired. ALBERT E. NICOLAY sold, by auction, to-day, the steamboat Henry Merriam, for $10,400.

New-York Cattle Market.—JAN. 24.

Carefully reported every Wednesday for the Daily Times.

For Beeves, at ALLERTON'S, Washington Drove Yard, corner of Pleasant and Forty-fourth-streets, and at CHAMBERLAIN, Bergen Drove Yard, Brook-st. near Hamilton-street. For Cows and Calves, Sheep and Lambs, (also for Beeves), at Brown's Drove Yard, Brook-st. near Third-avenue; and at Bergen's, in Centre-st. near Grand-st. Also, at Union Drove Yards for Swine.

TOTAL RECEIPTS

For the past week as all the principal markets mentioned above:

Beeves	3,942	Swine	4,160
Veals	208	Milk Cows	186
Sheep and Lambs	9,567

RECEIPTS BY RAILROAD.

	Beeves.	Veals.	Sheep.	Swine.
Harlem	375	600	200
Yonkers	816	10
Milk Cows	57		15
Sheep and Lambs	1,043	200	—
Swine	10	9,500	—

BEEVES.

As was expected, the considerable advance in prices attained last week was merely speculative, and the natural result from a much augmented supply is a decided reaction. The number of Bull's Head to-day reaches 1,767—quite a congress—nearly double that of last Wednesday, which is owing, in a great measure, to the difficulties at Erie, Penn., being adjusted, we hope permanently. The receipts below give an increase at all the markets of 1,825, which shows at a glance a sufficient cause for the downward turn in prices to-day, and the inclement state of the weather has no doubt added to the disadvantage of the salesman.

The supplies are mainly from this State and Ohio; 876 from New-York, and 440 from the Buckeye, and from the last named section we saw one or two fine droves, some of which are as good Beef as need be—on the whole, the quality was very fair, there not being as many lean lots as last week. We could hear of no sales over 11c., and those were obtained only for the very best in the yards, and we must redate our quotations 1c. to 11c. ⅌ ℔., the market closing very languid at the shatement, with a considerable surplus on hand to dispose of, and a thin attendance of the butchers.

PRICES.

(Estimated by the pound in the quarter.)

Best Beef offered to-day	10½c.
Good retaining quality	10c.@10½c.
Common quality	9½c.
Inferior quality	7½c.@8½c.

At Bergen 200 head have been sold during the week at the foregoing prices; one lot was taken by a packer at 9½c. which is called 10½c. ⅌ ℔. and will, no doubt, find its way, with a large quantity besides, to the Orinoco. The slaughter this season has been thus far somewhat larger and the shipments of Horse Beef fell 10 ⅌ cent. increase, which accounts to a great extent for the uniformity in price for the past year.

The arrivals at the different market places are as follows:

At Allerton's	2,520	At Chamberlain's	807
At O'Brien's	316	At Bergen	960
At Browning's	526
Total			5,948
Received the previous week			2,949

The following illustrations will give a better idea of prices:

GEO. TOZZER had 30 head, part from Dutchess and part from Ohio, of middling quality, and sold at 8c.@9½c.; also 122 head, purchased by him at Albany last week, at $75, weighing there 840 lbs. average, and sold them last Friday at an average of $83. ED PEAY, a packer, took 60 head at 9½c. and 10½c. ⅌ ℔. These were pretty fine cattle.

CHARLES TEED had 65 head from the western part of this State, are all sorts, but some pretty fair, and sold within a rate of 8c@10½c. J. APPLEBY purchased 5, at $640, which seller says is nearly 11c.

Mr. FLOWERS purchased 50 head, from Pickaway County, Ohio, in seven days from Columbus, at an expense of $13 a head, and do his own work. These were some of the finest Bullocks in the yard; the most of them were well fitted, large size, average 9 cwt., fed corn since the middle of last October, and brought the highest prices of day to-day. One pair, very fine, sold at $275, he thinks would dress 23 cwt.

W. BELDEN had 105 head from the same district—a pretty fair drove, and sold within $75@$83 a head.

SIMON DUNEY—110 head also from Pickaway County, Ohio, owned by J. W. SAVAGE, and sold at the range of $70 to $100. These were very prime Beef.

JOHN MERRITT offered 120 head from Ross County, Ohio, of the same stamp as those of last week, owned by PERRILL & PEARSON, the best realizing 10c.—30 of these were from Dutchess County, N. Y.

A. C. BRISTOL had 90 head from Westchester County, N. Y. One pair, owned by Mr. SACKETT, very good Steers, averaging 23 cwt., and sold at $285; and another pair from Beekman, very good, sold at the same price.

W. H. GURNEY had 56 head this State cattle, part from Ohio, averaging about 6½ cwt., small size, and sold in lots at 8c.@10c.

HATES & CANFIELD had 25 head from Tompkins County, N. Y., in pretty fair condition, 5 year olds, and sold at 9c. ⅌ ℔. One pair oxen, very good, averaging 23 cwt., held $350.

Mr. HARNES had 35 head from Westchester County, the best realizing $75; 9 head sold at $65 to THOMAS BROOKS—the price indicating the condition they were in.

GEORGE AVERILL had 130 head from Ohio, owned by LOTT & RICE, averaging 6 cwt.; sold at $67 50; 1 pair, the best, sold at $217, which is 10½c. ⅌ ℔. The drove will probably average $60. Thinks the market much lower than last week. We give the sections from whence the supplies came:

New-York	876	Kentucky	109
Pennsylvania	117	Virginia	—
Ohio	440	Connecticut	55
Indiana	130	New-Jersey	19
Illinois	145

MILK COWS.

The supplies continue on the decrease but there is no improvement in prices, it being a rare occurrence that over $60 is obtained for a Cow and Calf. We give the quotation of ordinary to fair Cows at $35@$45, and good to extra with Calf $45@$60 in cash.

The number received at the different markets is as follows:

At Allerton's	37	At Brownings'	50
At O'Brien's	48	At Chamberlain's	61
Total			196
Received last week			386

VEAL CALVES.

There is little variation in this line; the receipts are rather larger than last week. A good fat brings readily 8½c.@9c., and common to fair quality at 4½c.@6c., live weight. The receipts at the week are as follows:

At Allerton's	218	At Brownings'	70
At O'Brien's	47	At Chamberlain's	98
Total			433
Received last week			901

SHEEP AND LAMBS.

The receipts show a marked falling off from our last report, and the quality in general has been fair, and the broker at CHAMBERLAIN'S remarked, better than for a long time past; but, from some cause or other, there has been less animation in the market, and prices, if anything, have ruled in favor of the purchaser. Poor Sheep are a drag on the market, and prices are by no means encouraging to the owner. The average of sales given below, it will be seen, is again lower, being only 7¾, and this for good quality mostly. Mutton is selling by the carcass in Washington Market at 6c.@6c., and Lambs at 8c.@8½c. ⅌ ℔., which is a slight advance on last week. We quote common Sheep at $2 25@$3 75; Extra do., $4@$7; Lambs, $3 50@$4; and Extra, $4 50@$5. Sales have been made as high as $15 for extra South down and Leicester. We annex the sales:

BY JAMES MCCARTY.

77 Sheep	$229 25	14 Sheep	$97 88
19 Sheep	57 00	103 Sheep	340 75
44 Sheep	105 60	34 Sheep	143 00
62 Sheep	279 50	79 Sheep	325 75
62 Sheep	251 00	86 Sheep	350 50
24 Sheep	99 00	98 Sheep	406 70
76 Sheep	327 50
Total		756 Value	$2,085 83
Average per head			$3 71

The arrivals of the past week are as follows:

At Allerton's	1,042	At Chamberlain's	3,128
At Browning's	2,396
Total			6,567
Received last week			11,802

SWINE.

The weather has continued very favorable for packing, and the vigor with which it is now carried on is perhaps greater than for a number of previous year. The large supplies by the Hudson answer the great or fresh requests of the packers. The slaughter will, no doubt, exceed by a considerable number that of last year. The quality of those arriving is very good, and there are but few left on hand after the sales are made. The prices have been quickly responded to by the packers. The receipts are mostly at Allerton's, Union Drove Yard, and we note sales of Western, live, and 6c.@6½c. dressed weight:

We give the range of prices:

Ohio Corn Fed, heavy	at 5½c. ⅌ ℔. gross weight.
New-York Corn Fed, heavy	at 5½c. ⅌ ℔. live weight.
New-York Stubble	at 5½c. ⅌ ℔. live weight.
Ohio Corn Fed, good	at 5½c. ⅌ ℔. gross weight.
New-York Corn Fed, good	at 5½c. ⅌ ℔. gross weight.
New-York Stubble, good	at 5½c. ⅌ ℔. gross weight.
Ohio Corn Fed, fair	at 5½c. ⅌ ℔. gross weight.
New-York Corn Fed, fair	at 5½c. ⅌ ℔. gross weight.
New-York Stubble, fair	at 5½c. ⅌ ℔. gross weight.

At Allerton's.....1,428
At Union Drove Yards.....3,706
Total.....5,134
Received the previous week.....4,667

INSTRUCTION.

MISS BEALDING—Would inform her friends and the public that on the 1st of April she will remove her school from the premises now occupied for up to years, to a place which will be able to receive an additional number of pupils, as well as afford additional facilities for Female Education. REMINGTON, N. Y., Jan. 20, 1855.

PUPILS WANTED.—A lady, formerly engaged from a French court of Germany, Russia and Canada, wishes to give lessons either in Italian, Spanish or the French language; speaks English and brings the best unexceptionable references. Apply at 1,000 Broadway, or to MORTIMER LIVINGSTON, No. 15 Broadway.

THE SCHOOL OF MR. SIMONIAN FOR BOYS—Called the CLASSICAL EVENING SCHOOL, has for its object, primary in view, the instruction in every branch of the type of gentlemen. This school will commence, [illegible]

THE GERMAN LANGUAGE is taught in a scientific manner, adapted to every capacity, by the [illegible] PHILLIPS, No. 42 Bowery. (Gymnasium.) A trial will be granted gratis.

INSTRUCTION.—A married lady, thoroughly competent, will give lessons in German, French and music to young ladies, at their or her pupils' [illegible] Address TEACHER, Times office.

MOUNT WASHINGTON COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE, No. 26 Bleecker-st. [illegible] Jersey No. 18 Broadway.)
CLARKE & PANNING, Principals.

WILLIAM SCHUBERT, GUITARIST—Respectfully informs his friends and the public that he is now prepared to receive Applications to be made at his residence, No. 180 Greene-st. near 5th-st., New-York. The best references will be given.

DANCING.

A. POPWORTHY'S DANCING ACADEMY—Is now open for the reception of pupils, who can commence at any time. Ladies and Gentlemen are informed that on TUESDAYS, at 3 and 8 o'clock P. M., and SATURDAYS, at 3 and 8 o'clock P. M. Ladies and Gentlemen are informed that on THURSDAY and every other FRIDAY evening, at 8 o'clock P. M. Private instruction on SATURDAY EVENINGS for Individuals, Families or Schools, at their own residence, if desired. Circulars containing terms, hours and [illegible] can be had at the Academy at any time, or will be sent by post.

BROOKLYN.—New Classes are now forming for the Second Term at WILSON'S ACADEMY for Dancing, on Clinton-st. corner of Atlantic, (opposite the Athenæum, Hall.) Ladies and Gentlemen, WEDNESDAYS and SATURDAYS, at 3 p. and Gentlemen, TUESDAY and FRIDAYS, at 8 o'clock P. M. This is, in every respect, a very superior School. Several private classes for Gentlemen are now forming for a course of 12 lessons, exclusively in the modern dances, to commence immediately.

FOR SALE.

HOUSES FOR SALE OR TO LET.—The two new first-story houses, Nos. 213, 215, 217, 219 and 221, 25th-st., a few doors west of Sixth-av. They are replete with all the modern improvements, gas, water, Croton and Croton water, front gas to north stories; bay windows, out-door, &c. Situated between two railroads (the 8th and 9th-avs.). Price moderate. If sold, $4,000 may remain on bond and mortgage on each, and will be sold separately or together. A person will be in attendance in No. 215 from 10 to 12 A. M., and from 2 to 4 P. M. daily, to show the houses. Inquire of SAMUEL SPARKS, No. 42 West 26th-st., or W. H. & W. SPARKS, corner of Lexington-av. and 27th-st.

HOUSE FOR SALE—No. 46 Willow-st., Brooklyn Heights; is three-story, brick, built in the most thorough and superb manner, with all the modern improvements. Lot, 25 by 64 feet; three rooms deep in back part, first and second stories, with laundry, bath-room, and two large cisterns. Lot, 25 by 100 feet. Terms—Half cash, half on bond and mortgage. This is a most desirable way of the most wealthy residence in the city, easy of access on the premises, from 4 to 1 P. M., or 7½ to 8½ o'clock, P. M., or to ALFRED EDWARDS, Examiner, No. 111 Broadway.

HOUSE AND LOT FOR SALE.—The beautiful three-story and high-basement brick dwelling, built in modern style, with gas and Croton throughout, very pleasantly located at No. 187 West 22d-st., between 7th and 8th-avs. Lot, 18½ by 92½ feet. Possession gives on the 1st of May next. Price, $4,500. Apply to GEO. D. COGGESHALL, on the premises, or to S. S. MINER, No. 320 Fourth-st., corner Peck-slip.

HOUSE FOR SALE.—The three-story brown stone House, No. 108 Avenue B, between 12th and 13th-sts. House is 22 feet front and about 40 feet deep. Has modern improvements. For terms, apply at No. 100 10th-st., one door east of 3d-av.

HOUSE FOR SALE IN BROOKLYN.—A three-story brick house, near two ferries. Also, one do. lot. For terms, which are accommodating and to suit the purchaser, apply to S. S. & WM. WOOD, No. 281 Pearl-st., New-York. Possession immediately.

DESIRABLE COUNTRY RESIDENCE FOR SALE IN ORANGE, N. J.—A large, newly-built dwelling, house, two stories high, with stable, and cellar, and about half an acre of land attached, situated on the main street, only a few minutes' walk from the Railroad station. The house is built in the most thorough manner, and contains many modern improvements. On the rear of the lot is a large building, which will be sold with the property, if desired, and can, at a small expense, be converted into a store or factory. Orange is a healthy new village (by the Morris and Essex Railroad) about 12 miles from New-York. For further particulars, apply to GEO. G. DUBERNEY, No. 11 Wall-st., New-York, or to JOHN L. BLAKE, Jr., Orange, N. J. N. B.—If the property is not sold before the 1st of March, 1855, it will then be exposed for sale at public auction.

DESIRABLE HOUSE IN BROOKLYN FOR SALE.—The three-story and basement new brick house, No. 52 Willow-street, in Clinton-st., is now in the best manner, with hot and cold water, bath, gas, range, &c., &c., located convenient to the ferry and railroad. This is a rare chance for a neat dwelling, near to business, at a low price—only $2,000 cash required. The furniture will also be sold, if required. Apply on the premises, or at the office of the Pacific Mutual Insurance Company, No. 311 Broadway.

COUNTRY SEAT FOR SALE IN RYE, WESTCHESTER CO., N. Y.—About half-way between the Rye and Port Chester Stations, a pleasant house and wine cellar, with 12 rooms, hall, closets, gas, water, and other usual conveniences, barn, &c., in good order, well shaded, with 2 acres of good land. Apply to J. W. SOUTHACK, No. 102 Broadway, or T. S. BURGESS, No. 19 Beekman-st. Price $6,000; if not sold by March 1, it will then be advertised for sale at auction.

COUNTRY SEAT FOR SALE.—A small, neat cottage, with about two acres of ground, situated on the Richmond Plank-road, near Vanderbilt's Landing, Staten Island. The grounds are handsomely laid out, and on them is a choice collection of fruit and shade trees. There is on the place a commodious [illegible] &c. For terms and further particulars, apply to [illegible] JOHN PHILLIPS, No. 38 Pearl-st.

FARM FOR SALE.—A splendid Farm of 300 acres, situated in New-Jersey, within one hour's ride of New-York. The buildings are a large new dwelling, with numerous and extensive out-buildings. The land is in a high state of cultivation, and location unsurpassed. For particulars, apply to CAMPBELL & CROWELL, No. 208 Broadway, (corner of Fulton-st.)

ASTORIA AND RAVENSWOOD.—Several cottage dairy seats, river plots, dwellings, stores, lots and farms, [illegible] WHITLEY, corner of

AUCTION SALES.

SUPERIOR FURNITURE AT AUCTION.—BEAUTIFUL ROSEWOOD PARLOR FURNITURE, with Marble Tops, &c.—This day, at 10 o'clock, at the store No. 112 Nassau-st., will be sold, in lots to suit purchasers, the entire stock of Mr. Jas. Lee, comprising a very superior assortment of Rosewood Parlor Furniture, with Marble Tops, in Hair Cloth, Reps and Damask; also, Mahogany Chairs, Tables, Bedsteads, Wardrobes, Bureaus, Washstands, Dressing Bureaus, Mattresses, Feather Beds, Bolsters and Pillows, Blankets, Quilts, Sheets, &c.; also, a very superior Piano-Forte, by Gilbert, Boston, 7 octaves, in rosewood case, with Metallic Plate, Patent Sounding Board, Patent Action, Patent Pedals, Patent Keys, Patent Hammers, Patent Dampers, Patent Screws, Patent Bridge, Patent Wrest Plank, Patent Scale, Patent Ivory Keys, Patent Ivory Sharps, Patent Leather Covered Hammers, Patent Felt Dampers, Patent Cast Steel Wire, Patent Tuning Pins, Patent Tuning Screws, Patent Tuning Pin Block, Patent Bass Bridge, Patent Bass Wire, Patent Bass Plate, Patent Bass Hammers, Patent Bass Dampers, Patent Bass Screws, Patent Bass Tuning Pins, Patent Bass Tuning Screws, Patent Bass

New-York Daily Times.

STATE AFFAIRS.

WHAT THE LEGISLATURE IS GOING TO DO.

BREAKING UP OF OUR QUARANTINE.

BANK REPORTS.

Adoption of the Resolution Disbanding our Foreign Legions.

MEMBERS ALL GOING TO THE POOR-HOUSE.

PRESENT OF A GLORIOUS FUDDLE.

Special Correspondence of New-York Daily Times.

ALBANY, Wednesday, Jan. 24, 1855.

Legislation goes on slowly—little accomplished, much talked of, and the State prospers by the procrastination. Let us be thankful.

NOTICES OF WHAT IS COMING.

But we had an active notification this morning of work to be presented, out of which I pick one or two that particularly interest the City of New-York. Mr. WATERBURY gave notice of a bill to make the Register of New-York a salaried office, and Mr. ATTRIDGE has some further amendments to propose to that not to be understood, always unreliable and yet never performable law, the act for the protection of mechanics in the City of New-York. I do not know how Mr. ATTRIDGE proposes to amend—he can't make the thing worse than it is.

VENTILATION.

The Committee to whom was referred the inquiry as to whether any improvement can be made in the ventilation of the Assembly Chamber, reported that they thought the lighting of fires in the closed up fire places would come the nearest compliance of; so we are to have restored to us the glorious wood fires that used to make the old Assembly Chamber endurable. The Committee are to be commended for the prompt and faithful performance of the duty assigned them, and especially to be thanked for the remedy they propose.

SUPPRESSING THE BALLOT-BOXES.

Mr. ROSEBOOM introduced a bill to secure the purity of elections by these means:

Sec. 1. Every person who shall, directly or indirectly, offer or give, or agree to give to any other person, and every person who shall in like manner offer or receive or agree to receive, or cause to be given to any person, any money or valuable thing, on the consideration or condition of such person or any other to vote, or not to vote, for any particular candidate or candidates for any office in the gift of the people, shall be deemed guilty of bribery, and upon conviction thereof, shall be disqualified from voting at any general or special election held pursuant to the laws of this State, for the period of ten years thereafter.

Sec. 2. Witnesses shall not disqualify or take away any punishment for bribery now prescribed by law.

MEASURES OF QUARANTINE.

Pursuant to previous notice Mr. RAYMOND presented an act to dispense of the Quarantine property on Staten Island, and to remove the Quarantine, and for the appointment of an Emigrant Physician, and of a Hospital Physician, and for the building a floating Hospital.

The Commissioners of the Land Office are empowered and required to sell the property on Staten Island known as the Marine Hospital. Out of the proceeds of such sale, the said Commissioners shall pay for building and immediately furnishing a floating hospital—the balance, if any, to be paid into the State Treasury. The said floating hospital shall be anchored in the bay or cove north of Coney Island, in the Bay of New-York. The Governor is to appoint an emigrant physician, who shall hold his office for two years. It shall be his duty to board all emigrant vessels arriving at the port of New-York, and to perform the duties now performed by the Health Officer. The Hospital Physician, to be appointed under the act, shall reside at the floating hospital between the 15th day of June and the 1st of November, and to board and examine the decks of Marine Hotel over all vessels arriving from ports south of Virginia, and the act is to take effect on the 1st day of November.

There is, of course, much more of this proposed enactment, but the above includes all the radical changes from the present system. I will let you know when it becomes a law.

REPORTS FROM BANKS.

Mr. KEMP submitted for the consideration of the House a resolve that the Committee on Banks be requested to inquire of the Banks of the State, through the Bank Department, what amount is on deposit with them, and the number of depositors, and the amount per cent. paid to such depositors on their deposits, and that they report to the House at the earliest day. It is supposed that most of the Banks located in this State won't hinder votes to give the information asked for. When it is all in, I hope it will be given up to the House, and not hid in the desk of the Committee, as some such information was last year stowed away, Jerry B. was old and sly—don't let us have any more Jerry B's.

SENATORIAL ELECTION.

In the order of motions and resolutions, Mr. BLATCHFORD called up the concurrent resolution from the Senate, providing for an election of United States Senator on the first Tuesday in February. Mr. PETTIT moved to lay it on the table, which motion was voted down, and the Senate resolve passed with debate.

DISBANDING THE LEGIONS.

Mr. WAKEMAN called up his resolution instructing the Adjutant-General to inquire if any militia companies have been organized in violation of section so and so, of chapter so and so, of the militia law of the State—that is, composed of less than one-half citizens of the United States—and if any such were found, to cause the same to be disbanded. The resolves were adopted by a vote of—Ayes 82, Noes 23.

NOTICE FROM INSTITUTIONS.

On motion the invitation from the Ten Governors asking the attendance of the Legislature to do the Institutions public thanks was taken from the table. Mr. LYON stated that the invitation to accept. He wished every member to see these institutions. They were noble monuments of the munificence of the City. Yet he was opposed to having this invitation accepted. The money placed in the hands of these Ten Governors was to support the poor, the sick, the insane and the criminal. If this invitation is accepted, it will absorb at least $1,000. Those members do not belong to one or the other of these classes, they should not accept it. There is great suffering in New-York. Alms are being raised to aid the poor, and coming up, even from the slaves of Alabama. It would be a shame to prostitute these funds for such a purpose. Besides these entertainments do not always result to the honor of the Legislature. There are always hangers on who crowd themselves into these entertainments, and behave shamefully. They would do so now. (He read from a New-York paper the appearance of one of the Governors, against the invitation.) The money expended would be taken out of the months of the singers.

Mr. FOSTER read the opinion of another of the Governors, in which the propriety of these entertainments was questioned.

Mr. WEAVER moved to indefinitely postpone the subject.

Mr. A. C. WILLIAMS treated the invitation would be accepted. It was a social entertainment, and useful, in enabling the members to understand the noble charities of the charitable institutions of that City. Probably not one in ten of the members have ever visited these institutions. They cannot, therefore, act as intelligently on the subject as those who, when questions relating to them come up. Mr. W. urged his views at length.

Mr. HYDE opposed the acceptance of the invitation, because the Legislature was not sent here to waste time in frolic and festivity. Business was pressing upon the House, and it should be attended to. The week might be pleasant; but duty forbids it.

Mr. HOLMES thought the invitation might be accepted with propriety if it be beyond the usual day of adjournment, and if no money be appropriated.

Mr. BROWNE expressed his opinion that the Legislature has no time to waste in the manner proposed.

Mr. O'KEEFE thought it would be well to accept this invitation. Nothing would be lost to the people if their representatives allowed themselves more recreation. He expressed some of the reasons urged against accepting the invitation.

Mr. STEVENS would be willing to accept this invitation, if the other reason, to show that the people's representatives can behave themselves on occasions like that proposed.

Mr. MURRAY hoped the invitation might be accepted. The visit would be other productive and interesting to the members.

Mr. HEADLEY did not clearly understand whether this invitation was accepted or not; but he thought it inappropriate to pass censure upon the gentlemen who had profited by its acceptation.

Mr. WATERBURY did not think the Ten Governors had a right to expend $1,000 for the purpose proposed. They could use that sum more appropriately.

Mr. ATTRIDGE said this appropriation would not be taken from any charitable fund, but from a contingent fund. He repelled the imputation improperly cast upon the members of the last Legislature.

Mr. MACOMBER had no fear that the members of a Maine Law House would disgrace themselves. If they thought they would, they should, by all means, vote against this resolution.

Mr. BAKER said the House would, before the session closed, be called upon to make appropriations to some of the institutions members were invited to visit. It was quite proper, therefore, that the invitation should be accepted. Mr. B. also repelled the charge that the last visit of the Legislature was disreputable.

Mr. COOKE moved that the expense of the visit be borne by the individual members.

Mr. S. B. COLE deemed the invitation eminently proper, and its acceptance right.

Mr. COLEMAN believed that the present Legislature could visit New-York without disgracing themselves or the State.

Mr. PECK spoke in favor of accepting the invitation.

Mr. STEVENS had heard no good argument in favor of accepting this invitation, except that it would afford members information. But from the hasty manner in which this visit must be gone through with, very little real useful intelligence could be acquired. Besides, the House had no time to spare for this purpose—a purpose which, judging from the tone of the papers last year, was not creditable to the House.

Mr. O'KEEFE moved the previous question. Carried; and

The invitation was accepted by a large majority. So we are coming down in due form, I and the Governor, and the Assembly, and the Senate—if the Senate concur. If they do [illegible], you can see that down as so much gained—thirty-two dinners saved, saying nothing of the officers, and pages, and reporters, and all those sort of things known in the LYON's lexicon as hangers on.

In the Senate, Mr. BROOKS reported favorably the bill to enable Committees of the Common Council of New-York City to take testimony, &c.

Mr. PRATT presented a written report, from the Committee on Commerce and Navigation, relative to the obstructions to navigation in the Hudson River.

The Committee concluded by offering the following concurrent resolutions:

Resolved, (If the Assembly concur,) That the Senators and Representatives from this State in Congress be requested to urge the passage of a law making an appropriation for the removal of the obstructions in the Hudson River, upon a scale which will insure a permanent and complete improvement in the navigation.

Resolved, That the Governor be requested to transmit a copy of the foregoing resolution to each of the Senators and Representatives from this State at Washington.

The report having been read,

Mr. PUTNAM reported favorably, with amendment, the bill relative to the tenure of church property.

Mr. P. stated that the Committee had unanimously agreed in the general principle of the bill, that the title of church property should not be vested in ecclesiastics. One member of the Committee does not concur in some of its details. The Committee concur in the following general views:

1. The State should have a uniform policy in relation to the tenure of church property.

2. That the concentration of the power which would be vested in the clergy, by allowing them to hold the title of consecrated grounds, is antagonistic to the whole theory and policy of our Government.

3. That it would tend to restrain the rights of free worship and of conscience.

4. That it would tend, by the acquisition of power in the hands of the clergy, not legitimate to their office as spiritual teachers, to some of the most flagrant evils resultant from the union of Church and State.

5. That such acquisition of real estate in the hands of the clergy is dangerous to free institutions, and leads to all the mischiefs which the English acts of Mortmain have for centuries sought to prevent.

The State Prison Commission sent in a reply to the resolution of the Senate, furnishing testimony in the case of FITCH, HUNT, COOLEY, &c.

An invitation was received from the Ten Governors, New-York, to the Legislature to visit the Institutions under their charge.

NOTICES.

Mr. SPENCER, by bill, to incorporate the Baptist Historical Society of New-York.

Also, of a bill, to incorporate HORATIO PETTEE and others Trustees of the Fund for the relief of the Widows and Orphans of deceased Clergy of the Protestant Episcopal Church.

Also, by bill, to provide for the appointment of commissioners to visit lunatic asylums, poor houses, &c., and inquire into the treatment of the insane.

Mr. DICKINSON, of a bill, to allow banks to discount on their surplus earnings.

Mr. HUTCHINS, by bill, authorizing the Common Council of Brooklyn to borrow money for school purposes.

The remainder of the session was passed in discussing the subject of the sale of the State lands.

TEMPERANCE.

The House adjourned until 4 o'clock, when it was understood the bill for the suppression of intemperance will be the order. By the way, speaking of intemperance, I am reminded of the

EFFICIENCY AND ECONOMY OF THE STATE TEMPERANCE SOCIETY.

The Reports made at the Annual Meeting of the New-York State Temperance Society, show that the Society since June last, has sent among the people various tracts and other Temperance documents, equal to twenty-seven million of large duodecimo pages. The entire expenditure of funds during the same period, has been $18,000. Of course the savings of the Corresponding Secretary and Editor, of the General Agent and the Publishing Agent, has been paid from this amount, as well as the expenses of office rent and attendants, and yet for each of the twelve thousand dollars the Society has sent out two thousand two hundred and fifty duodecimo pages, filled with facts and arguments adapted to the times. Such efficiency and economy combined we have never before known in any benevolent enterprise. The friends who have contributed to the aid of the Society, have reason to feel more than satisfied with the manner in which their contributions have been appropriated. J. B. R.

Sands-street Methodist Church.

Interesting and protracted revival meetings are being held in the Sands-street (Brooklyn) Church. A number of converts have been made, chiefly of the young. At a social gathering held in the School-room of the Church on Monday evening, the liberal sum of over $500 was raised, in aid of the poor of the congregation.

A NEW PHASE OF ROBBERY—CHLOROFORM ON THE CARS—A WOMAN IN THE CASE.—We learn the following facts respecting a recent robbery committed on board the cars of the Central Railroad. On Friday last, a young woman took the cars for the West, at a station a short distance beyond Utica. Her baggage was checked for Buffalo. After proceeding a short distance upon the journey, a woman who was a fellow passenger, with an affected desire to relieve the loneliness of the young lady, took a seat with her, and became very social. She was in fact quite attentive; and among other marks of familiarity, offered her protege her bottle of smelling salts, which was accepted and used. Soon after inhaling the pungent odor of the vinaigrette, she became powerfully affected by the influence of some subtle soporific agent which it contained, and fell asleep. She remained in this unconscious condition for some time, and on recovering from her stupor discovered that she had been robbed of her purse, baggage, checks, &c. On arriving at the Clyde station, she made known the facts to the Conductor, and the railroad men made up a sufficient team to take her on to her destination. This circumstance developes a new and dangerous scheme for the robbery of unsuspecting persons on the railway trains. Doubtless the female adept had caused her victim to inhale the vapor of chloroform, and thus had her fully in her power, while she perpetrated the robbery. If they carry their operations to the extent of taking baggage, also, it is a still more serious business. Let every one be cautious about encouraging the approaches of plausible strangers on the cars.—Rochester Dem.

Prison Appointments.

We learn from the Auburn Advertiser that the Inspectors have made the following appointments at the Prison:

Keepers—Jesse Rockwood, J. E. Sanford, J. V. Palmer, Orrin Wilcox, Charles A. Baker, W. B. Ogden, J. L. Lansingh, A. P. Wood.

Night watchmen—J. Vanderhayden, M. L. Gunsaul, Isaac Lewis, John Hudson, Alonzo Wheeler, John Quigley, Lewis M. Morley, A. C. Finch.

THE ALLEGED LUNACY CASE.

An Effort to Prove the Insanity of Wm. A. Brown—A Fortune of $60,000 Involved—Disagreement of the Jury.

Before Commissioners Morough, Hoxie, Rogers and a Sheriff's Jury.

During the last few weeks an exciting inquiry has been prosecuting before three Commissioners and a Sheriff's Jury, at the City Hall, to test the sanity of Mr. Wm. A. Brown, a wholesale merchant in Front-street. The amount involved exceeds $60,000 in cash, and real estate, which the brothers of Mr. Brown attempted to get control of by this proceeding, but have signally failed. Early last autumn the alleged lunatic left his brothers' house and commenced boarding in the same house with a lady whom he had engaged to marry. Shortly after he was suddenly missed from the house, and it was finally discovered that at the instigation of his brother's he had been taken to the Lunatic Asylum at Flushing, Long Island. After remaining there several weeks he was brought before Judge Roosevelt, of the Supreme Court, and set at liberty. Proceedings were then instituted to best his sanity. Some forty or fifty witnesses having been examined the case was closed yesterday, and at opening of the Court,

HENRY L. CLINTON, Esq., counsel for Mr. Brown, proceeded to address the jury in favor of his client. He commenced with an affecting allusion to the painful situation his client had been forced to occupy by his own brothers. He rejoiced, however, that the friends of his client outside the circle of his immediate relatives, had rallied around him in solid columns to protect him from the merciless and fiendish prosecution set on foot, as he contended, by his brothers, for purposes of the most despicable and mercenary character. Mr. C. denounced in terms of great bitterness the course pursued by David S., one of the brothers of his client, and portrayed in vivid colors the bitter and rankling quarrel which he maintained had existed between the two brothers from the 25th of September last, when David S., who was then a partner in business with his client, made a violent assault upon him in his own store, alleging as an excuse, that Wm. A. used offensive expressions towards him. This assault, the counsel spoke of as an outrage upon decency. Had not Wm. A. Brown left the house of his brothers, and taken up his residence elsewhere, where David S. and his brother Edgar believed him to be beyond the pale of their influence, he would have been spared the outrage of being sent into a Lunatic Asylum. The partnership existing between Wm. A. Brown and his brother David was dissolved. Wm. A. Brown had sent to many of his friends—then it was that privately and stealthily a certificate of two doctors was obtained that Mr. B. was of unsound mind, one of them basing his opinion upon the fact, as the counsel contended, that B. used improper language before ladies, inasmuch as he spoke of his shoulder-blade being out of order before them; the other doctor founding his belief that B. was insane from the fact that B. refused to pay him a bill of $25. This according to the latter doctor established a case of moral insanity! Mr. C. thought it astounding that learned doctors could be found who would swear to such drivelling nonsense. He considered it a disgrace to the medical profession. If there were to be imprisoned within the walls of a Lunatic Asylum, from such testimony, he did not know where we were to get Lunatic Asylums sufficient to contain them.

Mr. C. contended that although many witnesses had testified on the part of the petitioner that his client was of unsound mind, none of them had stated any facts from which such a conclusion could properly be drawn.

It had been proved on behalf of Mr. B., he was not only of sound mind, but that he possessed an intellect above the average of men, that he was shrewd, careful, and business-like in all his dealings. Merchants, mechanics and doctors—his acquaintances generally—who had known him from his boyhood, united in testifying that he had not evinced the slightest indication of unsoundness of mind.

Mr. C. cited various authorities to show that the law recognized no unsoundness of mind, unless it consisted of a delusion upon one or more subjects founded on no real facts, or unless the mind was in that state of imbecility which, had it existed at birth, would have constituted idiocy. As an illustration of partial insanity or monomania, Mr. C. cited the case related by Erskine in his defense of Hodly in the year 1800, of a man who had brought an action against the keeper of a lunatic asylum for confining him there against his will; on the trial he was cross-examined with all the skill and ingenuity counsel could command, with a view to discover the point of his insanity, but without success, until his physician arriving in Court, whispered to the counsel, that his delusion consisted in his believing he was the Savior of mankind; the counsel then asked the forgiveness of the witness for his ignorance upon which he exclaimed, "I am the Christ" and so the case ended. Mr. C. contended that in the case before the Jury, there was an entire absence of everything that had the semblance of insanity, and that the Jury would not without violating the evidence and running counter to the law, give a verdict against his client.

At the conclusion of Mr. Clinton's address, which occupied about two hours, J. E. Burrill, Jr., Esq., followed on behalf of the petitioners. He contended that the case of W. A. Brown was one of moral insanity. He cited Ray's Medical Jurisprudence to show that one of the features of moral insanity was hatred of relatives. He contended that there was no ill feeling on the part of the brothers of William A. Brown towards him; that the anger and hatred were all on his side. The counsel contended that the witnesses who testified against Brown, had much better opportunities of observing the state of his mind than those who testified in his favor. He laid much stress upon the fact that all of the former partners of Brown, together with the clerks and book-keeper now in his employment, testified that they believed he was not capable of managing his affairs. He confessed that the counsel for Brown had been unnecessarily severe and harsh in his comments upon the medical evidence adduced for the petitioners.

The doctors who thought him of unsound mind had been acquainted with him for years and his previous history, and were therefore the most competent to judge of his mental condition. He protested against the manner in which the counsel upon the other side assailed the motives of David S. and Edgar M. Brown. He knew David S. did wrong in the assault perpetrated upon the person of Wm. A., on the 25th of September. David had apologized to his brother and the difficulty had been made up between them. Mr. Burrill contended that the manner of Brown before the Jury was that of a person not in his right mind.

At the conclusion of Mr. Burrill's speech, Commissioner Murrough proceeded to charge the Jury, after which they retired. After an hour's deliberation, they announced to the Commissioners that it was impossible for them to agree, and they were accordingly discharged. The Jury stood nine in favor of finding that Brown was of sound mind and six opposed. It was necessary that twelve concur, in order to bring in an official verdict. We presume the case will end here.

[Advertisement.]

☞ $2 50 and $5 for Writing, and $12 50 for a thorough course of Double Entry Bookkeeping. The above reduction is one-half the subscriber's regular charges. Cards containing full particulars may be had at the rooms.

OLIVER B. GOLDSMITH, No. 362 Broadway.

[Advertisement.]

☞ This evening, at 8 o'clock, Mr. FOWLER's class in practical Phrenology will receive their first lesson. Those who may wish to join may do so now. Rooms No. 308 Broadway.

MARRIED.

In this City, on Tuesday, Jan. 23, by Rev. James W. Alexander, D. D., HENRY M. HALSEY to AGNES STUART, daughter of John Floyd, all of this City.

At White Plains, on Tuesday, Jan. 23, by Rev. Mr. Silliman, Mr. W. S. SULLIVAN, of this City, to Miss CHARLOTTE M., daughter of Joseph Flanagan, of the former place.

DIED.

In this City, on Wednesday, Jan. 24, BENJAMIN M. THOMPSON, aged 20 years, son of Robert Thompson, Jr.

The friends and acquaintances of the family, with those of Wells Phillips, are respectfully invited to attend his funeral, on Friday, 26th, at 2 o'clock P. M., from the residence of his father, No. 76 6th-st. His remains will be taken to Greenwood for interment.

In this City, on Wednesday morning, Jan. 24, of apoplexy of the brain, MATILDA, wife of Thomas Whitlock.

The funeral will take place from her late residence, No. 72 Morton-st., on Thursday afternoon, at 3 o'clock, to which her friends and relatives are respectfully invited to attend.

In this City, on Wednesday morning, Jan. 24, Miss ELLEN A. BURNHAM, aged 21 years, daughter of Mr. Moses B. Burnham, after a lingering illness. Miss HARRIET E. THOMPSON, aged 20 years, 11 months and 15 days.

Her relatives and friends are respectfully invited to attend her funeral, from the residence of her brother-in-law, Mr. Peter S. Crydler, No. 46 Clarkson-st., on Thursday, the 25th, at 2 o'clock P. M.

In this City, on Wednesday morning, Jan. 24, AMELIA DEMAREST, 3 years of age, being her third birthday, infant daughter of Jas. E. and Amelia Demarest.

The relatives and friends of the family are respectfully invited to attend the funeral, from the residence of her parents, No. 27 Silver-st., on Thursday afternoon, at 1 o'clock, without further invitation.

In this City, on Wednesday morning, Jan. 24, HANNAH, daughter of the late Sam. Clarke.

The friends of the family are requested to attend the funeral, from the residence of her brother, John Clark, No. 169 West 27th-st., on Thursday, the 25th, at 11 o'clock.

In this City, on Tuesday morning, Jan. 23, in the 81st year of her age, SARAH MUNN, mother-in-law of Dr. Valentine Mott.

The relatives and friends of the family, and those of her grand-sons, Dr. Wm. H. Van Buren, and Isaac Bell, Jr., are invited to attend the funeral, on Thursday, the 25th inst., at 1 o'clock, from the residence of her son-in-law, No. 1 Bond-st.

In Brooklyn, on Wednesday, Jan. 24, after a long illness, STEPHEN ABBOTT, son of the late Thomas Abbott, of New-York City, aged 40 years.

His friends and relatives are respectfully invited to attend his funeral, from his late residence, No. 206 Michigan-st., near Sackett-st., Brooklyn, on Saturday morning, at 10 o'clock, without further invitation.

In Brooklyn, on Wednesday morning, Jan. 24, suddenly, SARAH ANN, daughter of James B. and Mary G. Lent, aged 3 years, 6 months and 10 days.

The relatives and friends are invited to attend the funeral, from No. 61 Johnson-st., corner of Jay-st., on Thursday afternoon, at 2 o'clock.

In Brooklyn, on Tuesday afternoon, Jan. 23, of consumption, ARCHIE W., son of Henry B. Crampton, aged 19 years and 11 months.

The relatives and friends of the family are invited to attend the funeral, on Thursday, the 25th, at 1 o'clock P. M., from the residence of his father, No. 23 Bond-st., Brooklyn. His remains will be taken to the Union Cemetery, for interment.

☞ Rochester and New-Haven papers please copy.

In Williamsburg, on Wednesday, Jan. 24, at No. 70 Jay-st., in the 40th year of his age, PRESCOTT H. WAY, late of Fort Ann, Washington-co., N. Y.

Notice of the time of his funeral will be given in the morning papers.

In this City, on Wednesday morning, Jan. 24, Thomas E. Way, aged 14 years. The friends of the family are invited to attend his funeral, on Friday, the 26th inst., at 2 o'clock. His remains will be taken to Greenwood.

At Elmira, on Wednesday, Jan. 24, Mr. Vincent Mathews, aged 78 years, formerly of this City. The friends of the family are invited to attend his funeral, on Friday morning, at 10 o'clock, from the residence of his son-in-law, Mr. Haven, Fort Hill-st., Elmira.

The relatives and friends of the family, and the members and ex-members of Pioneer Hose Co. No. 42, and the Fire Department in general, are respectfully invited to attend the funeral of Mr. JAMES DEVOE, on Friday afternoon, at 2 o'clock, from his late residence, No. 20 Ludlow-st.

In Jersey City, on Tuesday evening, Jan. 23, RICHARD POTTS, aged 4 years and 4 months, son of J. V. and Catharine Talmadge.

Funeral on Thursday, at 2 o'clock A. M., at No. 18 Morris-st., Jersey City. Interment at the Princeton Cemetery.

In Newark, N. J., on Wednesday, Jan. 24, PRUDENCE O., wife of Sylvester C. Smith, and youngest daughter of Luke and Elizabeth Devoe, deceased, formerly of this City.

The funeral services will take place at the residence of her brother-in-law, No. 32 South Broad-st., in the former place, on Friday afternoon, at 2 o'clock. The relatives and friends of the family, and of her brother, John M. Devoe, are respectfully invited to attend, without further invitation.

At Flat Bush, on Monday, Jan. 22, Col. CHARLES SCHUYLER, aged 84 years.

COMMERCIAL AFFAIRS.

For Markets See Sixth Page.

Sales at the Stock Exchange ... JAN. 24.

$500 Ohio 6s, '87	100	50	N.Y.C'l R.R.	s5	87½
5,000 Indiana State 5s	82½	50	do		87½
7,000 do	c 82½	50	do		87½
1,000 Virginia 6s	83	100	do	b10	87½
1,000 do	83	100	do		87½
2,000 do	83	100	Erie Railroad	s5	45
2,000 do	83	200	do	s5	45
1,000 Missouri 6s	91½	100	do		44
1,000 Louisiana 6s	91	475	do		45
3,000 California 7s, '70	94	100	do		45
1,000 Erie Income Bds.	83	140	do	s30	45½
1,000 Erie Bonds of '75	90½	100	do	s30	45½
5,000 do	s90	200	do	b60	45½
10,000 Ill. Cen. R.R. Bds.	s5 71½	300	do		45½
2,000 do	71	125	do	c 45
2,000 do	71	200	Harlem Railroad		27
10,000 do	s5 71	25	do		31
10,000 do	s30 71	400	do	b30	32
1,000 N.Y. Cen. R.R. Bds.	87	100	do	s30	32
24 Mechanics' Bank	109	200	do	s5	32
20 Continental Bank	97	50	N. H. & H. R. R.	s5	113
50 Canton Co.	b60	200	Reading R. R.	b60	74
100 do	23½	100	do		74
100 do	23½	100	do	s30	74
100 do	23½	100	Hudson River R. R.	s5	37
100 do	23½	100	do	s5	37
100 do	23½	100	do	s30	37
100 do	23½	100	do	s30	37
100 do	23½	100	do	s30	37
100 do	23½	100	Michigan Cent'l R. R.		78
100 do	s10	100	do		78
100 do	s5	27	Michigan South. R. R.		65
100 do	s30	100	Panama Railroad		95
100 Cumberland Coal Co.	c	50	do		95½
100 do	s10	50	N. Hath. Indiana R. R.		95½
100 do	s30	20	Illinois Cent'l R.R.	c5	99
100 do	s30	50	do		99
100 do	b10	100	do		99
100 do	b10	100	do		99
100 do	s5	100	do		99
100 do	s5	100	do		99
200 do	s30	100	do		99½
200 do	s30	25	Gale. & Chic. R. R.		49
200 do	s5	200	Clev., C. & Chi. R. R.		16
200 do	b10	200

SECOND BOARD.

$1,000 Missouri 6s	91½	200	Gold Hill Mine
2,000 Virginia 6s	83	50	Cumb. Coal Co.	s30	23
2,000 do	83	100	do	b10	23
3,000 Mich. Central R.	87	100	do	b10	23
5,000 Ill. Cen. R.R. Bds.	72½	50	do		23
4,000 do	s5 72	300	do	s5	23
2,000 Michigan South. R.R.	65	100	Michigan South. R.R.		65
3,000 Erie Con. Bds. of '71	79	30	New-Jersey Railroad		117
25 Canton Company	220	200	Erie Railroad		45
150 N. Y. Cent'l R. R.	s5	100	do	s15	45
110 do	c29	50	do	s30	45
100 Nicaragua Transit Co.	10	100	do	s30	45
100 do	s30	100	Harlem Railroad	s30	28
200 do	b30	17	do	b60	28½
100 do	s10	174	Reading Railroad		73
200 do	s5	17	do	s30	73
100 do	b60	174	do	s30	73½
100 do	s5	17	do	b30	74
1 Northern Ind'n R. R.	94	100	Hudson Riv. R. R.		37½
25 Illinois Cent'l R. R.	99

WEDNESDAY, Jan. 24—P. M.

Owing to the snow storm, the steamer Baltic, for Liverpool, did not leave her dock to-day. Letters will be received at the Post-Office, to go by this opportunity, until 9 o'clock to-morrow morning. There was some additional business done in Sterling Exchange this forenoon at 109 ⅌ cent. The rates are less stiff than yesterday. The mail, however, will be by far the heaviest in remittances both of bills and bonds, since the 1st January. The apprehension, attempted to be raised yesterday, that considerable Specie shipments would soon be resumed, is not well founded. The leading Bankers who have been buying cheap bills for five or six weeks past, and who, under the favorable turn in the Money Market, are able to hold their balances on the other side for better drawing rates, are doubtless anxious to have Exchange rule nearer the par of Specie than it has done since the 1st December, but we know of no purpose to use Specie to any amount, at present, beyond the $400,000 or $500,000 of Mexican and Spanish silver, English Sovereigns and other Foreign Coin which has been accumulating here for five or six weeks past. This may find a market, if the advance of bills to or above 109 is maintained. The Baltic has on board $75,000 Foreign Silver. It has been suspected that the ROTHSCHILD Agents are disposed to ship Gold again without very particular regard to the worth of Exchange, to answer other views than the mere fractional profit on bills, entertained in Paris or London. But on inquiry to-day, we find no evidence of this, nor do we see anything in the condition of the Specie reserve now held by the Banks, to cause any dread of such an operation if it were attempted. The House referred to employ, comparatively, very little of their vast capital in the United States, and the probability is, their Agents would have first to draw their own sixty day bills below the top rates of the market, to command the means for shipping any considerable or alarming sums to answer the purposes of their principals on the other side. And this process would be neither creditable nor popular. The rates of Money are the same as last week on call and very short business paper—the last in demand at Bank—and 1@2 ⅌ cent. lower on prime 60 days to 4 months bills, say 8@10 ⅌ cent., while some fair names are done at 12 ⅌ cent. with the discount brokers.

The Stock Market has recovered its tone of general firmness. There was a better business done to-day in Road, Coal and Transit Shares, than on Tuesday, but not so much after the first closing of the Foreign mails in Railway and State Bonds. The list closed steady this afternoon, 1 ⅌ cent. advance on Cumberland and Nicaragua, and about the same as yesterday afternoon on Erie and New-York Central shares. Virginia sixes varied 95½ to 96, Missouri sixes firm, 91½. Illinois Central Bonds rallied to 72. The subscription to new loan of this Company has been closed, and the first cash installment is to be paid in to-morrow, together with 5 ⅌ cent. collateral security for the future installments. The shares have nearly reached par again on this arrangement, after being depressed 8@10 ⅌ cent. by the December assessment. The policy of the new loan is to save the necessity of further share assessments, at present.

The application for a receiver in the case of the Empire City Bank, pending before Judge ROOSEVELT, of the Supreme Court, has not yet been determined. The Court is disposed to hear full evidence before granting the application. Similar relief has been petitioned for by one or more of the creditors of the Suffolk Bank, now in liquidation. We take leave to say that this is the only mode of proceeding authorized by the Banking laws of the State, in cases of default or gross mismanagement, where the circulation is entirely secured at the Bank Department. We understand that some of our leading Bank officers have been under a different impression, supposing that the law makes it the duty of the Superintendent, at Albany, to move for a receiver. He has no authority of the kind, except as the guardian of the Bank Note circulation, which being entirely secured in both the instances now referred to, does not demand his interference. Where there is reason to suspect a gross violation of charter, or a system of false returns to the Department of the condition of a Bank, he has plenary power to appoint a Special Examiner, as in the case of the Eighth-avenue and Lewis County Banks, and on the report of such Examiner to hand over the papers to the Attorney General for further legal action; but in all other instances of abuse, the right is with any creditor to the amount of $100, or any Stockholder or Stockholders to the amount of one-tenth the capital, to apply to the Supreme Court for relief.

The annual report of the State Superintendent of Banking, recently made to the Legislature, has been published in pamphlet form. We gave a very full abstract of its main features early in the month. The ample list of securities held by each of the Free Banks and Banking Associations, we have mentioned, as follows, as it stood on the 30th September last, the close of the State Fiscal Year:

Names of Banks.	N. Y. Stocks.	U. States.	Bds. & Mtgs.
Agricultural, Ballston	$44,000	$19,000	$51,277
Albany Exchange	21,000		20,000
Albany City, N. Y.	74,000	20,000
Atlantic, N. Y.	20,000	63,000
Auburn City	121,700
Albion	50,177		68,569
Amenia, N. Y.	10,000
Attica, Buffalo	20,000	14,000	59,400
Auburn	20,000	11,000
Bainbridge	102,952		5,300
Black River, Watertown	55,300	10,000	94,791
Bowery, N. Y.	101,851	20,000
Broadway, N. Y.	212,200
Brockport Exchange	20,000	9,000	29,000
Buffalo City	32,000	25,000	59,124
Bull's Head, N. Y.	78,000	20,000
Butnet, Syracuse	77,000		25,040
Butchers', N. Y.	76,000	10,000
Batchelder, Penn Yan	62,110
Bath	34,000		25,327
Binghamton	72,000	20,000
Camden	46,517	4,000	22,600
Canal, Lockport	27,617	1,000	21,211
Catskill	5,000	5,000
Central, Brooklyn	30,000	20,000
Central, New-York	84,023	30,700
Central, Troy	30,000	22,500	54,957
Chatham, N. Y.	72,700	71,100
Chemical, N. Y.	183,410	170,000
Chester	64,000	5,000	7,556
Chittenango	27,500	20,000	57,994
Citizens', N. Y.	113,600	77,000
Citizens' Fulton	42,000	10,000	54,000
City, Brooklyn	50,000	30,000
City, N. Y.	5,500	4,500
City, Oswego	51,000		31,700
Commercial, Albany	231,000
Commercial, Clyde	21,800	12,000	32,008
Commercial, Glens Falls	20,100	17,000	40,520
Commercial, Rochester	165,150		141,975
Commercial, Troy	60,122	47,000	30,500
Commercial, Whitehall	105,000
Continental, N. Y.	60,700	30,000
Corn Exchange, N. Y.	100,000
Crescent, Syracuse	30,000	20,000	53,500
Cuyler, Palmyra	54,200	5,000	43,742
Canandaigua	32,000		26,500
Capitol, Albany	115,000
Cayuga Lake	50,341	4,500
Central N. Y., Utica	27,000		47,665
Chenango, Binghamton	32,000		50,000
Commerce, N. Y.	9,000
Commonwealth, N. Y.	100,379	6,000
Cooperstown	74,300		22,013
Corning			10,200
Catskill	44,800	46,